Today

Lenin Was Too Much.
The Positron Arrives.
A Sad Mother's Day.
Upside Down Flying.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MR. JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR.'s, family, interested in encouragement of art, engaged a brilliant Mexican, Diego Rivera, to paint pictures on the walls of a great building of Rockefeller Center. Rivera believed in Communism, but that naturally did not prevent his being employed.

But when Rivera painted Lenin in a place of honor on the Rockefeller wall, that seemed pushing "toleration" too far. Rivera was paid in full, dropped, and Lenin was removed.

THE BRILLIANT young Mexican, who feels badly, should ask himself what his friends in Russia, Stalin, for instance, would have done, had they engaged an American artist to decorate the Russian temple of Labor, and the American artist had selected John D. Rockefeller for the most striking feature of his decoration.

That picture would have come down, and the American artist would not have been paid in full, at least, not in money.

SCIENCE concentrates on its newest pet, the "positron," thus named because it is a free, "positive electron," one of the inconceivably small things of which light, life, electricity and all matter are formed. When you meet a "positron" it goes right through you and continues on.

The study of the "positron" may tell more about Dr. Milliken's "cosmic rays," and enlighten us also on the "galactic rays" that come from somewhere out in the milky way. A strange, sibilant static in your radio may mean galactic messengers possessing a 146-metre wave, a frequency of 20,000,000 cycles a second.

Where we mortals stand, some things, like suns in space that are one million million times as big as this earth, and other things like the atom of which you could have a million in the corner of your eye without knowing it, are too big or too small. However, Providence knows what is best for us.

SUNDAY WAS a sad "Mother's Day" for Mrs. Bogdonowitz, who lived with her son in his "hideout," on Long Island. John was a good son. On his arm, he had tatooed "I love my mother," and across his chest, in big letters, the one word "MOTHER," no young girl, Cupid or bow and arrow, and on Mother's Day he spent a dollar for flowers.

All this did not save him. As he lay asleep yesterday morning on a sun porch, his mother nearby, three men speeding by in an auto, killed him with seven shots.

It was one of the "usual killings" of our crime wave. His brother had died in the electric chair, another brother is serving a term in the penitentiary. In this case, it is the sin of the children visited on the mother.

ITALY STILL holds the "upside down" flying record. The previous record, held by an Italian, Capt. Raffaele Colacicchi, of 41 minutes, is broken by another Italian, Lieut. Guglielmo Bocola, who flew upside down for an hour and five minutes last Sunday. Doctors afterward said his condition was normal.

In a way, Uncle Sam has been flying upside down longer than that, namely, since 1929, but, unfortunately, his condition is NOT quite normal.

NATURALISTS, studying the brain of a 3-year-old baby gorilla, dead in Washington, after Mrs. Eleanor Patterson vainly supplied for it an oxygen tent, are amazed. The young gorilla had the finest brain ever seen outside of human skulls, weighing 466.6 grams, a little more than a pound. Had the young gorilla lived, its brain might have weighed 600 grams.

Most surprising was the depth of the convolutions, or wrinkles, of that brain. Thinking ability depends on those convolutions. Haldane says the Negro descends from the gorilla, the Mongolian from the orang-outang, the white race from the chimpanzee. He may be mistaken.

Human brains vary greatly in weight. The lightest normal brain weighs about 1100 grams. One of the heaviest ever weighed was that of Cuvier, the great naturalist.

There is nothing to prove that the gorilla brain would have continued to grow. In babyhood, a gorilla is more human in appearance than later on. His brain might stop growing, and even lose its convolutions.

A CRITICAL week for Europe opened yesterday, according to the "bigwigs" of the big powers. Hitler's inclination to tell other nations what to do and how to do it, stirs real alarm among the big powers.

Britain and France are again united to check Germany. Tomorrow Hitler is expected to tell the Reichstag what his armament plans are. Much may depend on what he says.

It seems incredible that he should think of inviting the French air fleet of 5,000 planes to start bombardment of German cities and factories. That may happen.

THE GOVERNMENT decides that the doctor knows best, and beginning yesterday, the country's doctors achieved what is called "the new freedom." They may prescribe drugstore whisky for their customers as freely as, in their judgment, is wise.

There are on hand 4,500,000 gallons of "pre-war" whisky, and 80,000 doctors with permits to prescribe it. Wholesalers and druggists are quoting lower

MITCHELL FLAYED AS 'ROBBER'

By DAVID P. SENTNER,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Charles E. Mitchell, urbane ex-head of the National City Bank, today was flayed as a "public robber" through his alleged machinations to cheat the government of $858,429 in income taxes for 1929 and 1930 by United States Attorney George Z. Medalie in his jury address at the trial of the banker for income tax evasion.

In detailing three instances charging the banker-clubman of "shams, pretenses and subterfuges" in order to evade income tax payment on more than $4,000,000, Prosecutor Medalie concluded with:

"The public has been robbed by this defendant."

ADVANCE FUND

Referring to the $666,666 which went to Mitchell from the 1929 management fund of the National City Company, of which he was president, Medalie alleged that this sum was pictured as "an advance" in order to deceive the government. He continued:

"In December, 1932, two and one-half years after Mitchell participated in the distribution from the management fund, the officers of the National City Company got together and compiled a black book of confessions.

"This was the last act of pretense. The black book appeared when an official inquiry was pending, when everybody was becoming curious as to what was happening, especially government officials.

"They wrote it all down on one page of the black book. The rest of the book was blank. And this book was no part of the regular books of the company.

"These entries attempted to explain the distribution of the $1,860,000 as advances made to the officers from the 1929 management fund. They were sup-

ROOSEVELT PLAN STIRS GERMANY

Hitler Confers With Hindenburg on Arms Speech

By ARNO DORSH-FLEUROT
International News Service.

BERLIN, May 16.—As Chancellor Adolph Hitler this afternoon laid before President Von Hindenburg a rough draft of the momentous speech he is to make in the Reichstag tomorrow, outlining to the world Germany's disarmament aims and foreign policy in general, Berlin was electrified by President Roosevelt's daring appeal for the nations of the world to disarm.

The Chancellor was accompanied to the presidential palace by Dr. Wilhelm Frick, Reich Minister of the Interior.

So certain is Hitler that his pronouncement, far from inflaming Europe, will immediately ease the present crisis, that he gave instructions to Dr. Rudolph Nadolny, German disarmament delegate, to return to the Geneva conference tomorrow unless some untoward event intervenes.

RETURNS TO GENEVA

Nadolny had been recalled to Berlin to confer with Hitler on the Reich's future disarmament policy.

His return will serve as notification to the powers that Germany has no thought of quitting the disarmament conference unless her demands are completely rejected.

The general opinion in governmental circles as to the American announcement, voiced in a quick survey by International News Service, was that Roosevelt has thrown himself boldly into the fray, risking having responsibility for failure of the Geneva disarmament conference heaped on his

Roosevelt's Message To World

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(INS.)—Following is the text of President Roosevelt's message to the rulers of the world:

A profound hope of the people of my country impels me, as the head of their government, to address you and, through you, the people of your nation. This hope is that peace may be assured through practical measures of disarmament and that all of us may carry to victory our common struggle against economic chaos.

To these ends the nations have called two great world conferences. The happiness, the prosperity, and the very lives of the men, women and children who inhabit the whole world are bound up in the decisions which their governments will make in the near future. The improvement of social conditions, the preservation of individual human rights, and the furtherance of social justice are dependent upon these decisions.

The world economic conference will meet soon and must come to its conclusions quickly. The world can not await deliberations long drawn out. The conference must establish order in place of the present chaos by a stabilization of currencies, by freeing the flow of world trade, and by international action to raise price levels.

It must, in short, supplement individual domestic programs for economic recovery, by wise and considered international action.

Parley Lags

The disarmament conference has labored for more than a year and, as yet, has been unable to reach satisfactory conclusions. Confused purposes still clash dangerously.

Our duty lies in the direction of bringing practical results through concerted action based upon the greatest good to the greatest number. Before the imperative call of this great duty, petty obstacles must be swept away and petty aims forgotten. A selfish victory is always destined to be an ultimate defeat. The furtherance of durable peace for our generation in every part of the world is the only goal worthy of our best efforts.

"If we ask what are the reasons for armaments,

APPEALS TO 54 NATIONS FOR DISARMAMENT, NON-AGGRESSION

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt told Congress in a special message today that he had proposed a world non-aggression pact "because it has become increasingly evident that the assurance of world political and economic peace and stability is threatened by selfish and shortsighted policies, actions and threats of actions."

(The text of President Roosevelt's message to Congress appears on Page 2.)

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—President Roosevelt today sent to the rulers of the world a moving appeal for military and economic peace.

At a moment when sabres are rattling in Europe, when there is declared war in South America, and guns are belching in Asia, the President addressed the heads of 54 nations with an eloquent plea to keep the peace.

To this end, he proposed a program:

1—That all nations support the MacDonald disarmament plan, which is designed to eliminate offensive weapons of warfare.

2—That early agreement be reached upon the steps to follow this plan.

3—That while these steps are being taken no nation shall increase its armament beyond the limits fixed in existing treaties.

4—That all nations of the world enter into "a solemn and definite pact of non-aggression."

BLAME FOR FAILURE

If any strong nation refuses to join "with genuine sincerity" in these aims, he said, progress toward world peace will be blocked "and the civilized world will know where the responsibility for failure lies."

No more remarkable document ever went out of Washington than the appeal of the President for universal peace. It was sent by cable this morning to the rulers of 54 nations, all of which are represented in the disarmament conference at Geneva, now in the doldrums and verging upon dissolution, and in the Lon-

Developments In Arms Crisis

Associated Press.

Today's developments in disarmament crisis:

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt broke precedent by appealing directly to the rulers of the nations to reduce armaments, eliminate aggressive weapons, forget "petty" national aims, and work for peace and economic recovery.

BERLIN—Chancellor Hitler conferred with President von Hindenburg about his momentous disarmament pronouncement to be made tomorrow before the special Reichstag session.

PARIS—Paris factories making food, chemicals, clothing and army supplies were ordered to report to the "Passive Defense Bureau" on their capacity and number of employes.

VIENNA—Chancellor Hitler rebuked Austria for "Slapping Germany in the face."

TOKIO—Chinese were reported retreating to make a stand against the Japanese army only 13 miles east of Peiping.

FRANCE MOVES FOR DEFENSE

PARIS, May 16.—(AP.)—As a national defense measure, Paris factories were ordered today to report to the "Passive Defense Bureau" within a month on the number of their employes and on their capacity.

This move came as the nation was waiting for Chancellor Hitler's important pronouncement before the German Reichstag tomorrow on the German policy in regard to re-armament.

The Council of Ambassadors, the executive body of the Treaty of Versailles, may shortly resume activity as a result of the controversy over the German arms problem, it was learned today.

Paris and London are busily discussing the revival of the council in anticipation of renewed application of the treaty provisions.

The council is presided over by Jules Cambon, veteran French diplomat, and the United States ambassador frequently sat as an observer during the years of its activity.

For several years this executive group has been idle, but it still maintains its office.

Bill Swift Opposes Phillies

FORBES FIELD, May 16.—The soil of Forbes Field remained soggy and slow this afternoon as the Pittsburgh Pirates and Philadelphia Phillies awaited the umpire's "play ball" in the second battle of their four-game series. Fast play in the outfield sections was impossible owing to the water.

Bill Swift, who blanked the Quakers in their own park on his last appearance against them, warmed up to face them again. Manager Shotton had Flint Rhem and John Berly available for duty. The Pirates took over first place exclusively by defeating the Quakers yesterday, 5 to 4.

BLOCKS BALLOT FRAUD 'ESCAPE'

To prevent grand jury witnesses on vote frauds from changing their testimony, Attorney Earl F. Reed, recently appointed prosecutor of election cases here, has succeeded in getting an act of Congress authorizing the recording of statements made before the grand jury.

Reed today admitted he sought the legislation recently in a conference with the United States Attorney General.

The election fraud cases, involving congressional contests in the Thirty-second District, where Michael J. Muldowney opposed Anne E. Felix, and in the Eighth District, where Twing Brooks was elected over Edmund F. Erk, will come before a special grand jury June 1.

The act, while it did not designate Pittsburgh election difficulties, was plainly meant to aid the special United States District Attorney in his battle to expose election crooks.

GIRL STUDENT IN PLANE CRASH

What's an airplane npset more or less in the life of comely Downie Tepsic, student pilot at the Penn School of Aviation?

After today it's a mere scratch on the chin and a bill from the cleaners. Miss Tepsic, flying in her twenty-fifth hour alone at Bettis Airport, ground-looped and crashed today, but, according to her version, "it's nothing."

A sudden gust of wind gave the winsome little student an unexpected course in ground acrobatics which resulted in the damaging of the airplane's wings and nose and a slight cut on Miss Tepsic's chin. She climbed out of the cockpit with a big smile and this remark to her fellow students:

"It's something when you can bust 'em up and walk out yourself. See—if that had been an automobile I probably would have a couple of broken legs and fractured skull"

She turned to one of the school mechanics:

"How soon can you fix it up so I can go up again?"

POONA, India, May 16.—(AP.)—After eight days of his three-week fast in protest of "untouchability" the Mahatma Gandhi today was pronounced in excellent condition.

He was said to be sleeping well and his pulse was strong. He now weighs 91½ pounds, having lost a pound and a half daily since he began the ordeal a week ago yesterday.

Hitler of Jewish Origin, Paper Says

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, May 16.—(INS.)—The family of Chancellor Adolf Hitler, of Germany, was Jewish in origin, the Prague newspaper Pravo Lidu asserted today.

The Hitlers, according to the newspaper, came originally from the Bohemian town of Polna. Records of Polna's Jewish community, it was asserted, show the family emigrated to Austria in 1827.

Rodgers, Ex-Relief Head, Hiccoughs 10 Days

The tenth successive day of hiccoughing kept W. B. Rodgers, former executive secretary of the State Emergency Relief Board, in Allegheny General Hospital today.

Rodgers did not hiccough for several hours this morning, but just when hospital attaches were concluding the attack was at an end, the attack began all over again.

The former state relief head tried to ignore the spasmodic contraction of his diaphragm for nearly a week, but days and days of the convulsions became too much.

He went to the hospital last Friday when he was informed the only way to stop a sustained attack was to obtain complete rest. He found it much more comfortable to hiccough in bed than on his feet. Besides, the more sleep he gets, the less he suffers.

Hiccups, or hiccoughs, have a much more imposing name in medical circles. It is singultus.

Factories, Steel Mills Step Up Activity Here

Howard Heinz, president of H. J. Heinz Company, today sounded the keynote of Pittsburgh's industrial rhythm, which has increased its tempo daily during the past three weeks, with reports of increased production, growing employment figures and wage advances converging here from all points of the country. In a statement for the Sun-Telegraph by telephone from New York, Mr. Heinz said:

"There has been a noticeable improvement in our business during the last three weeks."

With the steel industry making almost daily advances, Carnegie Steel Company announced today the Pennsylvania Railroad's order for between 20,000 and 25,000 tons of rail will provide approximately

Heavy clouds of smoke from 20,000 gallons of burning tar on Neville Island overspread the Ohio Valley at Emsworth this afternoon giving the effect of a volcanic eruption.

The valve of a tank of tar in process of being distilled broke, permitting the tar to flow into the burners. Three fire companies fought the blaze, first with water, then with chemicals. No one was injured.

Urges Disarmament, Non-Aggression Agreement

RUSSIA INCLUDED

Even Soviet Russia was not excluded. The President's message was addressed to Michael Kalinin, "President of the All Union Central Executive Committee, Moscow, Russia."

Russia is a participant in both the disarmament and the economic conferences. It was explained, however, that President Roosevelt's direct communication with the head of the Russian states does not imply recognition.

The King of Iraq, the Shah of Persia, and the Emperor of Ethiopia, as well as the Presidents of South and Central America and the heads of the powerful nations of Europe and Asia, all came within the scope of Mr. Roosevelt's appeal.

It was a world-wide appeal. Nevertheless, it was directed peculiarly to Germany and France, which are edging toward war in Europe; to Japan and China, now at each other's throats in the Far East; to Paraguay and Bolivia, which have an official and declared war in program in South America.

WARNS OF CHAOS

Explanatory of his unique appeal, the President said at the outset:

"A profound hope of the people of my country impels me, as the head of their government, to address you and, through you, the people of your nation. This hope is that peace may be assured through practical measures of disarmament and that all of us may carry to victory our common struggle against economic chaos."

To this end, he continued, the world has called two conferences, the disarmament conference at Geneva, and the economic conference at London. The Geneva conference, he said, has been unable to get anywhere as "confused purposes still clash dangerously."

The purposes of armament, he declared, are two-fold: One, "The desire, disclosed or hidden, on the part of governments to enlarge their territories at the expense of a sister nation," and, two, the fear of invasion.

Only a small minority of the governments of the world, he said, were actuated by territorial ambitions. The President did not, of course, specify any governments belonging to this "small minority," but it was plain that this portion of his communication had a peculiar application to Japan.

'FEAR OF INVASION'

As for the "fear of invasion," the President recognized that there is some justification for it. Modern weapons of offense such as mobile artillery, tanks, poison gas and airplanes are, he conceded, stronger than modern weapons of defense.

Thus, he proposed their elimination, in accordance with the MacDonald plan of disarmament. He said:

"If all nations will agree wholly to eliminate from possession and use all weapons which make possible a successful attack, defenses automatically will become impregnable, and the frontiers and independence of every nation will become secure.

"The ultimate objective of the disarmament conference must be the complete elimination of all offensive weapons.

"The immediate objective is a substantial reduction of some of these weapons and the elimination of many others."

The fourth point in the President's program was made contingent upon the "faithful fulfillment" of the other three. It stated:

"That all the nations of the world should enter into a solemn and definite pact of non-aggression; that they should solemnly reaffirm the obligations they have assumed to limit and reduce their armaments, and, provided these obligations are faithfully executed by all signatory powers, individually agree that they will send no armed force of whatsoever nature across their frontiers."

'None So Blind' -:- -:- By QUIN HALL

TEXT OF ROOSEVELT'S APPEAL

which, in spite of the lessons and tragedies of the World War, are today a greater burden on the peoples of the earth than ever before, it becomes clear that they are two-fold:

First, the desire, disclosed or hidden, on the part of governments to enlarge their territories at the expense of a sister nation. I believe that only a small minority of governments or of peoples harbor such a purpose.

Second, the fear of nations that they will be invaded.

I believe that the overwhelming majority of peoples feel obliged to retain excessive armaments because they fear some act of aggression against them and not because they themselves seek to be aggressors.

There is justification for this fear. Modern weapons of offsense are vastly stronger than modern weapons of defense. Frontier forts, trenches, wire entanglements, coast defenses—in a word, fixed fortifications—are no longer impregnable to the attack of war planes, heavy mobile artillery, land battleships called tanks, and poison gas.

If all nations will agree wholly to eliminate from possession and use the weapons which make possible a successful attack, defenses automatically will become impregnable, and the frontiers and independence of every nation will become secure.

The ultimate objective of the disarmament conference must be the complete elimination of all offensive weapons. The immediate objective is a substantial reduction of some of these weapons and the elimination of many others.

This government believes that the program for immediate reduction of aggressive weapons, now under discussion at Geneva, is but a first step toward our ultimate goal. We do not believe that the proposed immediate steps go far enough. Nevertheless, this government welcomes the measure now proposed and will exert its influence toward the attainment of further successive steps of disarmament.

Steps Needed

Stated in the clearest way, there are three steps to be agreed upon in the present discussions:

First, to take, at once, the first definite step toward this objective, as broadly outlined in the MacDonald plan.

Second, to agree upon time and procedure for taking the following steps.

Third, to agree that while the first and the following steps are being taken, no nation shall increase its existing armaments over and above the limitations of treaty obligations.

But the peace of the world must be assured during the whole period of disarmament and I, therefore, propose a fourth step concurrent with and wholly dependent on the faithful fulfillment of these three proposals and subject to existing treaty rights:

That all the nations of the world should enter into a solemn and definite pact of non-aggression: That they should solemnly reaffirm the obligations they have assumed to limit and reduce their armaments, and, provided these obligations are faithfully executed by all signatory powers, individually agree that they will send no armed force of whatsoever nature across their frontiers.

Common sense points out that if any strong nation refuses to join with genuine sincerity in these concerted efforts for political and economic peace, the one at Geneva and the other at London, progress can be obstructed and ultimately blocked.

In such event the civilized world, seeking both forms of peace, will know where the responsibility for failure lies. I urge that no nation assume such a responsibility, and that all the nations joined in these great conferences translate their professed policies into action. This is the way to political and economic peace.

I trust that your government will join in the fulfillment of these hopes.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

LLOYD GEORGE BACKS HITLER

SCARBOROUGH, Eng., May 16.—(INS.)—Struggling for arms equality, Germany found a supporter in a totally unexpected quarter today as David Lloyd George, Britain's war-time Prime Minister, came to the defense of the Hitlerized Reich.

Defending the German claim for arms equality with other European nations, Lloyd George, one of the big five among the signers of the Treaty of Versailles, attacked Secretary for War Lord Hailshan for threatening sanctions against Germany if she proceeded to rearm.

He pointed out that the Versailles treaty provided for disarmament by the Allies when German armaments were destroyed. He declared:

"The nations which compelled Germany to sign the treaty not only failed to carry out their pledge, but the majority of them—all in fact except ourselves—have increased their armaments."

CONGRESSMEN HAIL PLEA OF ROOSEVELT

G. O. P. Leaders Doubt Europe Will Heed U. S. Advice

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—President Roosevelt's world appeal for peace struck an approving chord in Congress today.

Speaker Henry T. Rainey declared:

"The United States can enthusiastically and unanimously support the President's announced foreign policy. It is a proposal for a united front by every nation against every other nation that undertakes military movements, and of course that includes Hitler."

Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, Democratic leader of the House, said:

"It is a statement that should appeal to the governments of all nations."

Representative McReynolds (Dem.), of Tennessee, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said:

"If the President's policies are agreed upon even by only the great nations of the world it would mean an assurance of peace and the beginning of economic recovery."

Republican comment was rather skeptical.

Senator Robinson (Rep.), of Indinia, one of the severest critics of the administration's foreign politics, said:

"It is a magnificent gesture—a beautiful dream. Imagine France and Germany, which are ready to fly at each other's throats, being moved by a thing like that—and especially Japan."

Senator Dickinson (Rep.), of Iowa, asserted:

"It is of very little interest to this country. It chiefly involves the European countries where friction exists."

Representatives Darrow (Rep.), of Pennsylvania:

"The message is idealistic and seeks a condition we have long hoped might prevail, but I am fearful that it is not near adoption. If the message is for the purpose of mollifying the attitude in Germany I hope it succeeds."

Representative Fish, of New York, ranking Republican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee:

"The President's message is consistent with the terms of the Briand-Kellogg pact and a logical step for reduction of armaments and peaceful relations in the world. It must not be interpreted to mean that the United States will join in enforcing the status quo established by the Versailles treaty conceived in hate, fear and cupidity."

Senator Metcalf (Rep.), of Rhode Island, said:

"It would be very good if everyone would keep this agreement, but I haven't much faith that people will stop fighting."

54 Nations Asked By Roosevelt to Join in Pact

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(INS.)—Fifty-four nations were invited today by President Roosevelt to join in a definite pact of nonaggression as a means to political and economic peace. They include the nations participating in the economic and disarmament conferences. They are:

Albania, Argentina, Austria, Belgium, Colombia, Bolivia, Bulgaria, Chile, Costa Rica, China, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, Estonia, Ethiopia, Finland, France, Germany, Great Britain, including India and Ireland, Greece, Guatemala, Haiti, Hungary, Honduras, Iraq (Mesopotamia), Italy, Japan, Latvia, Lithuania, Duchy of Luxembourg, Mexico, The Netherlands, Nicaragua, Norway, Panama, Paraguay, Persia, Poland, Peru, Portugal, Rumania, Russia, Siam, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, Uruguay, Venezuela and Yugoslavia.

This viewpoint is echoed by the Lokalanzieger, which asks:

"Does President Roosevelt ask a formal compromise by which Germany will get only theoretical equality in arms?

"Or does he ask that other European nations make equal cuts, giving Germany real equality in arms?

SEEKS TO PROFIT

How Germany can best profit by the President's pronouncement is the chief concern in governmental circles, where it was insisted that the Reich must stand on her demand at Geneva for equality in arms.

The President's unprecedented move occurred on a day when Germany was asking herself whether she must conciliate at Geneva or pull out of the disarmament conference.

On Europe's reception of Chancellor Hitler's address tomorrow will depend the answer to this question.

BRITAIN DISAPPOINTED

LONDON, May 16.—(INS.)—President Roosevelt's proposal for a new international pact of nonaggression was regarded here tonight as a "shot in the arm" for the gasping disarmament conference at Geneva.

There was some disappointment over the message as a whole, however, as the British press, on the basis of dispatches from Washington, had led the public to believe Mr. Roosevelt was planning to deliver a counter-blast to Chancellor Hitler, of Germany.

A more complete American participation in European affairs also had been anticipated.

Headlines in the various London afternoon papers were as follows:

Standard:

"Roosevelt's Peace Plan Urges Adoption of British Geneva Proposals."

Star:

"Roosevelt's Dramatic Appeal to Nations of the World; Powers Asked to Agree Never to Send Armed Forces Across Borders."

News:

"Roosevelt's 'Keep the Peace' S O S."

FRANCE NONCOMMITTAL

PARIS, May 16.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt's declaration to the nations of the world today generally met restrained comment in official French circles.

A copy of the document was taken immediately to President Albert Lebrun, and the foreign office began a close analysis of the President's statements.

HOPE IN GENEVA

GENEVA, May 16.—(INS.)—The peace message of President Roosevelt was hailed in League of Nations circles tonight as a ray of hope in the fast-darkening disarmament sky.

In particular, the last section of his four-point plan for retention of European peace, asking the nations of the world to sign a nonaggression pact pledging themselves not to send troops across their borders was regarded as a solution to the thorny problem of defining an aggressor nation.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP.)—Pinnacle points of President Roosevelt's non-aggression and arms reduction message to the people follow:

"All the nations of the world should enter into a solemn and definite pact of non-aggression . . ."

"They should solemnly reaffirm the obligations they have assumed to limit and reduce their armaments, and, provided these obligations are faithfully executed by all signatory powers, individually agree that they will send no armed force of whatsoever nature across their frontiers."

"Before the imperative call of this great duty (disarmament acomplishments), petty obstacles must be swept away and petty aims forgotten."

"The ultimate objective of the disarmament conference must be the complete elimination of all offensive weapons. The immediate objective is a substantial reduction of some of these weapons and the elimination of many others."

"Common sense points out that if any strong nation refuses to join with genuine sincerity in these concerted efforts for political and economic peace, the one at Geneva and the other at London, progress can be obstructed and ultimately blocked. In such event the civilized world, seeking both forms of peace, will know where the responsibility for failure lies."

DUCE CAUTIONS GERMAN CHIEF

LONDON, May 16.—(INS.)—Premier Mussolini has sent a direct personal message to Chancellor Hitler advising a conciliatory tone in his speech to the Reichstag tomorrow, International News Service was informed today.

Il Duce, it was said, expressed agreement with the British disarmament plan in his message, and declared he thought it best that Hitler proceed "within the framework" of the proposed four-power pact for preservation of European peace.

This pact would put responsibility for maintenance of peace squarely on Britain, France, Italy and Germany.

BERLIN, May 16.—(INS.)—A report circulated in London that Premier Mussolini of Italy had sent a communication to Chancellor Hitler urging moderation in his disarmament address tomorrow, was denied by the foreign office tonight.

F. R. 'SLEPT ON' MESSAGE

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt, who since March 4 has established something of a reputation for quick action, "slept on" the peace message to the world rulers.

He finished writing it Saturday, and put it in his desk.

Sunday he took a pleasure cruise down the Potomac with some friends, including none of his diplomatic advisers.

Sunday night he conferred with several State Department officials, and Monday and Monday night canvassed their opinions again.

Then he ordered the message to go forward at 6 o'clock this morning, and to be made public at 10 o'clock, and went to bed.

Roosevelt Urged To Telephone Hitler

LONDON, May 16.—(INS.)—Cheered by news that President Roosevelt intends making a pronouncement on foreign affairs, the London News Chronicle today suggested he engage in a heart-to-heart trans-Atlantic telephone talk with Chancellor Hitler, of Germany.

In an editorial on the disarmament crisis headed "Why Not Ring Up Hitler?" the newspaper said President Roosevelt should telephone the Reich dictator immediately, before the chancellor makes his speech to the Reichstag.

The paper added:

"President Roosevelt and Hitler could change the situation far more swiftly than can the slow-moving, cumbrous machine of international diplomacy."

U. S. CITIZENS FLEE BEFORE JAP TROOPS

Chinese Prepare to Evacuate Peiping And Tientsin

By DIXON HOSTE
International News Service.

SHANGHAI, May 16.—Eighty American school children and their teachers, together with six American families, evacuated Tungchow today as Japanese-Manchukuo forces pressed toward Pieping and Tientsin following subjugation of the Miyun area.

Japanese sources declared Gen. Wan Fu-Lin, commander of the Chinese troops at Tongshan, had fled to Tientsin, and claimed the 106th Chinese Division had deserted to join the banners of the Japanese-controlled state of Manchukuo.

COMPROMISE HOPE

It was reported without confirmation that Yu Hsueh-Chang, chairman of the Hopei Province government, was preparing to evacuate the Peiping and Tientsin areas as the invaders approached.

It was believed, however, that the Nanking government had consented to a compromise arrangement, suggesting Huang-Fu as new chairman of the Peiping political council. It was hoped this change would prevent the Japanese from rushing on to Peiping.

TRAIN ATTACKED

Rolling stock of the Kailan mining administration was withdrawn from circulation as a precaution against bombing while refugees continued to pour through Tongshan, and an exodus into the Tientsin foreign concessions began.

Many of these refugees were wealthy Chinese fleeing from Peiping, where they were said to fear internal disorders more than the threat of a Japanese attack on the city.

Riddled by bullets, the International Express reached here from Manchuli after drawing the fire of bandits en route. Two passengers were wounded in the shooting and a Manchukuo guard was killed.

EMBARGO SEEN IN CHACO WAR

GENEVA, May 16.—(AP.)—An arms embargo without reservation against the principals in the Gran Chaco conflict, Paraguay and Bolivia, was held in readiness by six nations today.

The six, whose names were not disclosed, may be joined by seven others contingent on participation of other states.

Revelation of this action followed a secret session of the council of the League of Nations last night after a public and special session yesterday in which Bolivian and Paraguayan representatives stated their cases.

After Paraguay had definitely accepted arbitration, conditions were raised by Bolivia, declaring it essential that the exact nature of Paraguayan claims to the disputed region be known ahead of time. Each nation blamed the other and asked that league penalties be invoked.

HITLER REBUKES AUSTRIA

VIENNA, May 16.—(AP.)—A rebuke from Chancellor Hitler of Germany that the time is inopportune for Austria "slapping Germany in the face" has been handed Chancellor Dollfuss.

The German Minister called on the Chancellor yesterday in connection with incidents surrounding the arrival here last Saturday of Hans Kerrl, Prussian Minister of Justice, and Hans Frank, Bavarian Minister of Justice. When they landed at Aspern Airport they were informed through a police official that their visit was "not very desirable."

The Nazi officials were cheered, however, by thousands of Austrian Nazis, strong opponents of the Dollfuss regime.

Chancellor Dullfuss assured the minister that no affront was intended against the German government, and that the incident was directed only against Frank as an individual.

Frank, it was pointed out in semi-official circles, recently threatened in a speech at Munich that there might be a German Nazi invasion of Austria.

F. R.'s Message Recalls T. R.'s Appeal in 1905

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt's appeal to the nations to enter into a general non-aggression pact and agree not to send armed forces beyond their own borders, pending disarmament understandings, is reminiscent of President Theodore Roosevelt's appeal to the Russian and Japanese governments in 1905 to stop their ruthless war in Manchuria.

Without any authority whatever as an arbitrator, Theodore Roosevelt, single-handed, surprised the world by urging warring governments to declare an armistice.

It impressed the combatants. They agreed and made peace at a conference in Portsmouth, N. H.

For this Theodore Roosevelt was awarded the Nobel peace prize in 1906.

Two years earlier President Theodore Roosevelt took a daring stand against threats of leading European powers to apply force against President Castro, of Venezuela, because of controversies over disputed claims. He interceded and brought the disputants to an understanding which probably spared the Monroe Doctrine a test at arms and sent the controversy to The Hague for settlement.

Roosevelt's Message Notifying Congress of Peace Plea

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP.)—The text of President Roosevelt's special message this afternoon notifying Congress of his plea for peace sent this morning to the nations of the world follows:

"To the Congress:

"For the information of the Congress I am sending herewith a message I have addressed this morning to the sovereigns and presidents of those nations participating in the Disarmament Conference and the World Monetary and Economic Conference.

"I was impelled to this action because it has become increasingly evident thatt he assurance of world political and economic peace and stability is threatened by selfish and short-sighted policies, actions and threats of actions.

"The sincere wish for this assurance by an overwhelming majority of the nations faces the danger of recalcitrant obstruction by a very small minority, just as in the domestic field the good purposes of a majority in business, labor or in other co-operative efforts are often frustrated by a selfish few.

"The deep rooted desire of Americans for better living conditions and for the avoidance of war is shared by mass humanity in every country.

"As a means to this end. I have in the message to the various nations, stressed the practical necessity of reducing armament.

"It is high time for us and for every other nation to understand the simple fact that the invasion of any nation, or the destruction of a national sovereignty, can be prevented only by the complete elimination of the weapons that make such a course possible today.

"Furthermore, permanent defenses are a non-recurring charge against governmental budgets while large armies, continually rearmed with improved offensive weapons, constitute a recurring charge.

This more than any other factor today is responsible for governmental deficits and threatened bankrupcty.

"The way to disarm is to disarm. The way to prevent invasion is to make it impossible.

"I have asked for an agreement among nations on four practical and simultaneous steps:

"First, that through a series of steps the weapons of offensive warfare be eliminated;

"Second, that the first definite step be taken now;

"Third, that while these steps are being taken no nation shall increase existing armaments over and above the limitations of treaty obligations;

"Fourth, that subject to existing treaty rights no nation during the disarmament period shall send any armed force of whatsoever nature across its own borders.

"Our people realize that weapons of offense are needed only if other nations have them and they will freely give them up if all the nations of the world will do likewise.

"In the domestic field the Congress has labored in sympathetic understanding with me for the improvement of social conditions, for the preservation of individual human rights, and for the furtherance of social justice."

"In the message to the nations which I herewith transmit I have named the same objectives.

"It is in order to assure these great human values that we seek peace by ridding the world of the weapons of aggression and attack.

"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

"The White House.
May 16, 1933."

Roosevelt's Note First Sent by U. S. to Soviet

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(INS.)—President Roosevelt's action in sending his world peace appeal direct to Soviet Russia marks the first official communication between Washington and Moscow since the establishment of the Soviet government on November 17, 1917.

Technically speaking, it is the first recognition by an American government that there is any government in Russia, notwithstanding that it is the oldest administration in Europe.

Previous administrations have preserved the fiction that a state of revolution exists in Russia and that there is no government there.

Administration officials were careful to explain that Mr. Roosevelt's action does not constitute nor imply diplomatic recognition.

The President's message was addressed to Michael Kalinin, president of the All Union Central Executive Committee, simply because Russia is a party to both the Geneva disarmament conference and the London economic conference.

The last time this government communicated indirectly with the Soviet was in December, 1925, when Henry L. Stimson, then Secretary of State, dispatched a note to the Russian government through France in connection with the Sino-Russian dispute over the Chinese Eastern Railway.

BEER TO SWELL COUNTY PARK PROFITS

2 McGovern Followers To Get Coveted Concessions

Concessions in South Park, about to be given to political followers of County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, appeared a greater prize than ever today as it was disclosed beer likely would be sold.

McGovern said that when an agreement on concessions came up today it was unlikely the sale of beer would be mentioned. He said:

"Everyone is selling it and I see no reason why the Commissioners should interfere."

SECRET DEALS

That concession deals had been negotiated quietly and efforts of scores of dealers to submit their proposals were being dodged was revealed yesterday.

Sale of beer has been banned on city property and had been considered barred also from county concessions.

Beer sales during the hot summer months would be a boon to refreshment stand holders, it was pointed out. Under the proposed agreement, approved by the County Solicitor, the county would receive 5 per cent of gross receipts at South Park.

The concessionnaires named in the agreement are Edward Collins, of Munhall, and Ross Thomas, of Brentwood, both aides of McGovern in former political fights.

OPENS TEAROOM

Mrs. Mary Schade has opened a tearoom in South Park, but was not regarded as one of the seasonal concessionaires, McGovern said. He said she had been anxious to rent the vacant park building for some months, and this was done a few days ago.

McGovern said he did not understand how Thomas and Collins had got the idea that they were engaged to run the concessions, as there had been no action by the Commissioners.

McGovern opposed taking bids on concessions, saying that the higher the percentage offered to the county, the worse the deal would be for the park visitors. He declared that if one concessionnaire offered 5 per cent another would offer 10 and make the same profit by giving thinner sandwiches and worse coffee.

CAR BLOCKADE HEARING HELD

BEAVER, Pa., May 16.—A temporary injunction granted the Beaver Valley Traction Company, restraining the borough of Rochester from interfering with street car operation was still in effect after a hearing today. Judge Frank E. Reader said he would review the evidence and probably would give a decision tomorrow.

Rochester's right to halt street car traffic because the company failed to repair the borough streets was attacked at the injunction hearing today.

The restraining order was granted the traction company last Saturday after the borough had barricated the streets. The borough claims the company has forfeited its franchise by its failure to repair the streets. The company, with snow plows, knocked down the barricades and two street car men were arrested.

At the hearing before Judge Frank E. Reader today, Thompson Bradshaw appeared for the company, and former Judge George Baldwin for the borough.

On May 1 the borough notified the company to repair its tracks within 10 days or traffic would be stopped.

TRYSTING PLACE DESCRIBED IN JELKE SUIT

Divorcee Says Bride Met 'The Major' on Her Honeymoon

NEWPORT, R. I., May 16.—An illustration of the apartment in Birmingham, Ala., which, she testified, was occupied by Mrs. Eugenia (Neenie) Jelke, and a mysterious "major," was drawn in court today by Mrs. Wagner Bailey, Birmingham real estate operator. She was a witness for F. Frazier Jelke, 52-year-old Wall street broker, in his divorce suit against his wife, Mrs. Jelke, 26, who brought a counter-suit.

During cross-examination of Mrs. Bailey, Ernest Matthews, of Birmingham, her personal attorney, and J. Von Peterson, head of a New York detective agency, were asked to leave the courtroom.

Reports that Mrs. Jelke had demanded $225,000 to settle their differences out of court were denied by her lawyer, George P. Slade. Jelke told reporters:

"I won't settle anything. I'm going to bat with the suit. My wife has a mania for money and clothes."

DESCRIBES APARTMENT

The Alabama apartment, Mrs. Bailey said, was in the apartment house of Mrs. Effie Hartman. The latter was convicted by federal authorities of selling narcotics, and also sold liquor, Mrs. Bailey testified.

The divorce suit of Jelke and the counter-suit by his 26-year-old wife has gripped Newport's Four Hundred, and the vanguard of this summer resort's vacationists, along with permanent residents, crowded the courtroom.

Mrs. Bailey resumed the stand today after testifying to seeing Mrs. Jelke and "the Major" enter a room in the Birmingham apartment house in January of 1931. The Jelkes had been married less than a month then and were honeymooning at a Birmingham hotel. They lived together less than nine months and then separated.

Mrs. Bailey said Mrs. Jelke and "the Major" shut the door and stayed in the room about an hour and a half. She said:

"The room was disordered when they left."

SPYING ON FRIEND

The reason for Mrs. Bailey's presence at the apartment house, she explained by saying she went there "to see if a gentleman I was interested in was there meeting a certain woman."

She was asked:

"Were you afraid the gentleman was meeting Eugenia Woodward (Mrs. Jelke)?"

"Oh, no. He wasn't after her."

Mrs. Bailey said she had known Mrs. Jelke by sight for 15 years, but didn't know at that time she was a bride.

Henry Weston, a New York detective, and John Manning, a taxi driver, yesterday told of seeing Mrs. Jelke and "a tall man with a mustache," leaving a New York apartment in August of 1932. They drove off in a small coupe and Manning and Weston followed them to Long Island City, where they lost the trail in traffic, they testified.

SEEK NEW RULE ON BEER SALES

Some modification may be made in the local rule which forbids any person convicted of a crime within the last three years receiving license to sell beer, according to Deputy County Treasurer A. E. Anke.

Further interpretation of the law regarding this point has been sought in Harrisburg, Anke said today.

Protest against a certain brewery in the Pittsburgh district using nonunion-made bottles has been lodged with the Central Trades Council by Albert C. McLaughlin, a director of the Glass Bottle Blowers' Association, he announced today.

McLaughlin, in making public the protest, said the Pittsburgh Brewing Company is not involved and has co-operated with the union ever since beer-making operations were resumed at its plant.

DEFENSE DUE IN RIOT TRIAL

Twenty-five defendants, the largest array tried together in the local criminal courts in many years, expected to begin their defense against riot charges late today before Visiting Judge S. L. Reed, of Cambria County.

The state had about 75 witnesses under subpena, but Assistant District Attorney Chauncey Purger did not expect to call all of them.

The trial grew out of the so-called Rankin riot of unemployed last April 12, when police, county detectives and deputy sheriffs put to rout a crowd, led by Valentine Delle Done, an alleged agitator, which stormed the Rankin High School.

IN COME CLUE IN DUAL KILLING

NEW YORK, May 16.—(Universal.)—A secret source of income which permitted Lee Weinstein, on the $35 salary he received from the aged Edward Ridley, to maintain two households, drive a $2,000 car and display signs of affluence, was sought today by police, impatient to solve the mystery murders last Wednesday of Ridley and Weinstein.

Detectives pointed to the fact that Weinstein, whose body was found beside that of his eccentric millionaire employer in the latter's dingy sub-cellar office, paid $18 a week for the room he and his wife occupied in a midtown hotel, as "Mr. and Mrs. John E. Lee."

He also contributed to the support of the home in which he lived as a bachelor with his mother and two sisters, and a police captain revealed that Weinstein three months ago drew a thick roll of bills from his pocket and paid $2,078 for an automobile.

2 QUAKES ROCK WIDE AREA

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—(AP.)—Two sharp earthquakes awakened residents throughout the San Francisco Bay area at 3:45 a. m.

Street lights went out in Santa Rosa, 50 miles north of here, when the shocks disrupted the electric system. A few clocks were stopped and windows broken in San Francisco.

Although Prof. P. Byerly, University of California seismologist, described the shock as a "minor one," many people fled from their homes. Prof. Byerly said he was certain the epicenter was some distance from San Francisco.

In some sections of San Francisco people ran from their houses. Hundreds of students poured out of dormitories on the Stanford University campus.

TROOPS ROUT MILK STRIKERS

MILWAUKEE, May 16.—(AP.)—National Guard cavalrymen, as civilian deputies, today routed milk strike pickets at Shawano where strikers yesterday overwhelmed deputies and closed several dairy plants. In a few hours they cleared the highways after two brushes with strikers.

CHICAGO, May 16.—(AP.)—Twenty-five milk strike picketers were placed in jail at Woodstock, Ill., today when they attempted to blockade roads and prevent delivery at a Chicago shipping station by dumping several cans of milk.

KILLER'S DARING RAID SPURS HUNT

Forty Diners Unaware As Bandit Leader Seizes $300

With the same daring that has characterized his criminal career, John Maug, gangster-killer, was believed to have led a newly-formed mob in a bandit raid upon the Webster Hall Coffee Shop, Fifth avenue and Dithridge street, early last night.

Mrs. Helen Loevenich, 28, the cashier, immediately identified Maug's picture as that of the bandit who pressed a revolver against her side as he rifled the cash register of $300.

FLEE IN ROADSTER

Before any of the 40 diners was aware, Maug and two accomplices slipped out of the restaurant and hurried to an automobile, at the wheel of which a man believed to be Edward Turpack, escaped convict pal of Maug's, awaited them. The car was described as a roadster with a rumble seat. Its license number was not obtained.

The man identified as Maug walked up to the cashier and, shielding the revolver from view of the diners, ordered Mrs. Loevenich to keep still.

As the leader looted the register, Alice Riddle, of 325 Melwood street, a waitress, started for the door leading to the lobby. Quietly, the man on guard ordered her not to move.

IDENTIFIES MAUG

After the thugs fled to their automobile, Mrs. Loevenich ran into the lobby and notified the manager. Several police radio cars scoured the district but found no trace of the gunmen.

When police showed Mrs. Loevenich a picture of Maug and the three men with whom he escaped from the Western Penitentiary, she identified Maug as "the man who threatened her with the revolver and rifled the register."

Maug's latest appearance was flashed to police throughout the city and the search for him and his pal, Turpack, once again grew tense.

The weather continues cloudy over the Upper Ohio Valley and eastward over the Middle Appalachians to the Middle Atlantic coast, and light to moderate showers have occurred over these districts and over the central valleys, as a result of relatively low pressure over the Upper Ohio Valley (Cleveland, 29.88). A trough of low pressure appears over the Far West, with centers over Saskatchewan (Swift Current, 29.70), and over the plateau (Tonopah, Nev., 29.72), with scattered showers, mostly light, in portions of these districts. The weather is mostly fair over the plains and the upper Mississippi Valley, over New England, the northern Lake region and the Southern Rocky Mountains this morning. Temperature changes have been generally slight.

WORKER FOILS DEATH IN AIR

On a pole 40 feet above the street, a Duquesne Light Company repairman gave first aid to a fellow worker in North Negley avenue near Penn avenue, today.

George Fritz, 30, of Allison Park, was rendered unconscious when he came in contact with a 2,200-volt wire. His safety belt kept him from falling.

His companion, Michael Butchko, 27, of 146 South Sixteenth street, climbed the pole and used artificial respiration on the limp Fritz. He had regained consciousness when an aerial ladder of Engine Company No. 8 took him down. He was removed to Pittsburgh Hospital.

Fritz is a former sand lot ballplayer, well known on the North Side. His resuscitation by the prone pressure system was the second time this has been accomplished on a pole.

FIVE PAY TAXES, LEAVE JAIL

BROOKVILLE, Pa., May 16.—(AP.)—Five of seven Knox Township residents, arrested for nonpayment of taxes, were released today after friends paid their delinquencies.

Joseph Martin and Thomas Rankin still are in jail. The Sheriff says they will be held until they pay or until the boards which lexy taxes waive payment. Meanwhile, their debt to the county increases $1.25 a day—the cost of keeping them in jail.

All seven are receiving relief from the state and each contended he has no money with which to pay taxes.

W. O. Thompson, tax collector, caused the arrests in order to clear his 1931 and 1932 tax books. He says that unless his taxes are 90 per cent collected he is unable to get 1933 tax duplicates or a surety bond.

Marine Band Performs So Child May Dance

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP.)—For a little girl to dance alone on the big White House lawn, after all the distinguished guests were gone from today's garden party, the red-coated Marine Band today played a "request number."

The dancer was 9-year-old Mara Dizoppola, relative of Mrs. Roosevelt, whose day at the White House already had been replete with thrills.

In her play corner close to the "jungle gym," clear across the garden from the hundreds of fashionably dressed guests who were milling about refreshment tents, Mara started trying out little dancing steps to the music of the band.

The rhythm of "Tea for Two" appeared to fit at last, and guests began to notice the small spirite with the long curls, picking out the ruffled hem of her fluffy frock, to better to pirouette.

Somebody called Mrs. Roosevelt's attention to it, and when she had finished with her own refreshments, as the guests were leaving the grounds, the President's wife sauntered across to Mara's corner.

The musicians finished, stood up to go.

Mrs. Roosevelt said something to Mara, and the child dashed out to the bandstand. She looked up at the leader. He bent down to her. She whispered something in his ear.

The famous band sat down again, took up the instruments and played just for Mara.

Later the leader, Capt. Taylor Branson, said that what Mara whispered was, "Play something lively!" and that what the band played was "The Parade of the Gnomes."

JOB AID TAXES MAY FALL ON WAGE CLASS

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The great American middle class will bear the brunt of the $220,000,000 taxes to be raised as a part of the administration's gigantic re-employment program, under tentative plans drafted by House leaders in fiscal affairs today.

This program was advanced as an alternative to a 1 to 1½ per cent manufacturers' sales tax to pay the interest and provide a sinking fund on the $3,300,000,000 public works bond issue.

This alternative program includes:

Making dividends from stock in domestic corporations subject to normal income tax, estimated to yield $100,000,000 a year.

Tax on charges of pipe lines, including both an increase in the present rate on oil transportation charges and gas.

Levy on sugar, coffee, tea, peppers and spices.

Other taxes under consideration, in addition to the manufacturers' excise, include: Lowering exemptions for married men from $2,500 to $1,500 and single persons from $1,000 to $750, increase of the normal income tax rate on the "little fellows," and a 1-cent additional federal tax on gasoline.

The new tax bill, which President Roosevelt decided to leave to Congress, may be completed this week, according to Chairman Doughton (Dem.), of North Carolina, of the House Ways and Means Committee.

President Roosevelt plans to send a special message to Congress tomorrow urging the huge public works bond issue and creation of a partnership between the government and industry to stabilize wages, regulate production and lessen the hours of employment.

The President informed Congressional leaders who conferred with him yesterday that he will name several kinds of taxation, but will not specify any.

Although Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic leader, told the President that it would be difficult to get a sales tax through Congress, this levy will be considered.

1,400 HOMELESS IN MAINE FIRE

AUBURN, Me., May 16.—(AP.)—Restoration of a gaping hole in its New Auburn section, where 249 buildings, including the homes of one-twelfth the city's population, were destroyed by fire yesterday with loss exceeding $1,000,000, was the problem facing this city today.

The homeless, most of whom were workers in the mills of Lewiston, across the Androscoggin River, were estimated by City Manager Frederick W. Ford to number between 1,400 and 1,600.

Most of the victims, possibly three-quarters of their number, Ford estimated, had found shelter today with relatives and friends in other sections of the city. The others were being cared for by relief ayencies.

Ballentine Quits Post in Treasury

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP.)—Arthur A. Ballantine, undersecretary of the Treasury since February 13, 1932, last night left the government service, though his successor, Dean Acheson, has not yet been confirmed by the Senate.

The resignation of David Burnet, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, also took effect last night.

Factories, Steel Mills Show Increased Gains

FURNACE BLOWN IN

Additional men returned to work yesterday when No. 3 blast furnace at the Shenango Furnace Company plant in Sharpsville was "blown in." This furnace had been "down" for more than 10 weeks. Another furnace will be started at the Carnegie plant tomorrow, it was reported.

The Wheeling Steel Corporation announced that its Benwood mill, idle since the first of the year, resumed 100 per cent operation today, with the recall of 600 employes.

Significant indication that railroads are preparing for increased freight demands is given by Charles W. Galloway, vice president in charge of operations of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, announcing a number of obsolete freight cars and locomotives will be sold for scrap to Luria Brothers & Co., of Pittsburgh.

MINE TO START

Purchase of the Louise mine at Louise, W. Va., to employ 400 men as capacity is neared, was announced here today by Marshall John H. Jones and S. A. McCaskey, Jr. The mine is being reconditioned for operation under supervision of L. E. Snell. McCaskey is a member of the Allegheny County Bar Association and president of the Six [illegible] Coal Corporation. Jones is a member of a family of coal operators.

Five thousand men have returned to work in the Connellsville coke region during the last eight days, with operations reaching 50 per cent of capacity—the highest in two years.

Anchor Lite Appliance Company, of Pittsburgh, today announced there are unfilled orders totaling 7,500 for the new Crosley Shelvador electric refrigerator. This has necessitated extending the production schedule at the factory in Cincinnati, to a full 24-hour day, it was reported.

The retail automobile business in the Pittsburgh district is better than in over a year, according to distributors here. A nation-wide survey of dealer activities by Dodge Brothers Corporation shows Pittsburgh deliveries of Dodge and Plymouth passenger cars and Dodge trucks increased 136 per cent for the five weeks ending April 29, compared with the same period last year.

OIL MEN HOPEFUL

Encouraged by these signs, the oil industry in Western Pennsylvania is looking to Congressional action within the next week to untangle some of its production and distribution problems to restore a measure of business revival, according to Pittsburgh oil men.

EXPERTS STUDY INFLATION PLAN

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(INS.)—Methods of carrying out the President's inflation program so far as the Federal Reserve System is concerned, was discussed today at the quarterly meeting of the Federal Advisory Council, composed of one representative from each Federal Reserve district.

Some improvement in the general economic situation was reported.

Members of the council said banking conditions were materially better, but deposits still tied up in unopened banks presents a serious obstacle to real recovery.

Laundry Owners Meet Thursday

RADIO FOR CITY POLICE BOAT

Police radio emergency calls will now reach water as well as land, for the police boat patroling the three rivers will be equipped with radio Sunday, according to Benjamin Marshall, assistant superintendent of police.

The river patrolman, Charles Snyder, has 16 city-operated bathing beaches under his supervision, ranging from Sixty-second street on the Allegheny River and Brown's Bridge on the Monongahela to the city limits on the Ohio River.

PENSION DEFEAT LAID TO BOSSES

Judge Ralph H. Smith said at a meeting of the Washington Heights Board of Trade last night that Pennsylvania lost the opportunity to vote on old age pensions because of blind leadership of representatives who raised "the almighty dollar" above human rights and social responsibility.

Judge Smith said, however, that rapid progress is being made in social legislation, and attributed "bad" politics to lack of community interest where a large majority of people do not vote.

CABARET GIRL NAMES KILLER

CHICAGO, May 16.—(AP.)—Rose Malone, a cabaret girl, identified Charles Kunowscki today as the killer of "Public Enemy" Rocco Belcastro.

The young hoodlum was found dead in an automobile yesterday, his body trussed with wire, shot through with bullets and wrapped in a burlap sack.

Kunowscki was arrested in a speakeasy yesterday, and this morning Chief William H. Shoemaker, of the detective bureau, said the Malone girl had named him positively as the slayer. She is an entertainer in the Club Oakley, a West Chicago avenue night resort where Belcastro was alleged to have been shot.

Chief Shoemaker also announced that Kunoski had been identiged by witnesses as the robber who shot and killed Emil Nelson, watchman, December 23.

WHALE PUSHES LINER BACK

NEW YORK, May 16.—(INS.)—Ploughing through the sea en route from Porto Rico to New York, the 2,916-ton liner Carabobo crashed head-on with a whale, passengers said today.

The ship, upon impact with the whale, began a motion resembling a violent shimmy. Officers rushed to the side. They saw a full-grown whale struggling a few feet below the surface, its shoulder split in a gaping wound.

Capt Stephen Morris slackened power, hoping the whale would fall away. But the whale started pushing the ship and the captain brought the Carabobo to a stop and ordered "full sped astern."

After the ship had backed nearly half a knot, the whale disengaged itself and disappeared.

What Are You Going To Do About It?

One racket that makes other rackets sinister and deadly is the firearms racket as it is carried on in this country.

There is no such a racket in Europe. Over there, when anybody wants to buy a pistol, he has to go to a regulated place of sale.

His fingerprints are taken, and put on record with the police.

At the same time, bore markings on bullets actually fired from the weapon itself are also obtained, and filed with the authorities.

Thereafter, when the pistol kills somebody, the police have TWO MARKED BULLETS as evidence—one from the victim, and one in their own files.

They know at once what weapon fired the bullets, and the fingerprints tell them to whom the weapon belonged.

Moreover, in Europe, if anybody tried to buy a machine gun the police would have him in custody at once.

In America deadly weapons can be bought almost anywhere. Racketeers and gangsters can get legal pistol permits more easily than honest citizens. And machine guns are bootlegged across the country for gangsters to wage their battles on the streets or to perpetrate their Valentine Day massacres.

This is a racket that menaces innocent lives. Frequently, in our greatest cities, unoffending men and women—even children at play—have been mercilessly shot down.

The firearms racket is a racket that must be stopped.

What are you going to do about it?

MAYOR RENEWS RACKET PLEDGE

Mayor John S. Herron made two appearances in Squirrel Hill last night, first at the regular meeting of the Squirrel Hill Board of Trade and later at a Fourteenth Ward Republican Club rally in the Morrowfield Hotel.

In both addresses the Mayor shunned political comment, declaring that he was not appearing as a candidate. He confined his speeches to the financial condition of the city and of progress made.

He told the traders he would not attempt to change the city overnight and declared there would be no connecting link between public officials and rackets insofar as he could prevent it.

20 Nurses in Class To Receive Diplomas

Twenty members of the Presbyterian Hospital School for Nurses will receive diplomas next Tuesday night at exercises in the First Presbyterian Church.

Judge H. Walton Mitchell, member of the board of trustees; the Rev. Dr. Herbert B. Hudnut, pastor of the Bellevue Presbyterian Church, and Dr. C. C. Mechling, of the hospital staff, will participate in the commencement.

2 FACE COURT IN AID RACKET

The Better Business Bureau won twice and lost once as its crusade against business racketeers brought three men into Central Police Court today.

Fined $25 each for soliciting funds without a city license, Leroy McCarthy, 29, of 905 Moore street, and John A. Stahlman, 33, of 2038 Chalfant street, were held for court today on charges of false pretense.

Jacob Weiner, 54, of 6301 Morrowfield avenue, arrested Saturday on charges of advertising a sale in his clothing store at 709 Homewood avenue as a constable's sale when it wasn't, was freed.

CALL MITCHELL 'ROBBER' IN TAX TRIAL

posed to owe the money they received to the company.

"This explanation was to evade income tax payments and to befuddle the stockholders. The recipients never intended to pay the money back."

Earlier Medalie had labeled the defendant's sale of 18,300 shares of stock to his wife "A sham and a pretense." Medalie continued:

"The representation of such a sale was false and intended to deceive the government to save the private property of the defendant.

"The defendant wrote a letter to his wife and she wrote a letter back to him. By these communications it was pretended a sale had taken place.

SHARES REPURCHASED

"It was intended to pretend that Mrs. Mitchell bought the 18,300 shares of National City Bank stock and Mitchell bought it back at $212 a share.

"The transaction was so unreal that the tax stamps were not paid for on the stock transaction.

"To show how unreal this transaction was—the 18,300 shares of stock were in the block of 53,300 shares in the possession of J. P. Morgan & Co. for a loan of $6,000,000. The stock was put up with Morgan as collateral and Mitchell—not Mrs. Mitchell, mind you—paid the interest on the loan."

When Mitchell bought back the stock from his wife at $212, the stock was selling for $40 a share, according to Medalie. He added:

"And Mitchell claimed a loss of $2,800,000."

He added that Mrs. Mitchell had 500 shares of National City Bank stock—her own stock—which she treated as separate from the 18,3000 shares. Medalie declared:

"Perhaps Mrs. Mitchell did not understand the transaction, but certainly the head of one of the largest investment and banking concerns in the world understood what he was doing.

"He was attempting to defraud the United States government out of a tax payment honestly dut it."

Mellon Tax Inquiry Heads U. S. Drive for Millions

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(INS.)—Investigation of income tax evasions by Attorney General Cummings may result in the recovery of hundreds of millions of dollars, Representative McFadden (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, declared today as the Department of Justice moved to study the tax payments of financiers and financial houses of Wall street.

Charges similar to those made against former Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon and his associates have been lodged with the Department of Justice, McFadden declared. He added:

"The charges concerning Mellon income tax returns are only the first of many to be submitted to the Department of Justice. There is the possibility of the recovery of hundreds of millions of income taxes which have been evaded during the Mellon-Mills administration of the Treasury."

LAWRENCE REIDY

MOTHER MEETS GROWNUP SON

When Mrs. Loretta Reidy embraced her son, Lawrence, on a station platform here Sunday, it was no ordinary Mother's Day greeting.

The two had not met since the day, 24 years ago, when Lawrence, as a baby, was taken from Mrs. Reidy's arms.

She was told later he had died, she says.

Residing with his stepmother at 214 Lime street, West End, he tried unavailingly to locate his mother until a friend, Joseph Romeres, of Reedsdale street, drove him to Columbus, where records revealed her address, at the house of his birth, in Cleveland.

She came to see him for the first time Sunday.

Bringing Up a DAUGHTER Has Its Problems!

Even Wealthy Parents Often Fail to Raise Their Daughters in Girlish Innocence—Despite Every Precaution

Mlle. Arlette Boucard, 16-year-old daughter of a wealthy physician who spared no expense since the day his child was born to safeguard her against the wickedness of the world—yet did not do it successfully PARENTS who try to shield their daughters from contaminating influences know what a difficult task they have set out to do. Some girls simply cannot be kept from learning things they should not know.

Even wealthy parents who do everything they can to bring up their daughters in girlish innocence, are confronted with the same problem. All the precaution money can buy is to no avail.

It Seems Incomprehensible!

A wealthy physician recently learned where and how his young daughter found out many things that had been carefully omitted from her education. Complete details are revealed in an article in next Sunday's American Weekly.

MRS. PINCHOT SPURS WAR ON SWEATSHOPS

HARRISBURG, May 16.—(AP.)—Studying letters from girl garment workers, together with information she gathered personally, Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the Governor, last night said she is analyzing the "sweatshop" situation in Pennsylvania.

She said she has not considered the advisability of asking for a special legislative session to enact laws covering child labor, minimum hours and minimum wages, adding that the past session knew of conditions.

Gov. Pinchot meanwhile lashed as "a sweatshop" bill, the Turner "economy" measure which awaits his promised veto.

STORMY CRUISE

The bill, designed to cut state government costs, was laid on the Governor's desk after a stormy cruise through the Legislature. Pinchot said:

"It wipes out the Board of Mediation from the Department of Labor and Industry and the general appropriation bill gives it no money.

"The intention of the organization is perfectly clear. House bill 22 (sponsored by Representative Ellwood J. Turner, Delaware), is a bill in aid of sweatshops and that is one reason why it will be vetoed."

Although backed by the Republican state organization as a measure to cut governmental expenses, Pinchot calls it a "fake economy bill."

It proposes economies by eliminating boards, bureaus and commissions, and fixes $4,000 a year as the maximum salary for state officials unless a higher salary specifically is provided by law.

Assailing the general appropriation bill, Pinchot said the Legislature "has done everything possible to pile up trouble, which will cost hundreds of times the immediate cash saving." He added the Assembly was the "most extravagant in history in terms of the money it spent itself."

ILLINOIS FIGHT

CHICAGO, May 16.—(AP.)—The Illinois woman's joint Legislative Council Forum, composed of representatives of leading women's organizations, has taken up the battle against sweatshop labor.

After hearing a report by the Illinois Joint Committee on Industrial Standards which showed among other things that 79 per cent of women in Chicago employed in trades, factories, restaurants and hotels make less than 25 cents an hour and 24 per cent less than 10 cents. They passed two resolutions.

One called upon Gov. Horner to introduce immediately as an administration measure a bill setting up wage bureaus to determine fairness in wages and hours in various industries.

The second asked the Governor to take the lead in seeking a conference of neighboring states to agree to a uniform minimum wage and miximum hour legislation.

'Most Scholarly'

WINS TRIBUTE AS SCHOLAR

John J. Kennedy, Jr., of 1080 Shady avenue, is the most scholarly student at Yale, his senior classmates in Sheffield Scientific School have decreed.

Honors of this kind are not new for the son of the vice president of the National Tube Company. As a freshman at Yale he was one of 10 to win a charm presented by the Yale Club of New York to the 10 highest freshmen.

Manslaughter Jails Man 1 to 2 Years

James L. Williams, Negro, 32, of 1301 Wylie avenue, was sentenced one to two years in the penitentiary today on a charge of voluntary manslaughter. Williams pleaded guilty in connection with the death of Russell Palmer, Negro, 35, of Wylie avenue, killed in a fight over a woman.

PINCHOT SIGNS BANKING BILLS

HARRISBURG, May 16.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today signed the Sordini banking and banking department codes which increase the Department of Banking's authority and provide greater safeguards for bank depositors and stockholders.

The new codes, over which the Legislature and the Governor battled for several months, are effective July 3. They revise and replace laws which have remained intact for from 10 to 100 years.

Dr. William D. Gordon, Secretary of Banking, terms them a "tremendous forward step."

Pickup Marvel Joins Ripley Show

Julius B. Schuster, of Jeannette, has signed a contract to appear in Bob Ripley's show at the Chicago World Fair, along with Blystone, the Rice Writer, of Ardara, Pa., and a number of other Ripley Believe It Or Not finds.

Schuster's specialty is picking up baseballs, golf balls and tennis balls. He can pick up 20 baseballs, 25 tennis balls and 20 pocket billiard balls in one hand. In addition, he is a card manipulator and has entertained frequently in Pittsburgh. He plans to leave next Saturday for Chicago.

Gordon Surveys Banking Situation

HARRISBURG, May 16.—(AP.)—Surveying the banking situation in Pennsylvania, Dr. William D. Gordon, State Secretary of Banking, has written to officials of state-supervised banks which have not reopened since the banking holiday.

Dr. Gordon asks what is being done in the way of refinancing, and what other steps are being taken toward clearing up the banks' affairs.

FLOOD RECEDES IN OHIO

CINCINNATI, O., May 16.—(AP.)—Clearing skies today brought what observers believed was the end here of one of the worst May floods on record.

The Ohio River reached a crest of 54.1 feet, or 2.1 feet above flood levels. Today the flood waters were dribbling away, with heavy rains over Kentucky slowing up the decline.

CO-ED MISSING, CAR STALLED

Every police officer in the state was notified today that a pretty 19-year-old Duquesne co-ed was missing.

She is Rosemary Wurdack, a senior in the school of pharmacy. She left her home at 202 Bonvue street this morning driving an automobile, but did not arrive at the school.

As this is final examination day at the school, Dean Muldoon questioned her absence. Her parents were alarmed at her disappearance. The city and state police were notified to be on the lookout for Miss Wurdack.

Their efforts were in vain, for the missing co-ed arrived on the Duquesne campus shortly before noon, saying the car had broken down, detaining her.

ORDER DR. KING BACK JOB CLAIM

HARRISBURG, May 16.—(INS.)—A writ was issued by the State Supreme Court's prothonotary here today for Dr. Clyde L. King to show by what authority he is entitled to the chairmanship of the Public Service Commission.

Dr. King, whom Gov. Pinchot ignored in making reappointments to the Public Service Commission after the Senate adjourned without action on five names, must answer before May 22. By appointing C. Jay Goodnough chairman, the Governor claims he removed Dr. King automatically.

Auto Liability Bill Signed by Pinchot

HARRISBURG, May 16.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today had signed the Buckman bill requiring motorists whose licenses have been suspended or revoked to show proof of their financial responsibility before their licenses are renewed. The measure is effective January 1, 1934.

The measure describes financial responsibility as sufficient cash or a proper insurance policy which will permit the motorist to pay $1,000 for property damage, $5,000 for death or injury of one person and $10,000 for death or injury of more than one person.

ALL-BRAN RELIEVED HIS CONSTIPATION

Delicious Cereal Brought New Health to Mr. Bartholomew

We quote from his voluntary letter: "I had considerable trouble with my stomach. Digestion was out of the question. I got medicine which gave me only temporary relief.

"Then I thought of taking ALL-BRAN. I started eating a cereal dishful two or three times a day.

"It has been over a year now since I ate that first dish of bran, but from that day to this I have had the pleasure of enjoying the proper functioning of the digestive organs.

"Thanks to ALL-BRAN. I still eat it regularly and like it better all the time."—Lester Bartholomew, Cadillac, Mich.

Constipation is usually due to lack of "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to promote elimination. ALL-BRAN supplies both, as well as iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Certainly this food is more natural than taking harmful patent medicines. Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of constipation. With each meal in chronic cases, If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

'BILL' LEARNS MORE FACTS ABOUT FLYING

Solo Pilot's License First, Ambitious Youth Finds

WIN YOUR WINGS
Installment No. 2.

Bill mounted the steps and found a door at the top marked "Department of Commerce—Airways Division." Entering he was greeted by the inspector.

"Good Morning—What's on your mind?"

"I came out this morning to learn to fly, but a pilot downstairs told me I would have to get a physical examination and to find out from you how to go about it."

"Here's the doctor's address," he continued. "What license are you going to try and get?"

"I want to be a pilot, but just what is the difference between the various kinds of licenses?"

SOLO LICENSE

"First of all there's the solo pilots license. All you need is 10 hours of solo flying to be eligible for it. As most people require 6 or 8 hours of dual instruction before they can solo, it usually means about 18 hours in the air before you can pass the test."

"Of course, with a solo license your activities as a pilot are restricted. You can fly yourself anywhere you please, but you can't fly commercially or take anyone except a licensed pilot with you."

"It's just a matter of experience, if you go to an approved school."

"What's an approved school?"

APPROVED SCHOOL

"The requirements for a fully approved transport flying and ground school call for at least three different types of airplanes; all pilots who instruct must hold instructors' licenses, which means that they have to pass examinations on their ability, not only to fly, but also to impart their knowledge to students."

Bill was puzzled. He asked:

"Well, how can you tell an approved school from an unapproved school?"

"Just ask to see their approval certificate."

"I don't see why all schools aren't approved."

"Because in the majority of cases the ones that aren't approved can't come up to the standards required to secure an approval certificate."

"Does the kind of instruction you get make a lot of difference?" asked Bill.

INSTRUCTION ESSENTIAL

"If you are planning on aviation as a career remember that your training is your meal ticket. What I mean is after you have graduated and are looking for a job you are going to be asked what kind of airplanes you have flown, what ground school instruction you received, what school you went to, how much you know about meteorology, can you navigate, do you know anything about radio, and so on. Now, if you have only flown a low powered training plane, and have not had ground school instruction, you can see that your future employer is not going to be too enthusiastic about letting you go out and fly his brand new 450 h.p. mail job."

"I see now," said Bill.

"Now you had better run off downtown and get your physical," the inspector concluded. "So that you will be all ready to start flying tomorrow."

"Fine," replied the boy rising, "and I hope to see you again soon."

When your list of questions and answers is complete, send them to the "Win Your Wings" Contest Editor, Sun-Telegraph, Telegraph Square, Pittsburgh, together with an essay of not more than 250 words on "Why I Want to Fly."

Questions and answers must be accompanied by essay.

Radio Elite Millionaires In Dreams

By AIRCASTER

Recently this column, following a brain-storm with a million dollars as the nucleus, submitted the question "What would you do with a million?" to a number of the radio elite, reporting the resultant revelation of secret ambitions herewith. Frinstance:

Budd Hulick would cannily invest it and try to live off the interest.

Barbara Maurel—put half into securities, donate one-quarter for the education of worthy musical talent and toss the remainder into travel and a Long Island farm.

Marge Damerel, Jeannie Lang, Morton Downey and Kate Smith all have yens for country homes; Little Jack Little, a ranch in Arizona, and Guy Lombardo, to become another Gar Wood.

Elsie Hitz would start an experimental little theater, while Freddie Rich and Fred Waring lean toward the development of music . . . and David Ross would devote it entirely to the education of worthy, but financially handicapped, young people.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Zoological notes: The owner of Virginia, the wandering alligator, Dave Bendix, says that they couldn't find her any sooner because of the rain. Alligators always hide when it pours.

Our turkey trot was successful. The missing gobbler from Glen Caladh street came back home—unroasted.

Nanny, the goat Globe Trotter, sniffed suspiciously at the microphones and then ba-aa-d, "Aw the heck with it" and proceeded to chew on the wires.

Good news for William Dolan. A kind hearted reader, who wishes to remain anonymous, has donated that artificial limb you wanted. The Sun Telegraph truck will deliver it to you.

I know a listener, unemployed and needy, a recent victim of a paralytic stroke, who could use a wheel chair for which some one has no more use.

Brookline residents are cheered by the return of Patrolman Alex Hogel to his old familiar beat after a 10-month absence. A favorite with school children and business men alike this guardian watchdog was injured in a motor accident last July.

Ed—Aid-de-camp, according to Dr. Vizetelley, may be pronouncer both ways. The Anglicized version is accepted although the French sounds a bit tonier. Now do I have to stay in after school?

Mrs. ———, Butler—Sympathize with you but as noted before we have stopped substituting for cupid. If you look like the picture you won't need any help.

FAR AHEAD IN QUALITY

This de luxe Majestic is America's outstanding value in a big but economical 2-door refrigerator. Low price, convenient terms. Note these quality and convenience features:—Electro-Sealed COLD DOME, guaranteed 3 years; Shelf area, 16.4 sq. ft.; 105 ice cubes, 5 trays; Economy of operation unsurpassed by any electric refrigerator with equal food-storage space.

Majestic can offer you this remarkable guarantee because Majestic design and construction make possible such a guarantee.

See the Majestic Electro-Sealed COLD DOME. This dome of steel fused to steel encloses the heart of refrigeration—the motor and compressor. Within its walls, which dirt, dampness, and abuse cannot penetrate, the refrigerating unit runs in a bath of oil—good for a lifetime of wear.

In ordinary refrigerators the vital mechanism is exposed. No matter how good it is, in time it must suffer from that exposure. No refrigerator with exposed mechanism attempts to match Majestic's unconditional 3-year guarantee on the Electro-Sealed COLD DOME.

Compare guarantees. And compare prices—but don't be misled by apparently low prices on unendorsed refrigerators. You will discover that Majestic Refrigeration costs from $35 to $75 less than ordinary hermetically sealed refrigerators—and actually no more, size for size, than the exposed-mechanism type.

If you are interested in longer-lasting, better refrigeration—and greatest value for your money—be sure and see Majestic!

CAMAY THE SOAP OF BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Just What She Wanted

Mrs. A. was giving up housekeeping and was selling her furniture. Mrs. B. needed a few extra pieces to complete her scheme of decoration. A little classified ad in the Sun-Telegraph brought the two together to their mutual satisfaction. If you could use some extra furniture now is the time to buy it.

Things I Never Knew Till Now

('Tis Folly to Be Wise)

That you can tell how fast you're traveling on a train this way: Every time the car passes over a rail joint there is a click. Count the clicks in 20 seconds, and you have the number of miles the choo-choo is going per hour. (Asking the conductor is much easier.)

That of the 30 billions of people who have inhabited this earth, only 5,000 names are remembered by man. (What's your name?)

That a potato stuck into an exhaust pipe will stall a car—and they won't know who did it! (That's the devil in me.)

That broken down saddle horses are sold to the zoo—and then slaughtered to feed the lions.

That running water will make a canary whistle.

There there is said to be an infallible system for beating the dice. (Gosh, if it weren't for the readers I'd be a dunce.)

That knock-kneed people have to have their pants pressed oftener. (I could have said "more often" but then you'd say I was ritzy).

That if you hold the muzzle of an army automatic against the palm of the hand, it won't go off. (Look that that dope: he's trying it!)

That if you see a New York cop carrying his stick in his right hand he is breaking a rule. (And if he has a blackjack, you can arrest him!)

That only 3 per cent of the people are truthful.

That if you're a man, and your brain weighs less than 37½ ounces (35½ in women), then you're an idiot!

That this line should be about 14 inches away from your orbs if your eyesight is as good as you think it is.

That is will soon be possible for airplane passengers to make phone connections anywhere here and abroad.

That about 30,000 women in N. Y. are homeless.

That nobody can prove that the bewhiskered George Bernard Shaw wears a necktie. (Aren't I the humoron?)

That President Roosevelt used slang at least three times in his last radioratory. (And some people sneer because we do.)

That yawning is caused by temporary deficiency of the air in the lungs. And by Broadway shows. (Oh, all right—and by columns.)

That the stovepipe hats were first introduced by Indians, who punched the tops out of them the very first thing—to get complete ventilation. (Musta been swell on rainy days, too.)

That the planes are safe, they tell you. So are the railroads, which had but one person killed in accidents last year.

That Napoleon's hand-scribbling was frightfully illegible. Some of his letters to Josephine were taken for maps of the war zones.

That Washington is supposed to have been bled to death by doctors, a practice among medicos when they knew of no cure.

That Evelyn Crowell, of the Paradise, says if your fingers can be bent back, even a little, you are two-faced. (Hers do.)

That an actor who, not too long ago, was a star in the cinemas recently took a job to bark like a dog in a flicker.

That there's an old law still on the books in Pennsylvania making it illegal to carry a gun to a wedding. (Thank heavens!)

That among other things, the American Flag stands for "freedom." (Yet many American flags are made in U. S. prisons!)

That if you write or spell badly you know what you are? Well, you're nothing but a cacographer! (Or an old Cac!)

That in 1894 a man was given 204 years in the hoosegow for kissing gals on the streets. He'll be out in 2098.)

That Loeb, of the Leopold-Loeb slaying team, conducts a correspondence course in languages from jail.

That George Jean Nathan says it often takes him three hours or four (after imbibing) to accumulate dignity.

That this is the best of the novelettes: He was emotional. He resolved to keep a firm grip on himself. The gal was alluring. He compromised. He kept a firm grip.

That you probably won't even go to the bother of thanking me for wising you up to this delicious recipe. It's the grandest of the laughing soup combinations. Lookee: Four parts gin—three parts French Vermouth. One part lemon and lime juice plus one teaspoonful of sugar. (Four of these and you make love to your own wife!)

And that Bermuda is said to be the only country that has no snakes.

Miss Ulric Star In Nixon

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Lenore Ulric, with the aid of plenty of wise-cracking lines, and without much help from the play itself, scored a personal hit in Wilson Collison's new comedy-drama, "Hard-Boiled Angel," before a near-capacity audience in the Nixon last night. Although the new venture does give Miss Ulric opportunity to do the blase type of female she always portrays so well, it appears, after all is said and done, that she still is afflicted with the play-trouble that has pursued her since the demise of "Lulu Belle," and which was evident in "Social Register," and also in "Pagan Lady."

"Hard-Boiled Angel" is appropriately titled. Its central character is Angel Carson, played with brilliance by Miss Ulric. The girl Angel is one of those anomalies of life who seem to be named Pansy or May Blossom by sentimental mothers who cannot foresee that old Father Time, who is nothing of a poet, may turn the bud into an altogether different type of botanical specimen. Thus Angel is just about the opposite of angelic. She likes stories—snappy ones—and, by her own admission, she is about as close to being a spotted lily, and not be one, as is possible. She is loose in everything except in the quality virtuous purity—and that she proclaims is intact.

ANGEL KNOWS ABOUT LIFE

All this just to limn the character of a girl, who knows about all there is to know about life, who is a flip-cracker supreme—"a Mona Lisa who wore out her soles"—a hard-boiled dame, but, at heart an angel in truth. So if Miss Ulric gets that idea sticking in your mind, and she does, and gives you a laugh with the flippancies with which Mr. Collison has endowed the play, and a flash or two of the Ulric emotional power, what else could be asked—except possibly a better play? Even the pertness, which is the saving grace (?) of the piece, is not always palatable, some of it being rather gross.

The play itself is of the model that has several persons of varied character brought together unexpectedly and just having things adjust themselves. Thus, when an airplane has to make a forced landing and its passengers take refuge in an abandoned mountain cabin, we find them to be Angel, a missionary bound for China; a novelist and his wife, bound for the same country, and the wife's sweetie, just going to see them off, and the pilot.

OPINIONS ARE VARIED

The missionary thinks Angel is a fallen woman, the wife thinks she is a "creature," and the men think she is what she is. The novelist sees her as an honest person, with no false front, and the one person who has observed the situation between himself, his wife and his friend. The pilot thinks she is about right, and the friend of the couple is not much impressed either way. Seeing how things lie, Angel tries to straighten matters out, and is rewarded by a bullet in the shoulder, fired by the husband, intended for his wife. She also gets the pilot—and that isn't so bad either.

The company is well balanced, with Paul Kelly as the capable pilot, who knows dames, but regards passengers as just passengers, so what business is it of his what they do? Catherine Dale Owen, of the movies, is the wife and Walter Armitage gives a sincere portrayal as the troubled husband. Henry Daniell and Jane Ferrell play the other two roles.

A note to the director—two persons scarcely could drink a quart of gin in five minutes, and show no more signs of intoxication than Angel and the pilot do—at least not bathtub gin.

Three Bidding For Connie

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, May 16.—Three studios are bidding it up for Constance Bennett, whose RKO contract shortly comes to an end.

Connie told me this. Also that she still intends to retire from the screen in a year and a half.

"By that time," she said, "Henry and I will have been married for three years. He came to live in Hollywood, where my work was. It is only fair that we should go to France and live where his people are.

"I could never stay here, anyway, after I quit the screen, or any other place where I had led such a busy life. Of course, I never intend to be idle. I love interior decorating, and I might start a style shop.

"As for my eventual home, I expect it will be in the south of France. There, it's only an overnight trip to most of the gay places of the world. Hollywood is 10 days away from anywhere."

None of these plans, Connie admits, are iron-bound. A year and a half is a long time. The Marquis de la Falaise might get interested in Hollywood film-making. She might want to remain longer in screen work. Time will tell.

Meanwhile, she wants rest. For nine days, the star had been suffering from a severe cold. The slim Bennett figure has lost several pounds.

And there are rumors afloat she may not even make that last picture for RKO.

Marion Davies new picture, "Peg O' My Heart," was a hit in its showing before the Hollywood press. It's really the best thing the star has ever done, a tender, whimsical story, well acted and beautifully scored. Herbert Stothart shows in "Peg" what music can do for a picture. His song, "Sweetheart Darlin'," is lovely and plaintive. Nacio Herb Brown has composed another sweet melody in "I'll Remember." Here is a film that will make new friends for the star. In New York, it will open in the Capitol Theater on the nineteenth. Chicago will see it at the same time. Los Angeles probably a little later. Take a tip and see "Peg O' My Heart." You'll like it.

Get ready, America. Mae West, buxom star of "She Done Him Wrong," will tour the whole country, making personal appearances, as soon as she finishes her new picture. . .

Comedy With Music Booked by Cinema

"Be Mine Tonight," English picture with music in which a featured artist is Kiopura, prominent European tenor, will be the attraction in the Avenue Cinema, opening Thursday. It is a story of a singer on a stolen vacation, whose companion is mistaken for him, leaving him free to enjoy himself in his own way, which includes romance resulting from a flirtation. Incidental to the action are noted operatic arias that are part of the story, as well as a theme song, "Tell Me Tonight." Sonnie Hale, English comedian, and Magda Schneider, continental ingenue, are in the cast.

Optimism is Evident In Film Circles

HOLLYWOOD, May 16.—(INS.)—Reporting "a new spirit of optimism and enthusiasm in New York executive offices of the motion picture industry," Charles R. Rogers, independent film producer, was back in Hollywood today prepared to start immediate production of eight pictures.

Local Revue Sunday

"Pittsburgh on Parade," third annual production composed entirely of talent from the Pittsburgh territory, will be seen at 8:30 o'clock next Sunday night in the Stanley. The production is under the personal direction of W. S. Scott, manager of the Stanley, formerly of the Palace and Capitol theaters, New York. It will be seen for one performance only in Pittsburgh and will then be routed into other Warner theaters in this territory. In addition to the musical production the show next Sunday night will have a first-run feature picture.

Among those who will participate are Catherine Marshall, Doris Timmons, Jack Fuge and Charlotte Timmons, who won the contest in the Kenyon theater; Phyllis Bateman and Eleanor Barno, from the Rowland; Lefty Keenan, singing newsboy, and the Allegheny Mountaineers, from the Arsenal; Johnson High Hatters, Hollywood Blondes and Stoker Brothers from the South Hills Theater; Betty Leff and Christine and Wallace, from the Cameraphone; the Floradora Sextette and Roy Laverne and Ellen, from the Enright, and Lou Sussman and the Dobbins Sisters from the Schenley. A male chorus of 35 voices will present "Just Around the Corner," by Jerry Tigress.

By Mark Hellinger

More of the Same.

I HOPPED out to Detroit the other day to say goodbye to Frank Murphy, the new Governor-General of the Philippine Islands. I know he's going to be angry at me for writing this piece, but I'm taking my chances in that direction, For if I am unable to slip a farewell boost to one of the finest men I have ever known, I might as well give up columning altogether.

As the Mayor of Detroit, Frank Murphy became a nationally known figure. He didn't want to resign because he knows that the city needs him now more than ever. Yet he bowed before the wishes of President Roosevelt and sails shortly for the Philippines. And the very fact that he received the appointment to this most important of posts shows clearly the implicit faith that the President has in Frank Murphy.

I hadn't seen Frank in almost a year and I was shocked by the change in his appearance when I met him yesterday. He has lost some 25 pounds in spite of the fact that he was never a particularly robust man. He looked tired and worn, but the explanation is simple. When I think of what he has gone through, it is a wonder to me that he looks as well as he does.

Governing the city of Detroit under existing conditions has been a bitter and fearful strain. Here is a city that almost tripled its population in the short space of 20 years. Here is a city that made fantastic millions for a few and provided comfortable livings for the many. Here is a city that, under the prosperity flag, was far and away the most prosperous of them all.

When the crash came, Detroit was one of the first cities to be hit right between the eyes. As incomes began to shrink throughout the nation, the automobile industry felt the immediate effects. Mechanics and automobile workers of every description were laid off right and left. And the financial geniuses who had done the loudest boasting were now competing with each other to offer the loudest wailing.

Detroit, of course, will come back stronger than ever with the return of prosperity. As we continue to return to normalcy, the demand for cars will increase accordingly. And the happy day cannot arrive any too quickly for Detroiters.

As Mayor of the city, Frank Murphy had problems galore on his hands. A devoted friend of the poor and termed a semi-radical by many, his plans encountered plenty of opposition at every turn from many of the wealthy. That type of opposition, combined with a depression that was growing worse and worse, made the Mayor's job a ceaseless struggle. And the fact that he now emerges as one of the nation's greatest men is an everlasting tribute to his courage and spirit. . .

"I've never known a man in political life to be quite as unassuming as Frank. His car carries no official insignia and, while there is a siren attachment for an emergency, it is never used. Drive with him through traffic and he gives other machines the right of way. It's his nature.

The man has never made a dime out of his job, and even his enemies will admit that fact readily. He is a bachelor and enjoys a good time, yet he doesn't smoke or drink—nor has he ever seen the inside of a Detroit night club. In spite of his position, he has always occupied the same modest home in Detroit at a monthly rental of $35. He would accept but $15 a day to be the town's Mayor and turned the rest back to the city.

Accordingly, you can well imagine that the man is broke. He couldn't be otherwise—and he wouldn't be happy if he were otherwise. Because Frank Murphy is the strangest of all political figures. He believes in helping others instead of helping himself. No wonder the regulation politicians shake their heads sadly and say the man is crazy!

Frank Murphy has taken a huge task upon his shoulders. As the Governor-General of the Philippine Islands, he is sitting near the brink of several volcanoes that might erupt at any moment. He will find internal troubles there. He will find many jealous Americans. He will find much propaganda and too much intrigue. He will find Japan casting envious eyes upon his territory, and he may see the start of the next World War right under his very nose.

Yes, he faces considerable work and worry. He will labor with the eyes of a suspicious world upon him. But he'll come through. Because he's square, and honest, and decent, and real. And when that combination fails, it will be time for all of us to call it a day.

Good luck, Frank . . .

FROM Myron Egan comes the vaguely familiar tale of the bum who walked into the office of a well-known Broadwayite and told a pitiful tale of his wife and five children.

"They're starving," he cried. "I don't care about myself because I can always graft a bite here and there. But they're starving! Can you help me? I don't ask much, and if you could see their sad faces, you'd gladly give me almost anything. Can you spare me $5—for them?"

Touched by the panhandler's earnest plea the Broadwayite dug into his jeans and produced a five spot. The other man thanked him and left.

The following morning, bright and early, the panhandler was around again. And much to the Broadwayite's amazement the bum asked him for another $5.

"Are you crazy?" roared the Broadwayite. "I've never seen such nerve in all my life. What did you do with the $5 I gave you yesterday?"

The bum brightened.

"I'm glad you asked me that, mister," he enthused, "because I wanted to tell you about it. When I got home and told my wife and the kids that I had $5; they were terribly happy. My wife smiled for the first time in months, and the kids wore grins from ear to ear. You never saw such joy written on six faces in all your life.

"So, not knowing when I'd see them that way again, I rushed them over to the photographer and spent the five bucks having their pictures taken right away!" . . .

ACCORDING to the Reader's Digest, an American author named John K. Williamson recently received the following rejection slip from a firm of Chinese publishers. Those of you who ever received a rejection slip—and who hasn't—will certainly agree when I say that this is the ideal one of its kind:

"We read your manuscripts with boundless delight," wrote the Chinese firm. "By the sacred ashes of our ancestors we swear that we have never dipped into a book of such overwhelming mastery.

"If we were to publish this book, however, it would be impossible in the future for us to issue any book of a lower standard. As it is unthinkable that within the next 10,000 years we shall find its equal, we are, to our great regret, compelled to return this too divine work and beg you a thousand times to forgive our action." . . .

Indignant Working Wife Complains About Husband

Should a man help with the housework?

Don't sniff at that question. It's one of the commonest causes for riots in this 20th century, with all our new notions and new "tough spots"—and if you're not already rasslin' with it, you're lucky.

Nor, after all, can you much blame The Boys. Even if they aren't working and the Little Woman is, why should she expect them to dry dishes and dust the parlor what-not? That never was "man's work," was it? Look at Grandpa!

But, on the other hand, look also at Grandma. Did she have to bring home the bacon as well as mend the socks? So, with the world doing somesaults, just what is a "Woman's Place"—and what's a man's?

For instance, let's take Mina.

Four years ago she met Bob and they fell in love.

She had a pretty good job, as jobs go, and was getting ahead in it. Perhaps, if Bob had been going strong enough, she'd have quit and let him paddle the financial canoe. Perhaps not. But as things were, their combined salaries were just about enough to run a little home, to pay the bills, to keep up a small insurance policy, accumulate a little nestegg and have a bit left over to play on.

So they talked things over. Mina was modern. She'd rather hang on to the old job than to put off the wedding for "no telling how long while Bob was making his pile." And Bob agreed. He was modern, too; and if Mina wanted to trot downtown every day to the office, that was her affair. Neither of them wanted to spend years apart. They wanted to start out together, to work together; to build their lives together.

NO HELP FROM HUBBY

So they were married.

At first it was Simply Thrilling to Mina to sweep their very own little home, to learn to cook Bob's own favorite dishes, to wash her pretty new china and bright glassware, to lovingly pack Bob's shirts into the big dresser in the bedroom, and dust his ashes off the davenport.

But, after a while—it wasn't fun. Long days at the office. Long evenings cleaning, mending—while Bob sat calmly over his newspaper, the lord of the manor.

Why didn't he offer to help? She was tired, too. He wasn't fair! He was willing enough for her to keep on working so they could have their little home, but—he was taking it for granted that it was her job to keep that home, as well as to help keep it going.

Then finally she mustered up courage and told him how she felt. And then what?

Bob was indignant! He sweep? Pick up the laundry? Fry the steak?

IMPORTANT QUESTIONS

"That's woman's work!" he asserted indignantly. "It's no work for a man! I supposed you expected to do it, just as any other wife expects to look after her house and husband!"

And there he stood firm. Of course he did dry the dishes—a few times—but he made it plain that he was doing it as a favor, not as part of his job. And pretty soon he quit even that.

So Mina wrote a resentful, indignant letter to this department, as other Two-Job wives have written, telling her story as I've told it to you—asking:

"Is housework the woman's job, even if she hustles out just as early as Mister Husband and works just as hard as he does over a desk?

"Should a man expect, as a matter of course, that he'll be 'made comfortable' when he marries, even if that marriage couldn't have happened without the Missis working, too?

"Does a man marry to get a housekeeper—or to get a pal and a teammate to make life richer and more interesting?"

Those are the questions Mina wants answered—and that scores of other women, and men, too, want answered.

What do you think about them—and why?

Heart of a Wife -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Is Forced to Reveal Owen's Identity

At Nick's command to "shoot the works," given in a tone far different than that he had been using toward me, I braced myself as for an ordeal of torture. I did not make the mistake of counting upon Nick's patent interest in me to save me from the wrath of Tony and himself, should he decide that my story of pursuing Marion's kidnapers was false and that I was in reality trying to lure them into the territory of "Jerry," whose name appeared to be anathema to them.

"I will tell you everything I know or surmise," I said slowly, trying to make my voice impressive. "But in the first place you must believe that every word I've told you so far is the truth. I never saw or heard of this man you call Jerry, or of either of you, before tonight."

I drew a long breath, felt my mental thermometer drop at the blank silence with which Nick was listening, and went on a bit more hurriedly.

"I think it may be possible that this man we are trailing has the man you call Jerry in his employ. He had several desperate men associated with him in this kidnaping, and if this man Jerry is a gangster, and this road leads to his home, then you may be right about Mr. Owen's going there.

"But can't you understand that I have nothing to do with this Jerry? The only thing I want to do is to rescue my little friend from this man Owen. Please believe me!"

NICK OFFENDED

"Where d'ye get that stuff, gangsters?" Nick said peevishly, but something in his voice loosened the band of fear around my heart. He believed me! I saw that, and I felt as if I had passed the first milestone in my journey whose objective was to rescue Marion.

"Every time high and mighty folk like you can't think of anything else to say, you talk about gangsters," Nick went on, his tone that of an aggrieved small boy. "And it's all a lot of baloney. Take this Jerry lad, now. He's a no good rat; he'd slit his mother's throat for a nickel; but he ain't no gangster. Say, I'll bet you think me and Tony are gangsters."

So taut with anxiety were my nerves, so near the breaking point, that for a horrified instant I thought I should break into hysterical laughter. Nick's characterization of Jerry, taken on conjunction with his pique at my use of the word "gangsters," was the most ludicrous thing I had heard in a long time.

But Nick was waiting for an answer and I managed to mumble a perfunctory "No, I don't think that at all," before Tony struck in.

"What did you say the bird's name was that's carried off the girl?" he asked.

ASKED HER NAME

Scorning myself for my indiscretion, yet realizing that once having uttered it, I could substitute no other name, I pretended alacrity.

"Owen; Charles Owen," I said.

"Owen," Tony repeated slowly, then spat reflectively.

"Don't think I ever heard of him," he said, "at least, not under that name. What sort of looking man is he?"

I described Owen's appearance as best I could, preparing at the same time a defense mechanism for the other questions I foresaw that he would ask.

"He might be The Frog'," he said, turning to Nick.

"And then again he might be your grandmother," Nick retorted. "It isn't his name that's bothering me. What's yours, Babe, and what's the name of the girl you're trailing?"

If I had not been prepared for the query by what Tony has asked concerning Owen, I think I still should have been warned by something silkily sinister in his voice. My instinct told me that under no circumstances must I reveal our real surnames; although an equally strong instinct warned me that in order to guard against the chance of detection, should I be confronted with Ronald or Marion in the presence of these men, I must not change our first names.

"What's the matter, Babe?" Nick asked impatiently. "Trying to think up a phony moniker?"

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Gift for Baby

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper to buy a small gift for the baby shower and a large gift after the baby comes, or should I get a large gift for the shower and none after the baby arrives?

Kindly tell me, because you are the only one that can possibly answer me. F.

I wish that I could answer you as definitely as I know you want to be answered, but no one can make a definite answer about the giving of gifts except the giver herself. It's all as you feel inclined to do.

Of course it's expected that, if you go to the shower, you will take a shower-present, but this may be as small or as consequential as you wish it to be. If you are planning to give two gifts, it might be well to make the shower gift the more important one so that the mother will know what her treasures are for the Great Treasure to come.

Birthday Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper for one to have a birthday party for a young man previous to the date of his birthday . . . about three or four days before the actual date? The date falls when it is impossible for me to have a party. If this is proper, should the birthday cake and all other proceedings be just as though it were the correct date? G.

Very often this circumstance arises, when the birthday party must be given before, or even after, the actual date of the birthday. If the birthday-guest understands and is willing to have his birthday anniversary date juggled a bit, it is entirely correct to give the party ahead of time.

And by all means have all the "fixins," birthday cake and all.

"Shut-Ins" More Apt to Be Victims of Chlorosis

Recently I wrote about anemia and described the advancement made in the cure of this disease. Today I want to tell you about another anemic condition, called "chlorosis."

Dr. Copeland

Chlorosis is a strange affliction. It occurs almost exclusively in young girls between 16 and 25 years of age. Sufferers from this disease are always city bred. The victim is usually confined to badly lighted and poorly ventilated rooms. The disease is rarely, if ever, encountered in country-bred girls, or city-bred girls who are given the benefits of fresh air and sunlight.

Chlorosis is an anemic disorder of the blood. In contrast to other forms of anemia, the victim of the disease has a greenish pallor. It is for this reason that chlorosis is often spoken of as the "green sickness." The complexion at times may have a peculiar yellow-green tinge.

Breathlessness, palpitation of the heart, constipation, dyspeptic disorders, loss of appetite, and fever are other frequent symptoms. Fainting is common, and marked emotional and nervous disturbances may complicate the picture. In some instances the face, hands and ankles become swollen.

Girls afflicted with chlorosis are nervous, easily irritated and extremely sensitive. Too often signs of irritability and melancholia are overlooked as possible signs of this disease. Young girls in large cities, away from home and friends, may confine themselves indoors and become susceptible to chlorosis. The social conditions and hygienic surroundings are important considerations in the prevention and cure of this peculiar form of anemia.

I am glad to say that chlorosis is not as common today as it was in the latter part of the nineteenth century. Perhaps this is due to our better understanding and appreciation to simple hygienic rules. Adequate rest, plenty of fresh air, sunlight and nourishing foods are essential for the cure, as well as the prevention of this disease.

Since most sufferers from chlorosis are victims of constipation, it is important that faulty elimination be corrected. A daily enema should be given each morning until signs of improvement are noted. Fresh fruits and vegetables, such as lettuce, celery, spinach, carrots, beets, string beans, figs, dates, raisins and prunes, should be added to the diet. These foods supply the necessary "roughage" essential for normal elimination.

Sufferers from constipation should drink six to eight glasses of water daily. All food should be slowly and carefully chewed and the meals eaten at definite and regular hours. Exercise is of value. It hastens elimination, expands the lungs and overcomes the anemic disorder. It is advisable that the doctor direct the form of exercise and determine what is most beneficial for the patient.

Answers to Health Queries

Mrs. H. C. Q.—What would account for a swelling and inflamation at the base of the finger nails? This condition has persisted since last winter. Three fingers have been infected and I have lost two nails and fear the same condition is affecting the new nail.

A.—See your doctor for examination and advice.

G. N. Q.—Are sweet potatoes fattening?

A.—Yes, if eaten in undue quantities.

Household Hints

Bran water will wash but not fade colored goods.

Iron rust on marble can be removed by rubbing with lemon juice.

Don't expect to boil cabbage, cauliflower, onions, etc., and make an odorless job of it without some ventilation in the kitchen. Have the window down at the top and up at the bottom a few inches and create some circulation.

One of the few places where one can "water" milk and have it have no effect is when cake baking. If you have insufficient milk for the cake recipe, fill out with water until the called-for amount is reached. It will make absolutely no difference in the quality of your cake, unless the cake might be just a bit lighter.

CUDDLY DOLL

Pattern No. 436.

By LAURA WHEELER

No little girl can have too many dolls. Should a little girl have enough dolls, she certainly needs more clothes for those she has. This soft, cuddly rag doll, with its pert embroidered face, has the prettiness of other dolls, and can be comfortably tucked under a little girl's arm. Its clothes are an attractive ensemble of hat and a dress with matching bloomers. The clothes are so designed that they will fit a regulation 14-inch doll. The face is embroidered, a transfer pattern being given, while the hair is made of embroidery yarn which lends itself to a variety of haircombs. How to attach the hair is included in the complete directions for making the doll and clothes.

Send 10c for this pattern to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

FRENCH BEGIN 'BUY AMERICAN' REPRISAL

Universal Service.

PARIS, May 16.—A warning that American states must expect French retaliation if they persist in a policy such as that of California's recent legislation against foreign products was contained in an anonymous advertisement published yesterday by the Paris edition of the New York Herald-Tribune.

Simultaneously, a new decree appeared in the Journal Official placing practically prohibitive import charges against certain categories of fish, notably affecting the California pilchard (Pacific sardine) canning industry at San Pedro and Monterey.

The warning advertisement, signed "An American Importing Company," pointed out specifically what California produces, and continued:

"It is logical to assume that the French Ministry of Commerce should view with alarm this new 'Buy American' law, and it is only reasonable to assume that France, even though against its better judgment, would find it advantageous to retaliate in some measure."

Efforts to reach the anonymous advertiser brought word from the newspaper that he was ill, but that he had arranged to print another such advertisement, "even stronger," later this week.

Despite the retaliation hint contained in the advertisement, an official of the French Ministry of Public Works said that France's action was "perfectly normal," pointing out that French contracts prescribe the use of French materials except when these cannot be obtained.

The French restrictive policy extends even to the colonies, the government providing that "all materials" in colonial development must be "of French origin and transported in French ships," except in cases of proved necessity approved by the minister of colonies.

REPEAL SWEEPS WYOMING POLLS

CHEYENNE, Wyo., May 16.—(AP.)—Mounting totals pointed today to overwhelming sentiment for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment in the Wyoming precinct convention held yesterday.

The results appeared to have placed the state definitely in the repeal column along with Michigan, Wisconsin and Rhode Island.

With 196 precinct conventions heard from, 397 delegates had been selected to vote for repeal in county conventions May 18 against 40 delegates pledged to vote for retention of the amendment. County after county reported no dry delegates elected.

TRENTON, N. J., May 16.—(INS.)—A drizzling rain was blamed for a light vote during the morning as voters went to the polls today to nominate delegates to a constitutional convention to decide on repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

An overwhelming selection of wet candidates was forecast for the convention, which probably will be called by Gov. A. Harry Moore for June 1. In 10 counties of the state the dry forces were unable to obtain sufficient signatures to delegates' petitions and prohibition supporters' names do not appear on the ballots in these districts.

SCHOOL HEADS OPEN PARLEY

Economy in school administration was the convention theme of the National Association of Public School Business Officials as several hundred school board executives today gathered for a four-day session at William Penn Hotel.

William C. Bruce, editor of the School Board Journal, Milwaukee, warned against setting up economies now that will prove costly in the future. He said:

"The controversies which are growing out of the retrenchment movement deal more directly with the reduction of salary schedule and with limitation of educational services. It is notable that little objection is raised against other cuts in school costs, and that nothing whatever is said concerning the discontinuance of building programs and the extremely unwise stoppage of all maintenance and repair work."

A round-table discussion of building problems is scheduled tonight. J. M. Tracy, of Rochester, N. Y., will lead the discussion.

Navy Starts Work On New Destroyer

BOSTON, May 16.—(AP.)—Work was started at the Charleston Navy Yard yesterday on the new $2,500,000 destroyer MacDonough which will take between 18 months and two years to complete.

It is to be named for Commodore MacDonough, who made a brilliant record in the war of 1812.

Injuries suffered May 7 in a fall downstairs in his home caused the death last night, in Homeopathic Hospital, of Nick Michalowsky, 56, of 1921 Wharton street, according to a Coroner's report.

Contract Bridge
How to Play How to Win

By Josephine Culbertson

Avoiding Routine Play

One of the methods of play that is drummed into the heads of beginners at the Contract table is to draw the adverse trumps so that opponents may not use their little trumps to ruff otherwise winning cards in the Declarer's, or Dummy's hand. This principle, of course, is a sound one, but the actual application of it, like that of all sound principles, is subject to many modifications and exceptions, as, for instance, in the hand below, played in a duplicate game:

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| | ♠ 9764 ♡ AK108 ◇ AK8 ♣ AK | |
| | ♠ AKQJ ♡ J9 ◇ 1973 ♣ Q93 | |

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1♠ | Pass | 3♡ | Pass |
| 3NT | Pass | 7♠ | Pass |
| Pass | Pass | | |

South's hand is not strong enough for an opening bid in Rubber Bridge, vulnerable. The justification, of course, for opening it in Duplicate is the possession of honors in the trump suit. In any event, it is far too weak to rebid, as, after opening with this hand, South's first interest is in keeping his partner from reaching any kind of a slam, if possible. However, North's holding of 6 honor-tricks with adequate trump support is too strong for him to contemplate playing the hand at anything less than a Slam, as even a Queen or two in his partner's hand makes the Grand Slam a certainty, and North's trump holding does not suggest any special dangers in the trump situation.

West's Opening lead was the 4 of clubs, which was won in the Dummy, and the suit was returned at once. Two rounds of trumps were then taken, followed by the club Queen, upon which the diamond 8 was discarded. The top honors in hearts and diamonds were then cashed, and the remaining losers disposed of through a cross-ruff.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You have a part-score of 60. What do you bid as Dealer, holding:

♠KQ8764 ♡AJ632 ◇8 ♣4

CHARGES MATE SPURNED HER FOR MOTHER

Declaring her husband refused to leave his mother, Mrs. Mary V. Shallenberger, 38, of 128 North Linden avenue, a stenographer, yesterday asked Judge Frank P. Patterson for a divorce from John M. Shallenberger, of 1145 South avenue, Wilkinsburg. She said she left him once because he would not provide a home for her, but returned. A second parting followed, she said, when she could not agree with his mother.

Mrs. Shallenberger said that when she asked him to set up a home with her his answer was:

"I cannot leave my mother."

John Latozo, of 101 Tabor street, who married a woman old enough to be his mother, asked a divorce from Mrs. Frances Lotozo, of Cambridge, Mass. He testified:

"My wife had three sons by a former marriage, the youngest of whom was 23. I was 26 when I was married, and my wife was 52. She got drunk and the sons also drank. After my wife bit me on the arm, the sons threw me out. They told me not to return. My wife drank to excess and caused me bodily harm."

2 DRIVERS HELD IN COLLISION

Elmer J. Harrison, 45, president of the Harrison Construction Company, and Lester D. Post, of 324 Fourth avenue, were held today under $1,000 bond each pending a Traffic Court hearing for reckless driving in an accident which sent a third man to the hospital.

Taken to the South Side Hospital after the collision of Harrison's and Post's cars at Carson street and Arlington avenue, John Grafe, 67, of 879 Jefferson avenue, Washington, Pa., was reported suffering severe lacerations and bruises.

He had been riding with Post, police say. Harrison lives at 2207 Beechwood boulevard.

MOOSE LODGES FINED FOR BEER

The Loyal Order of Moose, No. 51, of New Castle, and two co-defendants, Frank W. Meyer and C. E. Morrison, were ordered to pay a joint fine of $50 by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker, when a plea of guilty was entered to a charge of manufacturing and selling home brew beer. Prohibition agents seized 100 cases in the clubrooms last November.

A fine of $200 was imposed on Moose Lodge No. 255, at South Fork, Somerset County, for violating the dry law.

Ickes Explains 'Hoover' Dam Change

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP.)—Explaining reasons for changing the name of the huge power and flood control project on the Colorado River from Hoover Dam to Boulder Dam, Secretary Ickes said yesterday that former President Hoover was never enthusiastic over having it named in his hoonor.

The cabinet officer added:

"It has always been Boulder Dam to me and many others of the West long before I ever dreamed of a place in the Roosevelt cabinet. It seems to me that this enormous task should be known by its locality, 'Boulder' is certainly most expressive of the greatest job of the kind ever undertaken by man."

VOTE MACHINES GO TO FACTORY

Hauling the county's 1,100 vote machines to the Thomas Spacing Company at Glenshaw for repairs began today.

Repairing the machines is to be completed August 1 at a cost of $125,000. The machines already represent an investment of more than $1,000,000. A number of defects were discovered, and it is believed the repairs contemplated will put them in working order.

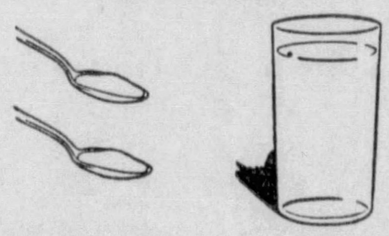
| Auto-intoxication | | Sleeplessness |

WHAT TO DO FOR IT



TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

According to many authorities, some 80% of the people of today have acid stomach. This because so many foods, comprising the modern diet, are acid forming foods.

It usually makes itself felt in headaches, nausea, "gas," "biliousness," and most frequently in stomach pains that come about thirty minutes after eating. So you can easily tell if you have it.

Now Quickly and Easily Corrected

If you do have acid stomach, don't worry about it. You can correct it in a very simple manner. Just do this. It will alkalize your acid soaked stomach almost immediately. You will feel like another person.

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia with a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

What This Does

That's all you do. But you do it regularly, EVERY DAY, so long as you have any symptoms of distress.

This acts to neutralize the stomach acids that foster your "upset" stomach, that invite headaches and that feeling of lassitude and lost energy.

Try it. Results will amaze you. Your head will be clear. You'll forget you have a stomach.

BUT—be careful that you get REAL milk of magnesia when you buy; genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. See that the name "Phillips" is stamped clearly on the label.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM:

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

PRIEST WAGING FIGHT TO SAVE COXTOWN

Father Cox acknowledges that the "Coxtown" development, his farming community on Kittanning Pike, is not working out as he had hoped. For a year it has served as a home for 40 or 50 families of the unemployed but without financial aid these families are unable to improve their own condition and Father Cox has not been able to give them much other than food and furniture.

When he launched this undertaking he had hopes of building a model community for the unemployed, giving them an opportunity to do something for themselves. A year ago he had hopes that economic conditions would change for the better. Instead, however, they became worse, funds and food became harder and harder to get. This little community needed on-the-ground leadership and management. Father Cox had no money to pay for a manager and, himself in ill health, could not give it the required attention on account of the distance from Old St. Patrick's. In the meantime the county taxes on "Coxtown" increased $300 last year, and the state is demanding modern sanitary equipment.

Father Cox, hasn't, however, lost all hope in "Coxtown." He's making a number of changes out there, weeding out some of the dissatisfied families, and replacing them with others who will agree to help themselves by planting a garden and occupying their time with the improvement of the community. He, at least, is going to continue the "Coxtown" activities throughout the summer.

In the meantime he is getting more than satisfactory results from his drive for Sun-Telegraph subscriptions. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page or is telephoned in with the request that Father Cox be given credit for it, brings to his unemployment relief fund a liberal cash commission.

MRS. BUCK'S FRIEND QUITS

NEW YORK, May 16.—(AP.)—Less than two weeks before her term was to expire, Mrs. Henry v K. Gillmore, of New York, yesterday resigned as a member of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A.

Her resignation was interpreted in some quarters as a protest against the boards' acceptance of the resignation of Mrs. Pearl A. Buck as a missionary two weeks ago.

Dr. Cleland B. McAfee, secretary of the board, said Mrs. Gillmore's letter of resignation offered no reason. He added:

"I believe she is friendly with Mrs. Buck."

Mrs. Buck resigned as a result of attacks upon her views concerning missionary work and theology.

DU PONT SCION MARRIES

WILMINGTON, Del., May 16.—(AP.)—The marriage of Victor du Pont III, 21, of suburban Montchanin, and Miss Larie Louise Hulbert, 20, of Keswick, Va., was disclosed by friends today.

They were married at Elkton, Md., Sunday night while en route to the University of Virginia, where du Pont is a student.

Du Pont's mother, Mrs. Victor du Pont, Jr., said Miss Hulbert had been a week-end guest at her home.

Audacious Girl Starts Voyage to New Guinea On a Slow Freighter

CHAPTER I.

First it had been Mexico, whence I returned the richer by the imperishable memory of certain moonwan oleanders. Next, three years later, came the Antilles, especially Martinique.

It was Martinique that implanted the love of the tropics deep in my soul. For eight months now, since my return, I had never looked at a sunset down the paved corridor of a street, or over chimney-pots, without a wrench at my heart. I had resumed my excellent job in New York. I took the 7:59 again and the nightly 5:55. I watched other commuters sleeping uncomfortably, chin on chest, gathering energy so that they could go on earning enough money to get tired out for an endless sequence of days. Girls as well as men. But I could not forget how sunset streaks a jade sky with streamers of gold and rose and wispy black over the Caribbean, or how the Southern Cross rises clear and flawless down there.

Now again, the voice was whispering, "Let's go!" And I knew the jig was up.

That night out came the Atlas. I had one general objective: to find a place as far removed from New York as was geographically possible. My special objective was some new destination that fired my imagination. Well, there was the island of New Guinea. All I knew about New Guinea was that it was a heathen, primeval country somewhere in the Antipodes. But it certainly was far enough away. It was obviously tropical. And, chiefly, no one I knew had ever heard of anyone who had been there. New Guinea touched me, and especially I wanted to see Port Moresby in Papua.

I estimated my resources. Not much—several hundred dollars, if I sold a good diamond. I parted with the stone without regret.

I would set forth aboard a freighter, for two reasons. First, because I wanted to, and second because, if you are going from the Atlantic seaboard to Australia, you take what you can get, regardless.

Followed a long succession of discouraging noon hours spent in steamship agencies and at ships' headquarters, hunting for a ship that would take me to Australia. I had a notion that Sydney would be the place from which to take my bearings. I soon discovered that freighters are sternly opposed to carrying a woman. It began to look as if I couldn't do it—not from New York.

Journey Begins

Then, unexpectedly, I found my freighter. She was bound for Australia. A month elapsed before she sailed.

Dire prognostications as to what would befall me, a lone young person on such a mad expedition, dampened my spirit not at all. I was going to shed the banalities of commonplace existence while the bloom was still on my desire. I was going to follow my heart into the horizon.

It was a prematurely hot spring day. The Brooklyn docks reeked of tar and oakum and water-rotted wood, and of a cargo known nebulously as "miscellaneous." I had been told to be aboard ship at 11 a. m. So here I was. All necessary farewells had been said the day before, when my ship should have sailed but didn't. I was glad of it. Infinitely preferable to be alone, now. I mounted the swaying gangplank to the ship's deck.

She was an 8,000-ton freighter. The decks were piled with bales and crates. Winches whirred and rattled busily. Several of the sweating crew and stevedores took time off to flash a white-toothed smile at me. Skirting an open hatch, picking my way carefully amid the cargo, I reached the little saloon. It was ugly but prodigiously clean. My cabin was ready, my luggage scattered about.

That afternoon we sailed. And I the only woman and the only passenger on this trans-Pacific freighter. Alone I leaned on the deckrail and watched the Brooklyn docks recede. I was cutting myself off from my routined world of security for I knew not what. No matter! Anyway, I had youth, superb health, and memories of other ventures that had turned out well.

Liked by Crew

Ecstasy of freedom! We passed the Statue of Liberty. Liberty meant this to me at the moment—plowing south through glory of sunsets, somber nights, and pearl-tinted dawnings to where blue waters are. I turned without regret from the most famous sky-line in the world.

To travel across the world on a freighter sounds formidable. It isn't. Personally, not being a lover of crowds, I looked upon the forced lack of multitudinous companionship as an asset. Besides, I was the star boarder on the packet, among as fine a group of British officers and gentlemen as has ever been assembled on a ship, bar none. I found out after two days that they liked me. And I found out after 40 days that they still liked me, which was much more to the point. I, of course, had expected to like them, but they had not expected to like me, they not having much use for a woman at sea.

Those officers were a sterling crowd. The master was a quiet, rather lonely man in his thirties. Across the pocket of his tunic he wore a band of striped ribbon, on the end of which I recognized the blue-and-white of the D. S. C. I never heard him raise his voice above a conversational tone, but I watched him, enthralled, one day, while he cleaned and greased three bright revolvers.

Jones, the second mate, was Welsh. He had an undershot jaw—God held the woman that tried her will against that jaw—and keen, good-humored brown eyes. He, too, came of a line of sea captains, and his life was built upon the stern, relentless code of Welsh forebears.

An incident he told me of his childhood showed the schooling of the iron man. He was a little lad when his father first took him to sea, in a windjammer. One night a storm rose, the ship wallowed in the sea, the wind tore like a mad thing, the lightning pierced the black night. The lad down in the cabin alone was terrorized. He began to cry. The father entered, slamming the door against the tempest, his sou'wester running rivers. He saw his son in tears. "What's this?" he roared. Hysterical, terrified sobs in reply. A clout over the head sent the boy reeling. "Learn, lad," bellowed the father above the tempest.

'NATE' ACCUSES CLUB HOSTESS

"Nate" Martin, brother of "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin, held for court last night by Alderman Charles E. Gibson, of 1714 Beaver avenue, on charges that he broke a night club hostess' nose because she refused to accompany him on a party, will appear tonight as a prosecuting witness against his accuser.

Miss Gloria Lee, 22, the hostess, testified that on April 29 she was ordered to go to a table in the Plaza Cafe at which Martin and several friends sat. She refused Martin's invitation to a party, and he insulted her, she testified.

Resenting his remarks, Miss Lee turned to go and Martin, she testified, struck her three times, breaking her nose and discoloring one eye. Martin was held for court in $1,000 bond on a charge of aggravated assault and battery.

Martin said he had made a counter charge against the girl before Alderman Sol Goldstein, of Murray avenue.

RATNER CHARGE QUASHED

An indictment charging subornation of perjury against Attorney H. Lee Ratner was quashed today by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in Federal Court.

Judge Schoonmaker gave as his reason that Assistant U. S. Attorney Zeno Friz, not a sworn witness, told a Federal grand jury Ratner bore a bad reputation.

The case must be presented to another grand jury, by order of Judge Schoonmaker, who Thursday refused to quash the indictment when Attorneys John Duggan, Jr., and James P. O'Connor, representing Ratner, charged Fritz improperly influenced the grand jury.

Woman Shot Twice In Row With Man

Hattie Stayton, 25, of 5231 Blair street, was in Homeopathic Hospital today with bullet wounds in her leg and thigh. Police said her assailant was John Hold, 26, of the same address, with whom she had an argument late last night. Hold is being sought. Both are Negroes.

Aged Woman Found Wandering on Street

Oakland police are trying to identify an aged woman found wandering at Fifth avenue and Craig street early today. The woman, about 60, fairly well dressed, apparently is Polish or Slavish.

After Next War They'll Look in Mirrors Again

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

If war starts it can be traced to that peace conference at Versailles.

Dress a lot of men up in gold braid, put them in a hall of mirrors and they're going to do more primping than thinking.

When the next war is over they'll have another conference, at Versailles.

If you want to know which way the cat is going to jump, make a noise like a mouse.

We hope that the next affair is one of those dances where you can say,

"Sorry, my card is filled."

SANDY'S OWNER GRANTED BAIL, NEW HEARING

Master Who Refuses To Kill Dog Freed Pending Appeal

Frank Sechan, of North Versailles Township, who was sentenced to jail yesterday for his failure to dispose of his dog, Sandy, was admitted to bail today.

Judge Frank P. Patterson late yesterday granted a writ of habeas corpus liberating Sechan pending a final hearing Friday morning.

Bail was set at $500. The petition was presented by Attorney Louis Little, retained by Mrs. Ethel Cannon, of 627 Junilla street, in her fight to save the mongrel's life.

The petition contends that by the dog law of 1927, Criminal Court has no jurisdiction in the case. The jurisdiction lies solely with the Justice of the Peace, the petition states. It also charges Sechan, at the time he pleaded guilty to keeping a ferocious dog did not understand the import of the charge. It also states that the dog is not vicious.

Judge S. L. Reed, of Cambria County, paroled Sechan for six months on condition he would dispose of the dog. Sechan didn't, and he was sentenced yesterday for contempt of court. Sandy had bitten a 3-year-old neighbor child.

PROTEGES WIN APPOINTMENTS FROM BOSSES

Capable Service Earns Slight Recognition In Job Scramble

Politics and not meritorious service had the first and last say in the selection of 14 appointees in the Detective Bureau yesterday.

Failure to complete the detective personnel by leaving two places vacant, it is said, opens an avenue to pack the police force with political workers who cannot pass the mental or physical tests of the civil service.

Appointment to the Detective Bureau does not require such tests and it has been the custom to appoint workers to the Detective Bureau for a few days, then demote them to patrolmen.

LONE 'REAL' REWARD

Of the 14 names announced after a series of conferences between Mayor John S. Herron, Senator James J. Coyne, Director of Public Safety Harmar Denny, Jr., Supt. of Police Franklin T. McQuaide and Inspector of Detectives Frank R. Boyd, only one was promoted for "meritorious service."

He was Patrolman George H. Puff, of the North Side Station, one of two officers who several weeks ago captured Fred Prince and Theodore Geisler, members of the Maug Gang, who escaped from Western Penitentiary.

At the time of the capture, Mayor Herron announced that from then on, or at least while he was Mayor of Pittsburgh, only patrolmen who perform outstanding service would be promoted.

STEER ROUNDUP INJURES 2

Two men were injured during a four-hour chase after two runaway steers through Lawrenceville streets early today.

One of the animals, driven ashore after it had sought to escape by swimming the Allegheny River, was shot. The other was cornered and captured alive at Twenty-eighth street and Spring way, by Police Lieut. W. J. Lavery.

Patrolman Redmond McDonough suffered slight bruises when he was struck by one of the steers. The other man injured, one of the herders, was similarly hurt.

The chase started when an automobile, driven, according to police, by H. Schumacher, of Seavey road, Millvale, ran into the herd of 14 as it was being driven from Herrs Island to two Lawrenceville packing plants, via the Washington Bridge.

BRIDGE CRASH INJURES FOUR

A girl and three men were injured in a headon collision of automobiles on Liberty Bridge early today.

Marilou Arnold, 20, of 120 South Graham street, and Frank McSteen, 26, of 5231 Dearborn street, occupants of one of the machines, are in Mercy Hospital in a serious condition.

The occupants of the other, Louis Young, 22, and his brother, George, 21, both of 3 Esther avenue, Carrick, were treated at the hospital and sent home.

Admits $2 Mail Theft, Gets Parole

Theodore M. Ammon, a former substitute clerk in the Beaver Postoffice, pleaded guilty in Federal Court to stealing a letter containing $2. He was placed upon probation for two years.

SLEUTH FORCED INTO COURT

The trial of Harry Fink, private detective; his brother, Saul Fink, and the latter's wife, on Mann Act charges, was to be resumed in Federal Court today. The case involves alleged transportation of two women from Pittsburgh to Steubenville, O., in February.

Harry Fink was taken into court late yesterday by a deputy marshal on a bench warrant issued by order of Judge R. M. Gibson. Before it was issued Fink's $2,500 bond, was forfeited, because of failure to appear for trial. He was brought in from the Mercy Hospital, which he had entered a week ago to be treated for diabetes.

Attorney Joseph E. Topper, of Columbus, one of the defense counsel, was rebuked by the court and ordered to "sit down" for saying he did not believe a sick man should be placed on trial.

Before the bench warrant was issued, Dr. E. W. zur Horst, subpenaed by the government, told the court Harry Fink was in the hospital for treatment, but, under interrogation, did not say attendance in court would injure Fink's health.

In the prosecution the government is represented by Assistant United States Attorney Zeno Fritz.

Thaw's Jealous Rages Marred Gaiety of Trip To France, Says Evelyn

SYNOPSIS

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw has revealed, in previous installments, Harry Thaw's wild jealousy of Stanford White, whom she calls the one great love of her life. A trip abroad with Thaw ended in a break, but there was a reconciliation in New York, and today Evelyn describes her second visit to Europe with the Pittsburgher.

By EVELYN NESBIT THAW

CHAPTER XI.

Paris again!

About this time a gossip column—probably the first of them all—began to appear in the Morning Telegraph in New York. It was signed by "Marion, the Maid."

Thaw, Sport Donnelly and I got the paper regularly in Paris and I began to notice whole paragraphs lifted from my letters to May Mackenzie appearing in "Marion the Maid" column. That wasn't so good.

From a distance of 3,000 miles I couldn't do much about it, but I was anxious, with a capital "A," to know the secret. May Mackenzie wasn't a newspaper woman. She had been a chorus girl with Weber and Fields. Then came a letter from Maizie Follette, clearing the mystery.

"What do you thing, Evelyn?" Maizie wrote. "Your friend May MacKenzie is now writing a gossip column."

After that, you can bet, I was very careful what I wrote to May.

Again Thaw became the laughing stock of Paris. In restaurants and cabarets he broke up china and glassware, smashed up bars, caused brawls and no end of disturbance. But the French people knew him. They put up with his grotesque manners and dizzy pecadilloes as long as he paid the bills. And paying the damages was the least of his worries.

He had hired a personal maid for me—Nellie. Nellie came in handy, as things turned out.

Parties in Paris

Parties, parties, parties. Wonderful for my ailing health, incidentally, when by doctor's orders I was supposed to be at Zurich, living a life of secluded repose. Strangely, though, I seemed to thrive on the excitement. Maybe excitement in Paris is more healthful than excitement in New York.

Gourmet that I was, I discovered Brillat Savarin, and became even more epicurean in my tastes.

My meals became a rite. Every day I gorged myself on the choicest tidbits of Europe.

Thaw bet heavily on the races. When the Monte Carlo season opened, we went to the Riviera. At Monte Carlo, at the exclusive Hermitage, my suite of rooms was directly under that of Caruso, then young, pompous and fascinating.

Such excitement in Monte Carlo! The officials there refused to believe I was a day over 16 and would not permit me to enter the gambling rooms. A long row of men in black frock coats, looking more like funeral directors than gambling lords, shook their heads with a determined "n ."

"No minors, no children, permitted in the Casino," they said.

"But I'm 18 years old," I cried, tears of disappointment in my eyes.

They looked me up and down. They were veteran judges of women and girls, all of them, you could tell. Still one man, speaking in French, said very emphatically:

"She's not a day over 16."

Painting Contractor Near Death by Gun

Joseph Gaskell, 45, a painting contractor, shot himself in the chest today at the home of his brother, James Gaskell, 2241 Laketon road, Wilkinsburg, police reported. He was taken to Columbia Hospital where it was said he likely would die. He had been in ill health for a long time, police learned.

MAN KIDNAPED AND ROBBED

Recovering consciousness in McKeesport Hospital today, George Lynch, 27, of 711 Union avenue, McKeesport, told police he was kidnaped and robbed of more than $100 last night.

Lynch, an insurance collector, said he was at Ferry and Strawberry streets, McKeesport, early in the evening when a Negro shoved a gun at his back and ordered him into a blue sedan. Two other Negroes were in the machine.

He was beaten, bound with solder wire, taken to Long Run road, Versailles Township, and thrown from the car, Lynch said.

A man and woman passed the bound man at about 10:30 p. m. They notified Versailles Borough police, who investigated and found Lynch unconscious. The police took him to the hospital.

Lynch said he did not know how much money he had, but that it was more than $100.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 16.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Is this a good tip or aint it? No business in the United States is as cockeyed as the oil business (and many states depend on it for their prosperity). If ever a business needed a dictator it is them. It would be the biggest job held by a single man outside the President.

Will Rogers

It must not be an oil man, for he is already linked with one side or the other. It's got to be a man that the whole oil industry knew was on the level, fearless, fair, seeking nothing but justice to thousands that produce oil, and millions that use it.

Well, if there is a man in America that will fill this position any better than Al Smith, I defy you to think of him.

Yours, WILL.

'EYE' HERE TO OPEN WORLD FAIR

Observatory to Send Star's Rays to Chicago

An "electric eye" equipment that will play a prominent part in the opening of Chicago's Century of Progress Exposition is in readiness at the Allegheny Observatory.

The sensitive apparatus has been fastened to a 30-inch refracting telescope. It will be used in picking up the light rays of the star Arcturus, 240,000,000,000,000 miles from the earth.

Science's plan is to use the same light that started from the star at the close of the Chicago World's Fair in 1893 to open the coming exposition. They believe that it will be quite a feat in that the light has been 40 years in arriving at the earth.

At 9:15 p. m., Saturday, May 27, Dr. Frank J. Jordan, head of the observatory, will turn his telescope on the star. The "electric eye" will convert the starlight into electrical energy, and it will then be wired to Chicago.

There, with the aid of three other observatories, it will turn on a giant searchlight which will illuminate the tower of the Science Building. The exposition will then be on its way.

Taking part in the feat will be the Harvard, the University of Illinois and the Yerkes observatories. The shutters of the four telescopes will be opened to receive Arcturus's rays at the same instant.

Dr. Phillips Thomas, engineer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, which made the "electric eye," will assist Dr. Jordan.

Beggar-by-Day Turns 'Prince' at Night, Jailed

By day he's a down-at-heel panhandler; by night he squires beautiful ladies to theaters and the best dining halls.

At least, that is a patrolman's word picture of Steve Thomas, 32, of 3243 Julia street.

Patrolman John Roche said Thomas, posing as a student, begged on the streets, where he also appeared after dark dressed in the height of fashion and with lovely companions.

Magistrate Rothenberg told Thomas he was going to ruin his masculine pulchritude for a time, at least. He sentenced him to pay $25 or 30 days in the workhouse with these words:

"I'm going to send you up to the workhouse to get that hair cut off."

INTEREST BALKS R. F. C. LOAN PLANS HERE

That the United States government will hold the municipalities responsible for the repayment of sinking fund and interest on loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is the report brought back from Washington by the city's delegation.

Council has shelved four ordinances which were designed to prepare the way for R. F. C. help.

The suggestion that a private corporation be formed to do public work and borrow from the R. F. C. is considered a subterfuge by government officials. Director Edward G. Lang, of the Department of Public Works, reported to Council.

ONE PROJECT UPHELD

Lang, who conferred with R. F. C. directors in Washington, stated:

"The Reconstruction Finance Corporation does not look with favor upon public work being done by private corporations."

Of all the city improvements submitted to the R. F. C., only one, a waterworks project including a new reservoir for the Lincoln district, would come under the present rules, according to Lang. He expressed the hope that there will be new legislation which will broaden the loaning powers.

The interest charge on R. F. C. funds is not less than 5 per cent, he said. The money is loaned only on projects that will pay for themselves.

HIRING HALTED

Council, in holding over the four ordinances, stopped the hiring of approximately 130 temporary employes who were to do the preliminary engineering work on a $22,500,000 public works program.

An ordinance appropriating $200,000 from the work relief bond issue for miscellaneous street improvements has also been held over. No bidders were willing to take the bonds at 4 per cent, it was reported.

SYNOD ELECTS OFFICERS

The sixty-fourth annual session of the Pittsburgh Synod, Reformed Church of the United States, continued today with election of officers and an address by the Rev. Dr. Charles Schaffer, of Philadelphia.

The meeting was in the Hungarian Reformed Church, Tenth avenue, Munhall.

Elected today were the Rev. J. H. Woomer, of Greenville, Pa., as elder, and the Rev. Harold Ash, of Greenville, as corresponding secretary. The Rev. B. A. Black, pastor of the Amity Reformed Church of Meyersdale, Pa., was named president of the synod yesterday. Other officers were continued for another year.

The Rev. Frederick C. Seitz, of Greensburg; the Rev. Branabas Dienes, of Homestead; the Rev. W. J. Seiberling, of Munhall, and the Rev. M. N. George, retiring president, participated in today's program.

SCHOOL'S TAXES HELD ILLEGAL

Taxing powers of the Board of Public Education are declared contrary to the state and federal constitutions in an amended bill of complaint filed today by Attorney Harry Shapera in taxpayers' proceedings against the board.

The amended bill sets forth the State Constitution provides the power to levy taxes shall not be delegated to any "special commission" and that the school board may be so classified.

Taxation in excess of 8 mills is also held in violation of the Federal Constitution prohibiting the taking of property without due process of law. The court is asked to enjoin the board from levying more than 8 mills.

SCHOOLEY SUIT PAPERS FILED

Legal machinery was set in motion yesterday to collect $328,137 from deposed City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley, of which sum $129,647 is due as City Treasurer and $198,490 as delinquent tax collector.

Assistant City Treasurer Thomas M. Benner filed papers in the Prothonotary's office directed against Schooley and the Maryland Casualty Company, which concerns Schooley's bond for $100,000 as City Treasurer and $50,000 as delinquent tax collector.

The claims made are the result of an audit which was made of the City Treasurer's office, following the investigation of the Department of Supplies office.

capture of Prince and Geisler, was not mentioned in yesterday's appointments, although at the time of the capture he was highly praised by Mayor Herron.

Ten of the appointees were formerly connected with the Detective Bureau, and were reinstated after being retired on pension or dismissed last January in the economy move; one had no previous police experience. Two were patrolmen.

Detective Joseph Foster, a protege of Councilman Harry A. Little, was one of those dismissed in the economy move and prior to that had no previous police experience.

LACK EXPERIENCE

Charles Waizenhofer, of 1027 Heberton street, Eleventh Ward, friend of Councilman W. Y. English; Albert S. Schreckengost, 919 Teberton street, Eleventh Ward, aid to Councilman William J. Soost; Sigmund J. Gorskey, 50 South Nineteenth street, Seventeenth Ward, friend of Controller James Kerr; John E. Barrett, 4018 Lydia street, Fifteenth Ward, sponsored by Senator Coyne; Edward J. Atkinson, 3046 Mintwood street, Sixth Ward, sponsored by George Metzger, chairman of the ward, and Roy T. Dye, 7310 Bennett street, Thirteenth Ward, sponsored by Mayor Herron, prior to their first appointments to the detective bureau in either 1931 or 1932 had no experience.

Other appointments were:

PRECINCT DETECTIVE

Edward Pritchard, 44 Arabella street, Thirtieth Ward, was appointed a precinct detective, and Thomas Morrison, 236 Cairo street, Nineteenth Ward, was promoted from patrolman to sergeant. Patrolmen Bernard J. Scully, 32 Marion street, First Ward, and Peter Roesch, 408 South Evaline street, Eighth Ward, and Harry R. Miller, 4923 Butler street, Ninth Ward, were reinstated as policemen.

John P. Wachter, 1113 Buente street, Twenty-sixth Ward, and Albert I. Schaffer, 130 Larimer avenue, Eleventh Ward, sub-patrolmen, were appointed regular patrolmen.

In announcing the list, Director Denny pointed out that all the men were efficient and capable. He said:

"In carrying out our promise to promote officers for conspicuous and meritorious service, we have promoted Patrolman Puff to a detective. He is a fine officer and deserves this recognition."

Veteran patrolmen at Central Station showed disgust at the promotions. One veteran added:

"What incentive is there for us when we see fellows who don't even know what a police whistle is being made detectives, when good men still pound pavements."

In the series of conferences in the Mayor's office, in addition to police officials and Senator Coyne, Councilmen George S. Oliver, W. Y. English and William J. Soost attended.

CLARK STAND RECALLED

Friends of former Public Safety Director James M. Clark today recalled it was Clark's stand for a complete detective force that caused his clashes with Mayor Herron when the latter was head of Council and was reducing the budget. Clark insisted the force remain intact and six times clashed with Herron.

When Herron became mayor, it is said, Senator James J. Coyne tried to retain Clark, but Herron opposed the move, and a few days before he was dismissed, Clark said:

"It won't be long before they will fill up the detective bureau."

Nails for Baby! They're Good As Spinach

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 16.—(AP.)—Dr. E. H. Carey doesn't suggest feeding nails to baby, but he said here that a child could receive as much iron by sucking on a 20-penny nail as he can from his spinach. Dr. Carey added:

"And he might like the flavor of the nail."

FATHER DYING, RECRUIT HOME

Martin Joyce, Jr., 20, a member of the Civilian Conservation Corps, was home at the bedside of his dying father today.

Friends who journeyed by automobile to bring him home from near Pigeon, Pa., site of the forest camp, picked him up last night after he had walked 15 miles on his way towards Pittsburgh.

Young Joyce had been informed that his father was seriously ill through the army amateur radio stations in the Logan Armory. The Sun-Telegraph Globe Trotter cooperated in relaying the message.

POLICE THWART PAIR TRYING ESCAPE

Their attempted escape from Central Police Station foiled last night, Harry Marcus, 26, of Cleveland, and Richard C. Evans, 26, of Toledo, today were pacing double-locked cells in the county jail.

The two were transferred to jail immediately after Evans, according to police, slipped out of his cell in the station. He had torn the handle from a tin cup, flattened it and forced it into the crevice between the door and the cell wall, police said, preventing the lock from catching.

It was Evans' second attempt within two days to escape, police revealed. Sunday night, Turnkey James Fay discovered Evans manipulating the cell lock with a steel arch support removed from his shoe.

When Evans succeeded in opening his cell last night, Turnkey James Fay and Sergt. Arch McCartney nabbed him as he moved toward Marcus' cell.

Detective Inspector Frank R. Boyd ordered the pair committed to the County Jail.

Following their arrest in an Oakland apartment hotel last Friday for defrauding a hotel bill, detectives reported finding two loaded revolvers.

ALL EYES ON DODGE

"On the Job!"

IT MIGHT HAVE BEEN A DIFFERENT STORY IF HE HAD NOT KNOWN JUST WHAT TO DO FOR A SPLITTING HEADACHE

Twenty-minutes ago, a raging headache. Two tablets of Bayer Aspirin, and complete relief. That's service! That's what you can count on when you see the Bayer cross on aspirin tablets. The way they are made gives them speed. Quick to dissolve means quick to relieve. You cannot get the same results from a slower tablet.

Time a Bayer Aspirin tablet in a glass of water; in your stomach; in the time it takes to feel the actual relief. And don't hesitate to use Bayer Aspirin because of this speedy action. You could take it every day without ill effects; it does not depress the heart. Insure your comfort—in and out of business hours—by carrying Bayer Aspirin in the convenient pocket tin.

Taking the Chase Out of Purchase

ADVERTISING benefits the man who buys as well as the man who sells. It is part of the Golden Rule of Business and it works both ways.

Don't miss the advertisements in this newspaper. Many of them are interesting just because of their news and educational value alone.

But more than that: Advertisements take the chase out of purchase and make every penny do its full duty.

This last statement is one particularly to be remembered when common-sense economy is not only a national duty, but an individual necessity.

GETS DIPLOMA IN HOSPITAL

Ida Mary Maienfisch, 12, smiled happily today at relatives and friends from her bed in the Allegheny Valley Hospital, Tarentum, where she has been a patient since May 2, with a leg fracture suffered in an automobile accident.

Although unable to attend the graduation of her class last Friday, Ida Mary received her diploma in a special commencement exercise yesterday in the hospital ward.

C. C. Wylie, superintendent of Allegheny Township schools, presented it, and informed the patient that she had also been awarded third honors for her scholastic ability.

Ida Mary lives in Garver's Ferry, near Freeport. She was to return to the operating room today for the insertion of a silver plate in her leg to replace bones shattered in the accident.

MAN ENDS LIFE WITH AUTO GAS

The body of Alman C. Roberts, 47, of Glen Campbell, Pa., was found late yesterday in his automobile in an abandoned road off the Coraopolis boulevard, Kennedy Township, the coroner's office reported.

The car, its windows closed, was filled with carbon monoxide fumes. A piece of radiator hose had been fastened on the exhaust pipe and pulled into the car by lifting the floor board, according to the morgue report.

In several notes to friends and relatives, Roberts expressed a desire to die because of financial worries, deputy coroners reported. He formerly lived in Kelton avenue, Dormont.

MY OWN LIFE STORY :: By EVELYN NESBIT THAW

Thaw as Gambler

It was worth the trouble of persuading the old fossils to see Harry Thaw at the gambling tables. Instead of playing one table at a time, he played three tables at once, at his favorite "trente et quarante."

He would dash madly with thousand-franc notes, arranged between the fingers of both hands, from one table to another. Half the time he didn't know whether he was winning or losing. His bounding from table to table was the talk of Monte Carlo.

At least, his "system" was different and original. You can imagine what would have happened if everyone played that way.

One night we dined with an Italian Duke and Thaw drank too much champagne and got himself lit. From Ciro's we strolled to the park and sat on a bench near the Casino entrance. It was about 2 in the morning. Thaw kept walking under the trees, singing snatches of grand opera. Caruso had sung "Aida" that night at the opera house next to the gambling rooms, and the strains of that opera were fresh in his mind. He left me alone on the bench with the Duke.

Tenderly the Duke grasped my hand. He pressed it softly and with his other hand caressed my curls. I didn't mind. It was romantic, sitting there that way on a park bench on the Riviera, under the moon, music in the distance, only the stars overhead.

"Fly with me," the duke said passionately. "Leave this crude drunken American and fly with me to Allazio."

The duke was a funny little blonde man. He was really quivering with emotion, but to me, in the moonlight, he suddenly looked funny.

My lips started to twitch with amusement. Then I got the giggles. Then I just roared, unrestrainedly.

When I cleared the mist from eyes, my duke was walking across the grass, tearing his hair and muttering:

"These Americans! They understand nothing. The men get drunk and the women do not understand love!"

I was still giggling as my impetuous duke disappeared into the night. I sat alone on the bench for a while, listening to Thaw and his maudlin singing somewhere in the distance.

An Italian Prince

The next day we had lunch with another Italian nobleman—this time the tall, dark, handsome Prince Orsini Solafra. I had never tasted spaghetti, had never even heard of it. The prince ordered some and taught me how to eat it. Add ways to make love—teaching someone to eat spaghetti!

That night another Pittsburgh millionaire appeared on the scene. He invited us to dinner at the Hotel de Paris. During the dinner Thaw happened to leave the table for a few minutes.

"The idea" said this man. "A girl like you wasting your time on Harry Thaw. Those pearls you are wearing—are they real?"

"Yes," I answered.

Thaw had given me a triple strand of pearls he had picked up at a bargain in Monte Carlo—a typical Monte Carlo bargain! So many women lost first their money, then their jewels and even their clothes while gambling at the Casino.

I remember one girl in particular—a beauty from Budapest, who 'arived' in Monte Carlo with lots of money, marvelous jewels and beautiful wardrobe, who gambled the shoes off her feet.

Well, to resume. We were at the table with the Pittsburgh millionaire.

"Those pearls are insignificant," continued the steel magnate—for that was what he was—. "Now I would select pearls with a pale pinkish tint to match your skin. My yacht is here. Leave Thaw. Come aboard tonight and we will cruise around the world. I will give you everything you want."

Just then Thaw returned to the table. After dinner we went to the gaming tables and Thaw became absorbed in his "trente et quarante."

A New Jealousy

The steel man suggested that we go to the opera while Thaw gambled—and listen to Caruso. All evening he did his utmost to persuade me to leave Thaw. After the opera the three of us went to Ciro's for supper. By this time the attentions of the other man had become so marked that even Thaw noticed them.

Finally it was "Good night."

I told Thaw, for a joke, that his friend had described my pearls as "entirely too insignificant"—that I should be wearing much finer, more perfectly matched, rose-tinted pearls.

Thaw didn't make any direct answer—but the result was that I was locked up in my suite at the Hermitage for a week. Not until the steel man sailed away aboard his yacht did Thaw permit me my freedom.

I was forced to dine alone, lunch alone, breakfast alone. I amused myself reading.

Solitude, provided there are plenty of books about, is no hardship to me. On the contrary. All that week I saw no other human being except Nellie, my maid, and the girl servant who brought the food.

A Month's Rest

I spent the mornings in the bathroom. I could hear Caruso, in his suite overhead, practicing his singing and rehearsing operatic bits.

It was delightful—thrilling—exhilarating, sitting in a tepid bath and listening to Caruso at the same time.

I think we spent five weeks in Monte Carlo before we returned to Paris.

A little later we finally went to Zurich, Switzerland.

Here was a break. When Thaw and Donnelly got me to Zurich they decided, at my suggestion, to travel a bit and enjoy themselves. They left me with Dr. Mendez-Ernst and his wife—for a whole month—undisturbed.

Thaw came back at the end of the month, however. Then something happened which brought Stanford White to Thaw's mind, causing the usual commotion.

I don't remember what it was all about—but Thaw was incensed because I refused to call White "the beast" or "the blackguard."

Suddenly Thaw produced a revolver, opened it to let me see it was loaded, and said:

"If you ever call him by name again I will kill you. You will call him 'beast' or 'blackguard.'"

I began to cry—but we finally compromised by agreeing that I should call him the "B."

"Another thing," Thaw said. "If you ever run across him anywhere, you must tell me. Promise me that."

"All right," I agreed. "I promise, but put that gun away."

You will see how tremendously important this was to become later. Also—the Joan of Arc incident.

We were going through the village of Domremy—where Joan of Arc became a martyr.

Thaw insisted on signing the visitors' book and he took so much time at it that Sport went back to see what he was doing. Then Sport stayed, he told Thaw, to write in an inscription of his own. Really he had stayed to cross out Thaw's violent autograph. Here is what Thaw wrote:

"If men like Stanford White had liver here then, Joan of Arc would not have been the maid of Domremy."

Remember, in view of testimony at the trial in Thaw's defense, this is what was in his mind then—and we were not yet married.

A most smartly gowned representative first-night group of Pittsburgh and Sewickley social registerites were at the Nixon last night to see Lenore Ulric in "Hard Boiled Angel."

Seated in a box I saw Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson, whose gown was of red satin with an all-over coin dot design in gold, and her black velvet wrap was furred in white fox.

The Harvey Childses III. I noticed chatting with friends during intermissions, and Mrs. Childs was wearing an afternoon frock of deep blue crepe with a cape lined in red and white figured crepe. The William A. Duckhams, were there, with Mrs. Duckham in white crepe with a brief ermine jacket.

Chatting In Lobby

A smart afternoon dress of black crepe with a white revers as its only accent, was chosen by Genevieve Bell.

Stately Mrs. J. Porter Gillespie's gown was fashioned of flax blue rough crepe with a cape forming brief sleeves, and broad bands of the material criss-crossing the decolletage.

Smoking in the lobby during intermission I caught a glimpse of Clara Dorothea Jenkins, in scarlet crepe with the decolletage outlined with a twisted band of matching velvet and a matching velvet jacket. Attractive Nancy Byers was there, too, in a gown of black satin, having a flaring skirt, with a deep border of holly-berry red.

Braille Book for Every Blind Child, Slogan of Federation Juniors

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

"A Braille book for every blind child by Christmas" is a new slogan the juniors of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women are adopting. The project will be presented to the southwestern district juniors at their spring conference on June 3.

Just on the face of it, "a Braille book for every blind child" doesn't sound very big or important, but when you realize that the average Braille volume is a huge affair, too large for a child to handle comfortably, and that a blind child rarely owns a book of its very own, you get some idea of the significance of the new undertaking.

The contents of the books are stories appropriate for children from seven years to high school age and are transcribed by the Philadelphia Red Cross at a cost of 10 cents per volume. They are bound singly in all sorts of materials by the donors, but all volumes are of the same size, one convenient for children to handle. Moreover, any story will be transcribed upon request.

Mrs. Clifford C. Taylor, State Federation chairman of work for the blind, will serve as the clearing house for the children in this district of whom she says there are about 154.

At the June conference the juniors are to have a publicity institute, a play by the Jeannette Juniors and some music.

TAILORED CLOTHES ARE RIGHT FOR TOWN AND COUNTRY WEAR

IT'S ALL to the good to burst into a dither of fandango ruffles in the evenings. By all means, appear at garden parties in something which drips frills and puffy sleeves, and with a parasol.

BUT IN the hard light of early morning, you've got to face facts. Plain facts. Tailored clothes are the right clothes. Whether you're in town or in the country (and both the outfits shown would be equally at home on Fifth Avenue or at Tuxedo), line should be simple, rather swagger. Materials should be fine and decidedly plain. When the candles are lighted, toward evening you can go in for any sort of picturesque thing you fancy, but not earlier.

THE BEAUTY about the two ensembles above is that they are really feminine as well as being close to severity. The one on the left gets its gentle charm from its sleeveless plaid blouse, with the floppy bow under the chin, and its plaid cuffs. The other one takes a stand for trick red and black stripes. Both blouses are of a cotton tweed in a loose basket-weave, sheer and openwork. The darker suit is a flag blue, a lovely washed-out shade, than which there's nothing more becoming to a sun-tanned skin. The plaid is in shades of the same blue.

THE RIGHTHAND suit is that superlatively smart color, string, which has made clothes history this spring and continues to be of first importance. Both suits are extremely simple and well-tailored and have their own particular kind of swank.

SAVAGE PARADISE By Margaret Matches

"there's naught ever to fear at sea!"

Martin, the third officer, never did learn to speak to a lady without blushing. His brogue was so strong that I used half the time to make him repeat what he said. But he doggedly kept on trying to make himself entertaining whenever he had a chance. His people were County Derry farmers. He had run away to sea nearly 10 years before—he was but 22 now. He was tall and strongly built, with blue eyes and a mop of curly unruly blond hair. Alas, the skipper sheared his blond mane one day, to the complete satisfaction of every one but myself. Martin felt twice the man with his curls gone.

Every British ship has its "queer chap." On this one it was the chief engineer. He was an enormously tall man; a loose lock of black hair fell always over his somber brow; his brass buttons and the gilt braid on his cuffs managed always somehow to look lackluster, as if dejectedly reflecting his melancholy. Only once did I see him smile. He would appear at mess, seat himself opposite the master, include us all in one unsmiling nod, and lean on the table with his forearms, his hands clasped in front of him. Thus with his eyes fixed on the cloth, he would move only to accept his plate or consume its contents. But it was his great hands that fascinated me—they were the hands of a giant of strength.

Through Panama Canal

Life was surprisingly comfortable aboard this cargo ship. She was immaculately clean. My cabin was large and breeze-swept. An enormous deck fore and aft afforded room for exercise in the form of dog-trot promenades and hard-fought tennis. Under a canvas awning in the skipper's deck, just below the bridge, I spent long, lazy hours, when we struck the Caribbean, stretched out with a book on my lap but with my eyes usually on the blue sea and sky before me. As we plowed south, nightly I watched the Southern Cross rise higher and higher over the horizon, until it finally dominated the constellations like a glorious voice above a choir. And through the long, soft nights with every hour that the bells struck off came the lookout's tenor call, "Lights are bright, sir," and from the bridge the long-drawn reply, "Ay-ye!"

One evening we reached Colon, too late to enter the Panama Canal. Shabby little Colon somehow beautiful in the sunset. Next day came the slow, monotonous passage through the Canal. Then, the weary heat and tiresome delays over, we were outside and before us spread the Pacific like a vast lake, island-dotted.

It was nearing sunset as we entered upon the serene waters. Against a rosy background two straight lines of pelicans followed their leader, homing for the night. The good steady throb of the ship's engines came rhythmically again as she resumed her normal speed. There were still five weeks ahead of us to Sydney.

Leaving New York, I had felt weary of everything. And now here I was in a world which knew no such thing as time and in which space was a mere incident in the scheme of things. But in those weeks at sea I recaptured what I foolishly thought I had lost—a prodigious love of life.

Finds New Friend

One day, when there seemed no land in all the world, an albatross appeared above our ship . . . never flapping a wing, never alighting, apparently needing neither resting place nor food. Two days later its mate joined the giant bird. The skipper said they were souls of dead sailors.

And so, after some five weeks, we reached Sydney. They were good weeks.

Getting into Australia is easy, but getting out of Australia is quite another matter, particularly if you are an unattended woman bound for the Mandated Territory of New Guinea. If I had been left entirely on my own resources I might have spent some tedious hours in untying red tape. But I wasn't thanks to J. B. T.

He was literally the first person I saw at close range in Sydney—not counting the customs officers, of course. As the skipper and I were about to go ashore, the cabin-boy announced a caller, and into the cabin walked quite the tallest, leanest Englishman I have ever seen. I shall always associate yellow chamois gloves (one worn and one carried), a light cane, a dotted blue silk handkerchief—oh, I shall always associate everything that is well-dressed and great-hearted and debonair with J. B. T.

He stopped short at seeing me in the skipper's cabin; entirely, self-possessedly at home there. Ensuing conversation revealed that he had at one time made a voyage across the world with this same skipper, and they had formed a friendship that lasted. Endless weeks at sea with one person's companionship—a semi-enforced companionship at that, since you must always be under each other's feet—are an acid test of character and disposition. J. B. T. and I took a shine to each other from the first.

In Englishman's Care

That he happened to be in Sydney was only chance; in fact it was only chance that he ever happened to be anywhere. He has written about his "windjammerings" over the seven seas—perhaps you have read his account. A few months before I met him he had come to Australia from Tahiti. When my freighter finally sailed away down the coast, en route to New Zealand and England once more, it was into J. B. T.'s care that her master put this wandering, mad American who was bent upon giving up all familiar comfort and security for God-knew-what in the South Pacific. And J. B. T. was very conscientious about his charge. Indeed, we had a glorious time of it.

It took me three days to get the hang of the language around me. It has the same foundation as English, indeed the printed word looks like English. But I defy any Briton or American who has dropped upon Sydney to understand immediately its Anglo-Cockney. And I was just as unintelligible to the people there. Yet Sydney is afflicted with Americomania. Familiar trade names look down from sign-boards. My hotel was run on an American scale—except for prices—and proclaimed the fact. American films are shown at the movie palaces. Second-rate American theatrical troops present New York successes, with more hilarity than finesse. American jazz bands are features of night clubs and tea dances. Even American chewing-gum is there, translated, quaintly, into "chewing sweet." A famous 5-cent Philadelphia weekly is the choice magazine (at one-and-six a copy). Cheap American cigarets—no longer cheap, alas, in Sydney—are fashionable and popular. I could even order iced tea or iced coffee without being thought mildly insane. In short, Sydney is something of a Yankee with a Cockney accent. And I do not know that our influence has improved it.

A Different Course

On leaving America, I had set my destination flexibly as Port Moresby, Papua. But two things changed my course. Among the acquaintances made in Sydney were three islanders who were waiting for the steamer for Rabaul, the administrative center of the Mandated Territory of New Guinea, known before the post-war division of German colonies as the Bismarck Archipelago and Kaiser Wilhelm Land; and be it noted that New Guinea is the name of the world's largest island (part of which is Dutch territory and part British) and is also the name of Britain's part of the island plus a great many small islands considered as an administrative unit. One of the three acquaintances was spoken of in the islands as a "liklik" doctor—one who, though not a medical graduate, knows a good deal about tropical diseases and is employed by the government to care medically for the natives. (However, he later gave up the practice for the pursuit of gold at Edie Creek, with considerably more success all around.)

The other two were women, both young and good-looking. One of these, Dian, became the best friend I ever hope to have. The other was Mrs. Booth, known in the islands as "the Angel of Bulolo," because of the heroism with which she fought an epidemic that swept a district in the hinterland of New Guinea, whither she had accompanied her husband in search of gold. To those who knew her well she was "Puck," a name that suited her immeasurably better than "Angel." I met these three at my hotel, and afterward the balance lay heavily on the side of Rabaul. Furthermore, I had missed the Morinda, which had just sailed for Papua, and would have to wait six weeks before she returned, while the Marsina was due to sail for Rabaul and other ports of the Mandated Territory in a few days. That settled it. I booked the last cabin on the Marsina.

Permit Needed

Three days before sailing I learned that I could not enter the Mandated Territory without a special permit from Canberra, Australia's capital, and from the administrator at Rabaul. Of these three days, Sunday and Monday were holidays—King's birthday, or something—which left the day before sailing and the morning of sailing. As it turned out, the lack of time probably got me through. I explained to the gentlemen at the customs office that I had already bought my ticket on the Marsina, that I was a stranger in Australia, entirely alone, and had not known that special permission was needed to get into New Guinea, and that there was only a day and a half left. So cables began to dance between Canberra, Rabaul and Sydney. The customs officer told me not to worry. (I had many weeks ago forgotten how to.) But he insisted that I leave my passport with him, despite my protests.

The following morning at 10:30, in a taxi with a duffle-bag, a box, a hat-bag, a suitcase, a portable typewriter, two cameras, and J. B. T., I stopped at the customs house and picked up my passport, which granted me permission to enter and remain in the territory of New Guinea for the space of one year. At 12 the Marsina sailed.

I got rather a shock at seeing the ship that was to carry a hundred people through reef-infested waters. Most of her was obscured below the wharf, though she boasted two decks and a bridge. To board her you walked down a steeply inclined gangplank. An extremely narrow deck welcomed you, and from it you entered into the social saloon, a tiny cabin big enough for two tables and an antiquated upright piano, with settees built around the walls. Below deck, in most unsufferable heat from galley and engine-room, were the dining saloon, staterooms, and two bathrooms. I was in luck; I drew one of the six infinitesimal deck cabins on top, where, though I got the hot breath of the galley funnels in nauseating whiffs, I enjoyed also whatever fresh trade-winds might be about.

Boat Overcrowded

I confess to a slight indisposition due to the buoyant playfulness of the Marsina during my first 24 hours aboard her. While languishing entirely hors de combat, I inquired of the stewardness whether this wasn't the worst ship in the Pacific. "No," she said grimly, "there's one worse." There was—the Malwara.

The hundred passengers packed the little ship literally to overflowing. Pajama-clad figures slept on the settees of both dining-saloon and social hall as well as on the decks. Two of the women on board were round-trippers, who in a misguided moment had chosen a vacation cruise on the Marsina out to the romantic, sun-kissed South Pacific. They got precious little comfort or rest. I was the only American.

As for the men, the majority were bound for the gold fields of Edie Creek and Salamaua, in the mountains of the New Guinea mainland. A number were government servants and clerks—clarks, say the Orstrylians. Others were plantation owners or managers on their way to New Britain, New Ireland, the Admiralty Islands, of the Solomons.

There was one little chap called "Fritz," who was going to the out-station of Kaewieng, New Ireland, to open up a branch of the Commonwealth Bank and who, for some unknown reason, carried a large bag of very bright golf clubs as part of his equipment. There was an Australian missionary returning to the central mission station at Rabaul. He wore shabby black clerics, and the skin on his face and hands was loose and yellow from many years of malaria. He was not very popular. Also, there were remittance-men, reckless and down-at-heels, paid to keep away from respectable British portals.

Then, there was the couple that we called the Wicked Uncle and the Babe in the Wood. He was a Scotch-Australian, and despite his graying hair there remained about him still the air of a cheap sport, something indefinably shyster and smooth. He alluded to his companion much more frequently and emphatically than necessary as "my niece." She herself had once been a blond trinket of a girl—perhaps even pretty. But years and life had taken pitiful toll of her looks and her spirit. The Wicked Uncle was a mine promoter, making his first trip to the gold fields. He held the woman completely cowed by his lash of mental cruelty, by insults steeped in honey. Perhaps she loved him, perhaps she clung to him in terror lest he throw her back on a merciless world. Her figure was queer, her hair was bleached and quickly straightened unbecomingly in the damp air, and she seemed to be trying to conceal the fear that was growing in her eyes. We wanted to beat the Wicked Uncle to jelly, but after all he and his niece were not our affair.

LITTLE POISON MAY BE ENDING SLUMP

WHILE THE CHIEF offensive factor in putting the Pirates back on the winning road yesterday, with Heine Meine's ninth straight victory since last Labor Day, was Freddie Lindstrom's triple with all the pillows populated, another notable feature of the Buccaneer attack was the fact that Lloyd Waner made three hits. Ordinarily, that wouldn't be worth mentioning, but it's mighty important right now if it may be taken as an indication that Little Poison is finally coming out of his prolonged spring slump. Until yesterday he was low man among the seven regulars, with an average of only .224, and this was the first time he hit safely three times in a game.

Lloyd Waner

The part that Lloyd played in the undoing of another enemy southpaw—the 10 games in which left-handers have started against them this spring the Bucs have won nine, losing only to Bill Hallahan—boosted his batting mark to .243 and started him on the upward road. If he continues his climb it will help a lot at a time when only Traynor and Lindstrom among the regulars are hitting .300, when one (Suhr) is as low as .217, and when three other Pirates have scored more runs than the younger Waner in the lead-off position. The Bucs can't be termed normal until both Waners are clicking, and Lloyd's brace offers the hope that that time is not far away.

INTEREST FROM A side angle in the Yankee-Tiger series opening today in New York centers around the question as to whether or not Tom Bridges is going to keep on being a one-man swaying factor in the pennant competition between the Yanks and the Senators. He can beat Washington every time, but he can't beat New York.

It isn't often that a single player on a third team represents a pennant difference between two other clubs, but Bridges comes close to doing so. Last year the Detroit pitcher meant the difference of five and a half games between New York and Washington. He defeated the Senators five times and lost six straight to the Yanks.

THE NEW YORK club finished 14 games ahead of Washington in 1932. This season the Senators are stronger and the Yankees have slipped a bit. So the different results that Bridges gets against the two clubs may count for a whole lot more than in 1932 if he runs true to the same form, and thus far that has been the case.

Bridges has appeared once against each team this spring, with the usual outcome. He beat Washington and lost to New York. Since the start of last season he has won six games from the Senators and lost seven to the Yankees.

BROOKLYN CLAIMS TO have been the home of more inventors of notable baseball features than any other city in the country. Arthur Cummings, who pitched for the Brooklyn Stars soon after the Civil War, was the first man to throw a curve ball. Dickey Pearce, who played for the Brooklyn Atlantics around the same period, invented the bunt. And until now the development of the spitball has been generally credited to Elmer Stricklett, former pitcher for the Dodgers in the National League. As the story went, Stricklett, while with Newark in 1902, saw Frank Corridon, later with the Phillies, deliver balls in practice which his catcher had difficulty in handling. Asked to show how he held the ball, Corridon explained he had found that an application of saliva to the ball at the point where his first two fingers grasped it would make the sphere perform strange antics. Stricklett was said to have caught the idea, and, by patience and practice later while with Sacramento in the Coast League, to have acquired sufficient control of the spitball to use it in championship games.

George Hildebrand

JACK CHESBRO adopted and perfected the spitter in the majors and was followed by a number of others. Hence, it always has been said that credit for the discovery of the damp fling belonged to Corridon, for its development to Stricklett, and for its perfection to Chesbro.

But now comes George Hildebrand, American League umpire, who has officiated in more than 3,100 consecutive games in that circuit without missing a contest, to assert that the historians are all wrong. Hildebrand himself lays loud and insistent claim to the invention or discovery of the spitball.

THE VETERAN UMPIRE says that during his stay with the Providence club as an outfielder in 1902 he discovered the delivery quite by accident while warming up with Corridon. That same year, he continues, he shifted to Sacramento in the Coast League, and there taught the spitter to Stricklett, who was his roommate.

According to Hildebrand, he gave the spitball to Stricklett just when that pitcher was about to get his release, and that Elmer, with the spitter, immediately became so effective that he won 11 straight games.

SEAMAN WATSON, British featherweight champion, who will meet Kid Chocolate for the world title in New York Friday night if something doesn't turn up to force another postponement, is only one on a long list of English and Australian fighters handled by the veteran pilot, Charley Harvey. The latter, an announcer many years ago, has managed Jem Driscoll, Ted (Kid) Lewis, Tom Heeney, Owen Moran, Johnny Somers, Roland Todd, Pat O'Keefe, Herbert Crossley, Jack Harrison, Gus Platts, Johnny Brown and Elky Clark. The biggest financial haul Harvey ever made for one of his fighters was the guarantee of $100,000 he got from Tex Richard for Heeney to meet Gene Tunney in 1928.

HARVEY PROBABLY IS well satisfied that a custom he now says he would like to see restored wasn't revived for that particular fight. That is the winner-take-all system of the old days, with possibly a sizeable side bet in addition to the purse. The veteran says that if the New York rules did not prohibit it, he would gladly let Watson meet Chocolate under those conditions.

Harvey believes that boxing would benefit if the remuneration of the fighters were not set so definitely before a match. Stalling champions sure of 37½ per cent of the gate, regardless of the outcome, might not do so much coasting if they knew they would lose their money as well as their titles in event of defeat.

SPORTS FOLLOWERS ARE wondering in what unexpected quarter fisticuffs will develop next. Scraps were seen in some football games last fall, as usual; they continue to be part of hockey; they broke out in baseball this spring, and then the Kentucky Derby showed two jockeys at war.

To top it off, even the Southern California-Stanford track meet produced a fistic spectacle. Foore, of the Trojans, spiked Morentin, of Stanford, during the two-mile run, whereupon Morentin socked Foore on the chin with all that he could put into his right. Eventually the police may be called to a chess riot. And meanwhile men like Ben Jeby and Gorilla Jones, who are paid for battering each other, have to be thrown out of the ring because they won't fight.

C. V. Whitney

THERE WAS NO talk of sidebets or anything of that nature when Cornelius V. Whitney and Sylvester W. Lobrot agreed to have their respective mares, Top Flight and Tred Avon, meet in a one-mile match race at Belmont Park on Memorial Day, with each runner carrying 118 pounds. The owners arranged the race for two reasons: To stimulate interest in the sport and to determine which mare is entitled to be ranked as queen of the turf. Whitney suggested the contest, and when Lobrot consented, the former announced he would give a gold cup to the winner. Then Joseph Widener, president of the Westchester Racing Association, said he would hang up a substantial purse for the race. It is purely a sporting proposition, and horsemen agree that the game is bound to benefit by it, through a great race and the wide interest it will arouse. Top flight is 4 years old. Tred Avon is 5. Both are champions. Top Flight was the best of the 3-year-old fillies in 1932, and Tred Avon was supreme among the older runners of her sex.

UNIONTOWNER GETS FINE 145 AT OAKMONT

By TOM BIRKS

Playing brilliant golf over a soggy, rain-soaked layout, anything but conducive to good scoring, Sam Parks, Jr., professional at the Summit Hotel course, Uniontown, and former captain of the University of Pittsburgh team, led a fast field of leading professional and amateurs home in the tri-state qualifying test for the National open yesterday at the Oakmont Country Club. His 70-75—145 led the field by four strokes.

LOEFFLER, DEL VECCHIO TIE

Emil Loeffler, of Oakmont, and his buddy, Perry Del Vecchio, of Greensburg, tied for third with 154s, and Charley Manning, of Shannopin; Al Alcroft, of the Youngstown (O.) Country Club, and Knox Young, of Highland, tied for fifth at 156.

These seven and Vincent Eldred, of Highland, who finished twelfth last year at Fresh Meadow, in the national open, and was exempt National open, and was exempt will represent the district when the National open gets under way at the North Shore Club, Glen View, Ill., the morning of June 8.

The big disappointment was the failure of Ted Luther, of Valley Heights, and Paul (Toots) Erath, of Edgewood Country Club, to get in the select circle. Both failed to really get started, although Erath did spurt on the outbound nine in the afternoon round.

Hulton's famous golf layout looked grim and forboding when the players assembled at the starting tee. Heavy fairways and soggy greens caused the winter rule sign to go up, which cheered the stars somewhat.

The officials had no other alternative than to permit lifting of balls imbedded in the fairways and the wiping off of balls on the greens. Had this not been allowed, the scoring would have been laughable.

KNOX YOUNG STEADY

Knox Young, the only amateur to qualify, was consistency itself, and on his showing yesterday should fill the gap opened by the departure of Maurice Le Bosquet from the Wellington Heights Club.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE HONEY OF THE AGES—In 1905, the tomb of Iouiya and Touiyou in the Valley of the Kings was laid bare and their remains disinterred. The occupants were identified as the parents of Queen Tiyi, the wife of Amenothes III, who flourished in the fourteenth century B. C. Among the objects found in the tomb was an alabaster vase containing honey which was in a liquid state and still exuded the elusive fragrance of 33 centuries before. A FEMININE SECRET—Ancient Egypt was the cradle of the cosmetic art and of perfumery. The Egyptian ladies of 5,000 years ago were the first to lengthen their lashes with an unguent made of sulphur of porphyrised antimony. Their original motive was to protect the eye from the ravages of trachoma, and opthalmic disease carried by the Egyptian housefly. Thus the original beauty idea had a medical background. Trachoma is still the scourge of the Egyptian fellah and its carrier is as of old, the pesky Egyptian fly.

SCHOOL TEAMS BUSY TODAY

By JULIUS LEVIN

High school and grade school athletes swing back into action this afternoon after a week's layoff due to rain and wet grounds.

A full program of games is offered the followers of the W. P. I. A. L. baseball races. In Section II Carnegie plays at Crafton and Dormont goes to Findlay. Three games are scheduled in Section III. Elizabeth plays at McKeesport, Wilkinsburg at Turtle Creek, and East McKeesport at Edgewood.

The track championship of the Section I schools of the Pittsburgh grade school, scheduled at Schenley High this afternoon, has been postponed until Friday because of wet grounds. The Section II meet will be held at Westinghouse on Thursday.

The spring football game scheduled between Scott High and Washington will be played off tonight under the floodlights at Scott Field. This game was carded last week, but was postponed because of rain.

Both sections of the Interscholastic Golf Conference are engaged in matches this afternoon. In Section I, Connelley Trade is at University School. Allderdice plays at Oliver and Kiski entertains Peabody. Springdale is at Turtle Creek, Wilkinsburg at McKeesport and Brentwood at Shady Side in Section II duels.

Yesterday Mt. Lebanon's track and field squad won the Allegheny County independent high school championship, scoring 23½ points for first place in the annual meet. Wilkinsburg finished second with 22½ points; Dormont took third with 16½; Braddock was fourth with 16; Rankin fifth with 15 and Duquesne sixth with 13.

Duquesne won the junior high school title, with Clairton second. Lewis, Rankin High's lone entry, won three first places, the 100-yard dash and broad and high jumps.

MATCHES POSTPONED

For the third time the opening matches in the Western Pennsylvania Women's Golf Team League have been postponed. The opening date has been reset for next Monday, with Section I competing at the Field Club and Section II at St. Clair.

Ripley Discovers Man Complete Unto Self

(Robert Ripley, cartoonist who won fame with his "Believe It or Not" drawings, is touring South America by airplane in search of new material. What he sees and hears and learns he is cabling daily to the United States.)

By ROBERT RIPLEY

ON BOARD PAN-AMERICAN AIRLINER, FORTALEZA, Brazil, May 16.—I stopped last night in Bahia at the Hotel Wagner which—Believe It Or Not—occupies the two top floors of an eight-story office building.

Flying out of the city this morning, before I was really wide awake, we were passing over San Francisco River, 1,800 miles long. It is the longest river in Brail. Of course, the Amazon is greater, but it doesn't lie wholly in Brazilian territory.

All day we hummed along the palm-fringed edge of the great and mysterious jungles of Brazil. From this jungle came the world's largest diamond—larger than the famous Cullinan diamond of Africa.

This diamond of Bahia was black, and it weighed 3,167 carats. It sold for $300,000.

Our tapioca comes from here also. Tapioca is made from Mandioca roots, which are deadly poisonous.

I bought a snake skin that is 20 feet long. The man I bought it from promises to deliver one 40 feet long.

In this primitive forest lives the primitive Brazilian farmer, the only man who is complete unto himself. He makes his house of mud, wears a hat of palm, and cuts his sandals from a home-tanned side of leather.

His women folks weave his shirt from home-grown cotton. His other garments are deerskin, which he himself has tanned.

He grows his own tobacco, his own sugar, makes his own hooch. He raises his own corn, hogs, beans and pepper. He makes his own dried beef and croons to himself the gloaming to the harmony of a home-made guitar.

TILTONVILLE WINS

MARTINS FERRY, O., May 16.—Tiltonville, which won the Eastern Ohio class B baseball title last year, today had class A honors, defeating Bridgeport, 7 to 3, yesterday. Yorkville and Amsterdam play tomorrow for the class B championship.

BUSH REPORTED IMPROVED

INDIANAPOLIS, May 16.—(AP.)—The nurse attending Donie Bush, manager of the Cincinnati Reds baseball team, who is confined to his home here with bronchial pneumonia and pleurisy complications, said at a late hour last night there had been some improvement in his condition.

Bush, she said, "was not so well" yesterday afternoon, but was resting well late last night. She said his condition indicated a slight but definite improvement in the last few hours.

Earlier, Dr. John M. Cunningham, the veteran manager's physician, described Bush as "pretty sick," but said he did not consider his condition dangerous.

YANKS DEFEAT WHEELING

WHEELING, W. Va., May 16.—(AP.)—The Dickey brothers, both catchers, met up in an exhibition game, and although Bill and his New York Yankee teammates won, 7 to 2, George, of the Wheeling Stogies, stole the show.

More than 10,000 fans turned out, causing a portion of the stands to collapse, to see Babe Ruth and saw 17-year-old George hit the only circuit drive of the day. The Babe's best was a pair of doubles.

The Stogies, a Yankee "farm" in the Mid-Atlantic League, executed a lightning triple play in the fifth on Walker's grounder, catching Ruth and Chapman as they tried to advance.

Three persons suffered minor injuries as part of the bleachers crumbled. Rain halted the game in the eighth. The score by innings:

Howard (Howdy) Groskloss, of Sheraden, Yale medical student, who recently was optioned by the Pirates to their Tulsa (Okla.) farm, is destined to play for Jersey City this year, Pirate President W. E. Benswanger announced this afternoon the option on Groskloss had been transferred from Tulsa to the International League city.

Howdy has just completed his year's course at Yale and he will join the Skeeters immediately. It is likely he will be used at second base. Mike Kelly, manager of the Jersey club, has sought Groskloss for months.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Tommy Padden, who has just been promoted to the role of Pirate first-string catcher, was the silent actor in a tabloid drama of the diamond, the details of which were unfolded today by one of Padden's mates. It was Tommy's clean single in the second inning of yesterday's Pirate-Philly scrap which started the run-making that broke the Buccaneer losing streak and gave the home club sole possession of first place.

The exclusive scenario on Padden gives Dr. Charles E. Jorgensen, Pirate trainer, the second "lead" and "Jorgy," as the Pirates call him, still chuckles over the performance of the young catcher. It seems that the aggressive New Englander has been suffering with a blistered heel, but Padden said nothing to Manager Gibson about his condition, and when Gibby called for Tommy Sunday and told him to be ready for the catching job in Pittsburgh, the latter swallowed his grief over his bad foot and sought the trainer.

REAL FIGHTING SPIRIT

Padden and Jorgensen held a secret tryst for something like two hours after Sunday's defeat at the Polo Grounds. Special bandages were prepared, and the treatment made so thorough that Padden began to feel relief late in the evening. Tommy then concluded that the sore spot would become toughened were he to walk to the station in New York, the distance being approximately two miles. That was a mistake, for, instead of aiding the sore spot, the walk agitated it, and Tom had to call the doctor again.

Padden exacted a promise out of Jorgensen to hold any knowledge of his condition from Gibby, and he had Jorgy spend most of yesterday morning with him, applying more of the special pad bandages. Before the game started, one of these bandages was placed on his foot and he was able to do his stuff much the same as though he were in perfect shape, although he was in pain.

HEINIE LANDS FIFTH

Heinie Meine mastered Chuck Klein in a big crisis of the ninth inning and the Buccos copped their home inaugural with the Phillies, 5 to 4. The Quakers had the tying and winning runs on the sacks with two out in the last

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The spies I got scattered in the National League inform me the Pirates will nab the pennant on their speed. They say the lads have been feeding on gazelle glands or something and leap from base to base like a trained flea hurrying down a dachshund's spine. Compared with the Pirates on the baselines, the other National teams run like fugitives that ain't yet broken away from the chain gang.

Nick Altrock

This solves a big mystery to to me because on paper you would never confuse the Pittsburghs with the Rock of Gibraltar. But shake a little speed into a fair-to-middling club and it's like putting the maple syrup on the buckwheats.

The Pirates have played such heads-up baseball this season I understand they've even got the peanut vendors in the grandstand stretching one bag into three. That's the height of something or other.

TENNIS LEAGUE OPENING DATE POSTPONED

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The annual campaign of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League will get under way on Saturday, May 27, instead of next Saturday, May 20, as originally planned. Unanimous vote of the P. T. A. sanction and schedule in special session yesterday effected the postponement of the circuit starting date.

The action taken by the schedule group was not unexpected. The almost unremittant rainfall of the last fortnight or more has precluded virtually all possibility of outdoor play with result that not only is it doubtful whether the clay courts of several of the competing clubs can be put in shape before the coming week-end, but it is also quite certain that the players will be in even worse trim than the rectangles.

SECTIONS NOT SET

Another reason for the setting back of the opener is the fact the alignments of the bi-divisional loop are not yet definitely determined. Latest development appears to be that the Mount Lebanon aggregation in Division I has struck a snag in its efforts to obtain home playing facilities. Temporary disbandment of the team would mean one of two things: A seven-team First Division or the arbitrary advancement of College Avenue to the upper sector.

According to announcements from Jimmy Creighton and Harry Milton, respectively, South Hills and Y. M. H. A. are out of the Second Division picture for 1933. Both hope to return in 1934, but lack of courts wrecks feasibility of activity during the impending season.

College Avenue, Westinghouse Seconds, Washington Heights, Rockwood Seconds, Belmont, Minnetonka and Bureau of Mines are fixtures, with P. A. A. and Stanton Heights still on the fence on the proposition of placing secondary outfits in the race.

TOURNEY AWARDED

The sanction and schedule body wound up its conclave by awarding Independence Day week-end to the Westinghouse Club for its revival of the Allegheny County championships.

Local net squads are idle this afternoon, but Wash-Jeff keeps the flag flying by inaugurating a four-day Eastern jaunt. The Presidents battle Johns Hopkins at Baltimore today, after which they move on to encounter Navy, Georgetown and George Washington in the order named. Dr. Billy McEllroy's Pitt array and the Carnegie Tech troupe of Coach B. P. Hoover feature tomorrow's Steel City bill by tussling on the Tartan lot.

Yesterday the Dukes lost their second brush of the season to Grove City, bowing on the Grovers' courts, 5 to 2. At Bethany, rain prevented the Geneva-Bethany Tri-State Conference match. The Duquesne-Grove City summary:

SINGLES

Fenny, Duquesne, defeated Koma, Grove City, 6-4, 5-7, 7-4; Ladener, Grove City, defeated Meason, Duquesne, 10-8, 4-6, 6-4; Williams, Grove City, defeated Thompson, Duquesne, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3; Purcell, Duquesne, defeated Fegley, Grove City, 6-3, 6-4; Rice, Grove City, defeated Dey, Duquesne, 6-1, 6-1; Casterbrook, Grove City, defeated Casey, Duquesne, 6-1, 7-5.

DOUBLES

By JESS CARVER

The Pitt and Carnegie Tech track and field squads, varsity and freshman, are to put on their annual show in the Pitt Stadium this afternoon, with the setup about as usual, the Panthers being established as hotcha favorites to go galloping off with the bacon.

The meet will be the fourth of the season for the Panthers and the second for Carnegie. To date, Pitt had lost to West Virginia and Penn State and won over Temple, while Tech has beaten Western Reserve and been beaten by the P. A. A.

KELLER AFTER RECORD

Provided the condition of the track is such as to warrant such an attempt, Coach Carl Olsen will send Capt. Bill Keller out for the district college half-mile record today. Capt. Bill turned in a 1:58 7-10 880 under adverse conditions last week. He'll confine his activities to his specialty today, with Watkins and Kiger attending to the 440.

Tommy Coulter, Tech's star all-round performer, is conceded the edge in the two hurdle races and Schell, of Tech, looms as the probable mile victor. All other first places loom as Panther possessions.

The remainder of today's collegiate sport card as it concerns the tri-state area finds Wash-Jeff opening its eastern net invasion by taking on Johns Hopkins at Baltimore and West Va. Wesleyan engaging Bethany at Bethany and the baseball nines of West Virginia and Fairmont clashing in the first contest of a two-game series at Fairmont.

PITT GOLFERS WIN

Yesterday the Pitt varsity golfers defeated Carnegie Tech, 5½ to 3½; Geneva's crack track and field team walloped Waynesburg, 91½ to 43½; Grove City's netters made it two in a row for the season over the Dukes at Grove City, 5 to 2, and California's racquet wielders nosed out Waynesburg, 4 to 2. The Bethany-Geneva net duel was called off because of rain.

In the Geneva - Waynesburg meet, Howard Spencer set a new Reeves Stadium record for the 220-yard low hurdles by covering the distance in 25 seconds. Joe Beggs came within three inches of Len Friedman's district javelin mark by hurling the spear 200 ft. 2¾ inches.

It is planning an intercolle- invitation golf tournament Provid in June. West Virginia, quite e, Carnegie Tech, Washhe cont Penn State will be intaught center teams.

Acc nnual fencing exhibit at when t Tech is on for this eve- the spit will be held in the Tarames. nasium.

Local Field in National Open

SAM PARKS, JR. — KNOX YOUNG, JR.

PERRY DELVECCHIO — AL ALCROFT — VINCENT ELDRED

Here's the field of golfers, seven professionals and a lone amateur, which will represent the Pittsburgh district in the national open tournament at Glen View, Ill., next month. Eldred did not have to qualify, on account of his high position in last year's tournament, but the others all made the grade at Oakmont yesterday in a field of 53 starters. Parks and Young, former rivals at Highland, stole the show when the former, now a professional, broke par in his first round and led the field with a fine 145 for the double round and the latter was the only amateur to qualify. A heavy course marred play. These are Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph pictures.

SPORTS CUT SHORT

MELBOURNE, Australia.—(AP.)—The Metropolitan Golf Club today sent an invitation to Bobby Jones, former British and United States Amateur and Open champion, to compete in the Australian Open championship, which probably will be held at Victoria in connection with the state's centenary celebration.

OTTAWA.—(INS.)—The Ottawa Club of the National Hockey League will be without the services of Eric Knox star defence next season. The Senators shipped Alfred to Toronto in exchange for Roy Worrie and $12,000 in cash.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP.)—Coach Ed Leader has been notified that two Yale crew men, James K. Aspen, of Seattle, Wash., and James Mertz, of New York City, were injured in an automobile accident near Scarsdale, N. Y., on their way back from Princeton, N. J., after the regatta Saturday with Princeton and Cornell. Leader was told that Aspen, who is No. 4 man in the varsity crew, suffered a broken jaw.

GLENEAGLES, Scotland.—(INS.)—The announced determination of Enid Wilson, British women's golf champion, to retire from competition later this year was greeted with mixed emotions today. Her contemplated withdrawal, following the retirement earlier this year of her brilliant predecessor, Joyce Wethered, will leave Great Britain with no outstanding woman golfer.

CHICAGO.—(INS.)—George Jennings, Jr., winner of four national public parks tennis championships, will turn professional when he goes to Eaglesmere, Pa., to become director of tournaments.

SAN FRANCISCO.—(INS.)—Herman Pillette, veteran right-handed pitcher, today was looking for a new berth following his release by the San Francisco Missions club of the Pacific Coast League. He came to the coast league from the Detroit Tigers in 1925.

CHICAGO.—For admittedly pulling up his mount when in the lead by three lengths on Semester in the fifth race at Sportsman's Park yesterday, enabling Whistking to win, Jockey Lester Dye has been ruled off the turf by the stewards. A backer attacked Dye after the race and knocked him unconscious.

MONTREAL.—The National Hockey League has named a board of appeal consisting of Frank Patrick, new managing director; President Frank Calder and Thomas Arnold, of Montreal. Rulings of Patrick may be appealed to this body.

ARENA PLANS TITLE BOUT BUILDUP

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

K. O. Christner vs. Frankie Van Bee, 10 rounds, Portland, Ore.

Juan Cruz vs. Nicky Nelson and Jimmy Rankin vs. Sam McCauley, 6 rounds each, Detroit.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Man of ideas that he is, Matchmaker Lew Raymond, of the Arena, has mapped out a lightweight elimination tournament which he hopes will culminate in a championship match for Pittsburgh this summer.

He has the basis for it in his Wesley Ramey-Harry Dublinsky pairing for Friday night. He plans to match the winner against the winner of the Tony Herrera-Tracey Cox return go, scheduled at Hickey Park one week from next Monday, and then bring on Tony Canzoneri, the champion, for the survivor.

To this end, Raymond already has communicated with Sammy Goldman, manager of Canzoneri, and it will be difficult for Canzoneri to give the proposition the go-by, provided Raymond can show him some real money, for Ramey is just fresh from a non-title victory with Tony at Grand Rapids a few weeks ago. Canzoneri figured Ramey just another warmup fight for his title defense against Barney Ross in Chicago next month and ran into the surprise of his life.

RAMEY GOES GOLFING

Ramey, who arrived here Sunday with Abe Meyer Lichtenstein, of Rochester, N. Y., who boxes Red Bruce, local Negro middleweight, in the semi-final, Friday night, took the day off from training yesterday and went golfing instead. He planned to dig in and resume his gym today at the Pittsburgh Lyceum. Lichtenstein worked out yesterday.

Between Rounds

Two Michigan boxing titles will be at stake in a show to be run in Detroit Friday night. Marty Simmons, formerly of McKeesport, defending the middleweight crown against Louie Mays and Johnny Mitchell the featherweight bauble against Joey Palazzola in 10-round bouts.

Packy McFarland, of Ohio, boxes Louis Sposito in a 10-round bout in Columbus, O., Thursday night.

Bernard Kelly, Jr., wants to know what his light-heavyweight, Buddy McArthur, ever did to the local promoters that they don't give him more of a tumble. The same thing goes for Jimmy Reilly, his lightweight.

Outdoor shows will be held at Fairmont, W. Va., this summer.

Bobby Leitham, Canadian bantamweight champion, is on the broad Atlantic bound for England to box Johnny King for the British Empire title on June 12.

Stanley Phillips, former local amateur boxer, now employed at the Arena, on the North Side, is in the West Penn Hospital for an operation for the removal of a bit of bone from his nose.

Bus Vogel, Hickey Park matchmaker, has signed Patsy Severo, of Meadville, and Johnny Chiodo, of Johnstown, for his eight-round semi-final to the Ted Yarosz-Tommy Freeman bout next Monday night.

Jimmy McCoy, former local boxer and son of boxer who dated back to the bare knuckle days, is the latest applicant for a job as a judge at the local bouts.

round when Heinie made Chuck hoist a fly to Tony Piet.

Fred Lindstrom's cleanup three-bagger of the second round gave the Pirates their victory thrill. Lindy caught one of Jim Elliott's twisters flush with three aboard and two out. The ball set sail for the rightfield screen. Klein made a nervy attempt to grab the sphere in one hand but he could not hold it. Capt. Traynor opened the third with a single and eventually scored what proved to be the winning tally.

99 Pros, 19 Amateurs Qualify for Open

The field which will set out in pursuit of the national open golf championship at the North Shore Club in Chicago, June 8, will consist of 130 professionals and 21 amateurs.

That much was determined yesterday when 99 professionals and 19 amateurs survived the annual sectional qualifying round and joined the 31 pros and two simon-pures who automatically qualified for the Chicago grind by finishing among the first 30 and ties in the 1932 championship.

Play in yesterday's 36-hole qualifying test, played in 20 districts, developed few surprises, although perhaps a dozen well-known figures failed to make the grade. Among these were Chick Evans, former amateur and open champion; Jock Hutchison, once holder of the British open crown; George Sargent, who won the National open in 1909; Emmett French, Alex Ayton, Charley Hall and a scattering few young, but formidable amateurs, such as Gene Homans and Jack Westland, runners-up respectively, for the national amateur championships of 1930 and 1931, and Charley Yates, Georgia state titleholder. Roland Mackenzie, former Walker Cup player, withdrew just before play began in the Denver district.

The complete list of qualifiers in the sectional tests follows:

GRAPHIC GOLF

WATCH THE GRIP

Much of the success of the entire golf swing depends upon the grip. Without a good grip, the player faces a handicap that seems bound to effect his play sooner or later. The left hand plays the most important part in the actual stroke itself, but unless the right hand is aligned correctly in conjunction with it, it is highly probable that the whole mechanics of the stroke will be thrown out of gear.

All great golfers have grips that appear to be welded together that do not change throughout the swing. In Bobby Jones' case this is particularly noticeable. Here the V between the first finger and the thumb of the right hand is on top of the shaft at address and beneath the shaft at the top of the swing. This shows that there has been no deviation in the grip and the position of the clubhead at address, which is pointing directly away from Jones at address and square to the ball, will return to this position on the downswing.

STUDENTS BACK CARTMELL

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., May 16.—As an aftermath of the resignation of Nate Cartmell as track coach, announced during the dual meet with Pitt at Pittsburgh last Saturday, Penn State College students are up in arms and passing around petitions for the retention of Cartmell and the dropping of Hugo Bezdek, head of the physical education department here.

The feud between Bezdek and Cartmell is one of long standing, and it came to a head when Cartmell, in announcing his resignation, declared Bezdek had broken faith with him.

Bezdek has been at State since 1919, first as athletic director and more recently as head of the physical education department, stressing intramural athletics. There has been considerable opposition in recent years against his policy of subordinating varsity competition to a program of sports for all on the campus.

The City League, still hoping for a break in the weather, has three games carded for this evening in as many sections of the city. On the North Side, at the Salt Works, the North Siders and Homewood are to swing into action. At Brentwood, the Gillespies will entertain Leo Mackey and his Whitaker outfit, while at Greenlee Field, the J. L. Thomas nine will find tough opposition with Bill Fuchs and his Dormont outfit.

Manager George Falconer is trying to get his postponed game off early. Dormont is booked to play the Cochrans tomorrow and Books on Friday.

The Cochrans and Books both attempted to open their seasons at home last evening, but once more Jupiter Pluvius ruled the roost. The Cochrans are looking for a game for Saturday or Sunday abroad. Managers interested should call Ottie Cochran at Fairfax 4320.

The Crawfords were unable to solve the puzzling offerings of Porter Charleston yesterday and were blanked by the Philadelphia All-Stars, 2 to 0.

USINESS GAIN NALYZED BY ECONOMIST

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Unquestionably business activity has extended more than usual this season. April was a short month in working days, which makes the returns more impressive.

Now the easy thing to do would be to take the figures at face value and join the prosperity hullyhoo. But the second thing to do is to inquire into the probability of the move's continuation, which involves an examination of the basis for it.

INFLATION BASIS SEEN

In this writer's judgment something like 80 per cent of the move thus far has been based directly or indirectly on "inflation."

The other 20 per cent odd of the move would have occurred without Washington policies. There would have been some rebound following the financial crisis of early March. This part was based on postponed business and on a sort of short covering of deferred commitments. There would also have been a belated seasonal gain. Easter was late this year. Unseasonable weather was late. The "Bank Holiday" delayed seasonable activity.

The balance of the 20 per cent is not due to inflation, is to be attributed to the first rush to manufacture and distribute legal beer.

SHUTDOWN SOON DUE

This analysis is not unfavorable. It merely indicates that we can not yet be sure how sustained the move is to be.

If expansion is to continue, as we hope, we must recognize that it will have to contend soon with the following conditions:

1—The time for a seasonal shutdown is close, and the effect of the approaching summer on manufacturing and wholesale trade will be seen.

2—A large amount of anticipatory buying has been done, partly to protect against a rise in prices, and partly as a speculation for the rise. Naturally this should mean somewhat less buying later on. Those who covered requirements ahead will not need so much. Speculative purchases mean profit-taking sales.

3—The sharp rise in prices will in some cases stimulate production, which can easily run beyond requirements.

4—Much unsettlement and uncertainty has been caused by the abandonment of the gold standard, repudiation of bond interest and drastic plans affecting business. This is a great drawback to expansion in building and heavy industries, which require new capital and long-term plans.

5—Consumer purchasing power is bound to lag behind business expansion. Debts remain burdensome. Unemployment is abnormally great. Taxes are to be increased. Above all, an inflationary move puts prices up before wages and other earnings can rise, so that most consumers do not experience a net gain in purchasing power.

CHARGES MODERATION

So I advise continued caution and moderation. Not for another month or two can we know for sure that the tide has turned for good.

Pig Iron Advanced $1 a Ton Locally

Pig iron prices have been advanced $1 a ton in the Pittsburgh district and 50 cents a ton in the Youngstown area. New prices are: Bessemer, $16.50 Pittsburgh furnace; No. 2 foundry and malleable, $16 Pittsburgh. Valley prices are 50 cents a ton below these quotations. Other grades have been similarly advanced. The new quotations are effective immediately.

Buying Wave Sweeps Over The Country

—By B. C. FORBES—

DO YOU find your friends becoming buying-minded? I do.

Many, many families have scrimped and rigidly refrained from buying, not because they did not have the money, but because they were fearful that employment and other conditions would become worse and worse. They are rapidly losing that fear.

Mr. Forbes

Therefore, they have begun to buy things they have long needed; also semi-luxuries they have long desired.

They have not been prodded into action by the loud talk about oncoming inflation, about the imminence of rising prices, about the dollar becoming worth less.

They are motivated, not by fear, but by revival of hopefulness, hopefulness that the cruel depression has run its course, hopefulness that better times have actually set in. Those still employed no longer are nervous lest they lose their jobs; they see additional workers being taken on, or they see the work week increased, and they feel that their jobs are now secure.

THIS COLUMN continues to be bombarded with telegrams, letters and every other kind of communication from a wide variety of business concerns regarding actual expansion in sales and in employment. The specific being always more impressive and convincing than the general, samples of latest concrete developments should prove interesting.

A. E. Nettleton (Shoe) Company wires:

"April shipments 4 per cent better than March and May going 20 per cent ahead, beating all 1932 figures and hitting well up to the best of 1931."

Almost every tire company sends news of overwhelming demand, necessitating enormous increase in working forces and hours—twenty-four-hour schedules are not now unusual.

Stinson Aircraft Corporation:

"We are working on the largest schedule in our history. We have employed many additional workers."

Michigan Alkali Company reports:

"A hundred per cent increase in sales of dry ice this year. Steadily mounting production is expected to be maintained for the balance of the year. This new industry is a real 'depression baby.'"

News from motor manufacturers continues to record increased orders from dealers and increased sales by dealers.

Salesman John L. Cudmore:

"I have received the following wire from my company: 'Make Montgomery and return to Milwaukee. Oversold. A. H. Weinbrenner, Shoe Manufacturers.'"

REMEMBER, THUS far America has not issued one dollar of "inflated" money. It is the national psychology that has risen, not nation's volume of currency.

STOCKS FINISH STRONG, UP 1 TO 4

NEW YORK, May 16.—(AP.)—Stocks snapped back briskly today, and various commodities recovered early losses, as the courageous bears of yesterday scurried to cover in the face of continued optimistic industrial news and a more hopeful view of the foreign situation.

Steels, sugars, communication issues and various specialties led the rally with gains ranging from 1 to 4 or more points.

Traders were somewhat hesitant in the early hours, after the moderate shakeout of the previous session, but recovered their confidence when American Telephone started upward and various equities began to display strength.

In addition to Telephone, other public utilities were firm. The rails, although not buoyant, were generally higher. The so-called "wet" stocks were again in demand. There was a moderate letdown just before the close, but substantial gains predominated.

The market started up in advance of publication of President Roosevelt's dramatic plea to heads of nations to reduce armaments and solemnly pledge to refrain from aggression, and the advance quickened after the contents of the address had been published by financial news tickers.

The apparent impasse in the Geneva disarmament conference had obviously been disturbing to the market in the preceding two sessions, and hopes of successful conclusions at the Geneva and London conferences were evidently buoyed by the President's stand.

Short covering in American Telephone appeared in some volume after announcement during the morning that New England Telephone, one of its principal subsidiaries, had ordered the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50. Wall street had until recently been taking it for granted that directors of American Telephone would rather sharply reduce the boom-time dividend rate of $9 annually, at their meeting slated for tomorrow. With the recent pickup in business, however, shorts in the issue have been less confident of a sharp cut.

In trade reports, car loadings of individual carriers have been watched closely to see whether the complete report for last week would show an increase over the like period of last year. Indications are not yet conclusive, but the first few roads to report led to hopes that last year's level will be approximated. Wall street has been inclined to regard a crossing of the trend line of the previous year as a sort of landmark on the way out of the depression.

THRILLING NOVEL OF THE CHILDREN OF DANCING MOTHERS

CHAPTER XLVIII.

It was 10 o'clock that night when Edna came home. The family were in the living room when she unlocked the door of the apartment and came in—a new Edna with her eyes so deep and sparkling that they looked black in the lights of the room, a bunch of white gardenias wilting on the front of her coat and her face looking younger than Sharlie's face.

Dodie did not speak to her, but Sharlie followed her into her bedroom and shut the door.

Edna laid her coat on the bed and unpinned the flowers. "I've been out having dinner with Mr Collins," she said, "and he bought these for me. He told me all about you, Sharlie. From beginning to end. He said that he felt sure you were dazzled by his position and his money and his car—and by his man-of-the-world air, and he tried to explain to me how you had dazzled him with your youth. And when he told me about Dodie coming in, today——"

She laughed. "Dodie isn't speaking to me, just now, but I ought to go in and thank her for what she did for me today.

"I'd liked him all this time without ever letting him know it. He said most women have always been too eager about letting him see how they felt about him—He's a bit conceited, I think. I suppose all good-looking men are after they've been chased by women for a great many years."

She sat down on the edge of the bed and pulled off her gloves. "But it was a blow to his pride when you turned him down last night. No doubt about that. He'd been so flattered by your admiration for him that it knocked him silly, so he told me, when you told him you didn't like him enough to go down to Phoenix with him."

EDNA LEAVES

That was on Monday night. On Saturday night at 8 o'clock Edna left for Phoenix on the Chieftain, the fastest train to the southwest. All week long Dodie had barely spoken to her, and on Saturday she asked the Hanaberrys to come over to play cards with her and Sharlie's father, just as if nothing out of the ordinary were happening in the family.

Only Sharlie went with Edna to the station—and Jim Barnum. Neither of the girls knew that Jim intended to go along until an hour before train time, when he came knocking on the back door in his old familiar fashion and said that he would drive them downtown.

He carried Edna's bags down to the car and Sharlie sat on the back seat with them while he and Edna carried on an animated conversation all the way downtown to the station.

It was a biting cold night, windy and moonlit. When Edna stepped into the station, with its hundreds of electric lights twinkling like stars against its white marble walls, Sharlie had never seen her look so lovely. All week long she had kept that deep-eyed, dewy look that she had brought home with her from her evening with Mr. Collins, and it was heightened now by the fresh, rosy color that the cold air had whipped into her cheeks. She pushed back her blue fox furs from her neck and gave a little shiver of anticipation and excitement. "Think of going down to a brand-new country!" she said, squeezing Sharlie's arm. "To start a brand new job! Think of not needing furs, of not being mewed up in a steam heated office building all winter long! Mr. Collins says there are palms down there, and cotton, and all the lovely things that grow in hot countries."

COLLINS APPEARS

Sharlie knew that she wasn't half so thrilled at the thought of palms and hot countries as she was at the thought of having Mr. Collins all to herself down in Arizona—not Mr. Collins, the enormously rich employer, who was pursued by Mrs. Wilmots, but a man who was going to need her help as he never needed it before in all the years she had worked for him so willingly. Who was going to need her encouragement and her sympathy and her support through all the trials and the failures and the disappointments that go hand-in-hand with the building up of a new business. That was going to be Edna's adventure. The adventure she was looking forward to.

Sharlie heard her make a little sound of surprise as they walked toward the gates of the train-shed, and she saw Mr. Collins coming through the crowd carrying a square white box under one arm and grinning like a boy.

"Thought I'd better come down to see you off," he said as he came up. His eyes were on Edna, and he did not seem to see Sharlie and Jim who fell back a little. He held out his box to Edna, took her tickets from her and ushered her through the gates.

"Perhaps we'd better stay behind for a bit," Jim said to Sharlie. "It looks to me as if they wanted to be alone, eh, what?" He stopped at a newsstand and began to pick out some magazines for Edna to read on the train.

"Board!" boomed a stentorian voice far down the platform. "All aboard!"

Porters began to pick up their portable steps, and Sharlie hurried along the platform to Edna. She was standing very close to Mr. Collins, holding her box of flowers and looking down at it as she listened to something he was saying. As Sharlie and Jim came up to them he leaned forward suddenly and kissed the top of her hat. He did it so quickly that Sharlie wondered if Edna had felt it—or knew that he had done it.

"Good-bye," he said. "Good-bye, all of you." His sharp, blue gaze traveled over Sharlie as it had done in all the weeks at the office when he had hardly noticed her—when she had been just another fresh, pretty girl to him. He disappeared in the murk of the platform with its confusion and its smoke and its noise of hissing steam and good-byes.

She and Jim stood there until the train had disappeared in the darkness, and the empty tracks glistened like wet wagon tracks under the lights of the train shed. Then they turned away feeling rather flat and futile, as people always do who are left behind at stations. Neither of them spoke until they reached the sidewalk outside the station and were climbing back into Jim's automobile.

"Want to go to a movie, or to a restaurant for a cup of coffee or something hot?" Jim asked then. "It's cold as the dickens, isn't it?"

"It is. But I don't care for anything to drink," Sharlie answered.

The car started. "I never knew that fellow was crazy about her until tonight," Jim said when they had driven a few blocks. "Did you see him kiss her good-bye?"

"I saw him," Sharlie said in a hard bright voice. "There are a great many things we don't know about our friends, usually. For instance, I never knew you'd been going around with that red-headed woman I saw you with the other day—and yet you must have been going with her for a long time because she took it for granted that you knew just what she always eats for lunch."

Jim grinned. "I've eaten lunch with her off and on for a couple of years," he said. "That's Miss Dakin, who works at our place. She's the prettiest girl I ever saw. Didn't you think she was?"

"If you happen to admire redheads, I suppose you'd say she was fairly handsome," Sharlie drawled, hiding a yawn with two of her small gloved fingers. "You used to tell me I was the best-looking girl you ever saw. It's a fine line, Jim, keep it up. If you remember I quite fell for it, for a time."

"I never said you were good-looking. I said you were beautiful," said Jim. "You're not pretty, or good-looking. There's something fine about your looks—something that makes you different from everyone else."

REMEMBERS JEALOUSY

He turned the car into Fourteenth street, out of the theater-bound traffic. "You sound to me as if you were jealous of our Miss Dakin," he remarked. "You aren't are you, Sharlie, by any chance."

"Jealous!" Sharlie shot a look of fury at him. "Jealous!—As if I cared whom you went around with! Why, when you were running around with Edna—when you were coming right there to our flat after her—it never bothered me the least bit."

She remembered, as she spoke, how jealous she had been that night outside the office building, when she saw Jim waiting for Edna. She remembered how she had gone back into the building to wait there until Mr. Collins left and drive home with him, if she could wangle it. She had gone because she was jealous—

"Jim, I'm hungry, and I'd love something hot to drink. Edna and I were so busy that we had hardly any dinner at all," she said suddenly. "Couldn't we stop somewhere and have something to eat? The way we used to when we were such good friends. Those were the nicest times I ever had, I think."

She turned the windshield mirror so that she could look into it, and began to powder her nose. She wanted to look her very best tonight. She wanted Jim to see that she was still the best looking girl he had ever known—better looking than his redhead. She wanted, very much all at once, everything to be just as it had been between them a long time ago.

"You're really the loveliest old egg in the world," she said as the car sped down the street toward an electric light sign with the word EAT in large red bulbs. "I like you better than anyone except Dodie."

THE END.

The steam expands within both types of blades (together called a "stage") so that such a turbine utilizes both the impulse and reaction forces of the rushing steam. (Moyer: Steam Turbines.)

Upon the order of the English statesman, Thomas Cromwell, Earl of Sussex, (1485-1540), who had advanced Protestant reformation in England, a copy of the Bible was placed in each church so everyone could read it. This picture shows a John Porter whose able reading had attracted many people. Forbidden to do so by the English clergy (before Cromwell's downfall), he refused to obey as there was no law forbidding it, he explained. Nevertheless, he was put into prison and died within a week. They need no lubrication in the steam space, little attention in operation. (Moyer: Steam Turbines.)

Today's Best Bet

First race: Frozen Brakes, Crossed Feet, Banana's Ghost, Broken Arches.

Second race: Starvation, The Finger, Bad Bet, Sorry, Just Too Bad, Not My Fault and Last Message to the Folks.

Third race: No Eats, Rent Due, Bad Check, Take the Air, Please Remit, Nobody Home and Just Moved.

WHAT'ZA ARGUMENT ?
THIS GUY CALLED ME SOUR PAN !
NO I DIDN'T - AFTER TH RACE, I CAME UP TO HIS WINDOW AND SAID "I WANT TH MONEY I WON ON MY HORSE SOUR PAN !

Sixth race: Sour Pan, Sprained Ankles, Paper Reins, Nose Sponge, Pulled Up, Cribber, King Colic, Kitchen Roach and Prince of Spavins.

Ain't that a pipdoola of a list? We will say one thing about the hoss owners. They sure name their weasels right.

If you want to bet, go forth and bet. Lay it right on the line and get a little pink ticket for your money. But when you wake up in the morning and make a meal on the bad taste in your mouth don't say The Bug didn't warn you.

Not that we don't slap down a one or a two on the hosses several times a summer. But we go at it like a spy at a keyhole. With our eyes open.

We know that the best we will get is the worst of it. But it is a thrill watching hosses run away. You can yell your head off at the riders. And the cops don't allow you to do that in Central Park.

Chance of a Lifetime

Conditions Are Favorable for Obtaining Public Improvements That Have Long Been Advocated

Never have conditions been more favorable for obtaining the public improvements to which Pittsburgh has long been committed.

The Roosevelt administration plans to spend $3,300,000,000 on Federal public works. Every effort should be made by the local business and civic associations to secure inclusion in the program of the proposed storage reservoirs to protect the city from floods and the proposed Lake Erie and Ohio River Canal. We have been talking about these things for a lifetime; now a chance is offered to get them.

The Federal government is embarking on a great program of public works to relieve unemployment and restore the people's impaired buying power.

The city, county and state governments have the same incentive to embark on improvement programs of their own.

They have an additional incentive in the fact that under certain circumstances the Federal government is willing to lend them money for such work.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation is willing, for example, to furnish Federal funds to municipalities for self-liquidating projects.

The county has two such projects under contemplation in the proposed bridges over the Allegheny River at Aspinwall and the Monongahela at Homestead. The tolls to be charged for the use of the bridges will pay off the loans.

Some arrangement might also be made to finance the purchase and improvement of the Wabash Railroad Bridge and tunnel with Federal funds.

The Town Hall should be built without further delay. The people have authorized bonds for the structure and want it built. This, too, might well be handled as a self-liquidating project; for it will yield revenue in the form of rentals for the use of the building for conventions, meetings and exhibitions.

The city should construct the river-rail terminal, by means of which shippers who lack their own docks and wharves may avail themselves of the opportunities for cheap transportation that are afforded by our waterways.

The improvement of the downtown waterfront should also be included in the city's program.

Let us hesitate no more.

These projects have been studied and analyzed sufficiently. The benefits that they will bring are acknowledged. Pittsburgh has been committed to some of them since some of our oldest citizens were little boys. It has been understood all along that we would engage in these undertakings when the time was ripe.

The time is ripe now. It never will be riper. Labor and material costs are exceptionally low. The Federal government offers an easy way to finance the work. And public sentiment is overwhelmingly in favor of it.

Pittsburgh and Allegheny County must join hands with the Roosevelt administration in bringing back industry and prosperity.

Beer and Temperance

Business and Police Statistics Prove It Was Beneficial to Modify Prohibition.

In his recent radio address to the nation, counting the measures taken by his administration in the general welfare, President Roosevelt was able to report that the legalization of beer has produced highly beneficial results.

"That," he said, "has already resulted in considerable re-employment and incidentally has provided for states and municipalities much needed tax revenue."

All the data available more than confirm the President's pronouncement.

Enacted as a revenue measure by Congress, the permissive beer law has painlessly contributed millions of dollars to empty coffers during the first weeks of its operation.

But the gains in other directions—toward temperance and toward a genuine business revival—are of much greater importance than the tax-return item. And these benefits are bound to be of large and lasting social value.

With respect to trade and industry, the figures recently announced from a survey of the District of Columbia and twenty-five states are surprising even to an advocate of legal beer.

The survey included 8,000 leading hotels and 20,000 leading restaurants in the legal beer territory. Increase of current business in these establishments reached the amazing total of $20,000,000 in thirty days.

First figures for investment and industry were even larger. It was shown that $25,000,000 had been paid out for new equipment, repairs, alterations and labor during the thirty-day period, and $75,000,000 more is waiting to be disbursed.

Obviously, an expenditure of $100,000,000 by private enterprise, over a short lapse of time and a wide extent of territory, is both a stimulus to industry in general and an incalculable boon to labor.

Moreover, the material benefits will increase.

In New York and other states completion of state regulatory rules and organization is awaited by large numbers of eligible managers.

Encouraging as these prospects are, however, the decided improvement in public morals is more so.

The first step toward abolishing prohibition has—as its proponents predicted—brought an actual decrease in drunkenness.

Other cities have noted a similar trend, according to news dispatches from day to day.

Less drunkenness means a reduced consumption of hard liquor in illegal speakeasies. It means an increased respect for law and order.

With these signs before them the American people should speed the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. Enforceable laws, which will bring the hard liquor traffic under strict public control, should eliminate the last of the gross evils of prohibition.

Picking Up -:- -:- -:-

By Nelson Harding

Once it's started, small and slow,
Watch the rolling snowball grow,
Gathering both size and speed
As from Winter's frosts it's freed.

With a little push it may
Be continued on its way;
Now that it is o'er the top
It should roll without a stop.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Spring-Stop Signals

At this dangerous season, a man is afraid to PRETEND that he's in love—for fear he may take himself seriously.

* * *

Among the most prominent modern women are many who have achieved great success as matrimonial failures.

No matter how long they live, no man will ever get all the amusement he wants and no woman will ever get all the love she craves.

Don't part with those awful white elephants you receive as wedding presents. They are the one thing about marriage that you can be sure will last forever.

When a girl sets her heart on a married man, she usually discovers that his wife is like his Country. He will admit that almost everything seems to be wrong with her, yet you can't make him give her up.

* * *

There is no crime in wiping the dishes. But almost any man would rather be caught breaking into the baby's bank than holding a dish-towel.

A woman has to pause for breath, after getting over one love affair, before plunging into another; but a man can double the act and pass himself on the way without the slightest strain on his heart.

There is no question in the modern girl's mind about the propriety of proposing to a hesitant young man. The only question is whether to go down on her knees and risk spoiling the crease in her new trousers.

Success in love consists not in knowing how to hold onto a man, but in knowing when to LET GO.

The average man spends half his time scolding a woman for worrying so much—and the other half giving her something to worry about.

Isn't It So?

Men of a few words are the best men.

Smooth runs the water where the brook runs deep.

There are many cures for love, but none of them infallible.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 16.—The Olympian flippancies of Lois Long and Dorothy Parker are constantly convulsing the town. No dinner is a wow without quoting them.

Miss Long, the daughter of a minister and former wife of Peter Arno, is articled to The New Yorker for which she reports the dizzy confusions of the night clubs under the nom de fantasie "Lipstick." She is young, vibrant and dewey with sophistication. Yet she will scribble:

"The old girl has been waltzing. All over the place. I showed the young folk a thing or two." And so on which gives the idea. The chatter of both Miss Long and Miss Parker are loaded with endless buoyancy but their cutting wise-cracks have a seraphic glow which dulls the sting.

Dorothy Parker was born Dorothy Rothschild in one of those wildly named Jersey suburbs. Her poetry is in favor and one of her short stories captured an O. Henry prize. She promises publishers any material they ask and gives them nothing. But adds to gaiety of nations over the cocktail without price.

Miss Parker and Miss Long are the embodiment of the transition period of humor from yeasty medievalism to the modern edge that razors floating silk. It is the devastating sort that spares nothing. The saving grace is that more often than not the perpetrators turn it upon themselves.

Lionel and John Barrymore were recently yoo-hooing with a five-figured offer to appear in a weekly broadcast—a detective mystery continuity. They were about to sign when they discovered it places their incomes in a higher tax bracket, giving the government the biggest percentage of the sum. So they didn't.

Vincent Astor has poured several inherited millions into apartment ventures around Carl Schurz Park on East End avenue. The hope was to give it the aristocratic aura of Sutton and Beekman places, carved out of slums. It is ironic that the most sustaining publicity the Astor area received was when Ring Lardner date-lined radio critiques "No Visitors, N. Y.," while convalescing at a hospital there. Hundreds of curious made it their business to ferret out the location.

Flushed days at Claremont Inn are mostly a memory but sometimes for dinner and often at tea this erstwhile mansion of Theodosia Burr so charmingly perched on a Riverside Drive knoll has goodly gatherings. Mostly starry-eyed romanticists who like to watch the ripple of the Hudson from window tables. Or see a setting sun shift the purpling palisades of Jersey into a crumble of marigold. Sometimes the chance-encountered beauty is heightened by the carillon in the Rockefeller church across the roadway, the finest in the world, offering a chime of 66 clear-toned bells. Last evening as the splendor cast its dying glow, the carilloneur was pealing what sounded like Gounod's "Ave" and not since I thought a trans-Atlantic liner was turning turtle have I so devoutly wished I had been a better boy.

There is a windy reach beyond Claremont sweeping up to Grant's Tomb where a spurt of water gurgles from a hip-high stone shaft to assuage thirsts of passers-by. A scholarly looking gentleman after quick glances about was filling his mouth and spraying the greensward through his teeth. From a car the figure suggested Dr. John Erskine, although I suppose it wasn't. But I'd like to think it was. Teeth squirting is the most skillful of my limited repertoire.

B. b. w.—meaning before bridge work—I so perfected the art I could fill my mouth with water and while conversing with innocents bewilder them with a sudden needle spray. It was done with a bland expression and was abandoned permanently one night in Foucar's bar in Cincinnati. My victim happened to be somewhat of a squirt himself, but instead of replying in kind doubled a hand that suggested a clown's glove and swung from the ankle. They still tell how, when Don Allen and Howard Acton fanned me to, I inquired wanly if anyone else had been saved. I thought it an earthquake.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

She 17, graduates from Hi this year, and is going to be a writer. So—will I tell her what is the secret of successful writing?

Living, youngster. Living is the secret of successful writing—as it is the secret of every other success. Not how much can you talk, but how much have you lived; that's the test of your power as a writer, or any other kind of a worker in this hard-hitting age.

Twasn't always so. Time was, when writing was a matter of fancy flourishes. Dig up some of the speeches that held 'em spellbound, back in the 80's. What did they sound like? Like nothing human. Just a lot of hifalutin', six-bit words, with here and there a phrase that sent you whizzing like a rocket.

Plenty of rules for 'vriting, then—complicated curliques—as many trick holds as a wrestling bout. And plenty of time to learn them in. For those were leisure days, and writing was a frilly indoor sport for choosey souls who couldn't tackle a regular workout.

But those times have passed, let us hope, forever. And today writing ties up with all our commonplace human experience—or it doesn't rate. No time now for fancy flourishes. For life, in 1933, is a heckuva handful, and most of us are having a tough time hanging on. Any of the literati who aspire to write like parlor what-nots had better take up picture puzzles instead.

IF YOU WANT TO WRITE, YOU MUST LIVE.

AND YOU'LL BE ABLE TO WRITE AS MUCH, AND ONLY AS MUCH, AS YOU HAVE LIVED.

FOR IT ISN'T THE WORD THAT GETS ACROSS, BUT THE EXPERIENCE BEHIND THE WORD. IF YOU KNOW WHAT YOU'RE TALKING ABOUT, THEY'LL GRAB YOU AND ASK FOR MORE. BUT IF YOU'RE JUST MAKING SYNTHETIC SOUNDS—THE LINE WILL GO DEAD, LITTLE GIRL.

And that applies to every other department of life, as well as writing.

The world is fed up on fakes. We've heard too much pretty palavar; we've listened to too many phoney promises; we've watched too many grand stand gestures. The hocus-pocus boys can still fool us—for a while; but only for a while. After that, God help 'em! Somebody's due to get bumped!

Why are columnists? That's why. Columnists are humans who write as they run. And live on the run. And so come to know Life As Is, with its sweat and its tears—and its wistful, weary, tragic, twisted smile.

All of which means what to a little girl in High School? It means, youngster, that you'd better take as your slogan in life that old Greek motto which was my own "class motto" in Hi. Perhaps my spelling has gone askew, but I think it ran something like this—"EINAI OUK DOKEIN"—TO BE; NOT TO SEEM.

It isn't enough any more to "SEEM." That would have gotten your grandmother by in 1850. Or your own mother in 1900. But it won't get you by in 1933. You'll have to BE the thing you seem—or the world will call your bluff.

No matter what career you choose—writer, wife, Congresswoman, or buyer for a notion counter—YOU'LL HAVE TO KNOW YOUR STUFF; YOU'LL HAVE TO GIVE THE OTHER FELLOW WHAT HE NEEDS. AND THE ONLY WAY YOU'LL KNOW HIS NEED IS TO HAVE FELT IT YOURSELF.

You may have the beauty of Helen, little sister, and the brain of Minerva, and the come-hither of the whole Follies Chorus—YET YOU'RE ONLY AS VALUABLE AS YOU'RE USEFUL IN 1933.

And that goes for Dictators, Presidents, Senators, Captains of Industry and Big Shots in Art—as well as common mutts like you and me.

IF YOU HAVE'NT GOT THE REAL GOODS, YOU NEEDN'T COME AROUND!

Blood for Strange Gods

Some Still Believe That Divinity Craves It.

THIS PRIEST PROVIDES BLOOD TO PLEASE HIS GOD

In backward parts of India strange religious beliefs persist, and the blood of animals is offered to curious gods supposed to delight in blood and the smell of blood.

When the Aryans conquered India they brought with them a religion, thousands of years before Christianity, that venerated their own peculiar trinity, Brahma, the Creator; Vishnu, the Preserver, and Siva, the Destroyer. Later came Gautama, a royal prince, son of a king, who became known as Buddha, and started a religion that has more followers on earth than any other. He, temporarily, did away with many altars dripping with blood and established "the pure doctrine of Buddha," soon to become polluted. A religion, however pure at the start, soon comes to reflect the nature of those that practise it. Brutes make religion brutal, hypocrites make it hypocritical, the greedy use it for revenue.

The British Government has abolished India's religious association of assassins, known as the "Thugs," that formerly offered human sacrifices to their god.

Now the gods must be content with the blood of humble goats. An English writer thus describes a blood sacrifice in southern India:

"The hideous image of the god in question, which bore a local name, was clothed in a dark red cloak edged with gold. The priest, who wore merely a loin cloth, offered incense and swung a lamp, in which coconut oil was burning, in different directions in front of the image, at the same time ringing a strange kind of bell, the handle of which represented the Ape God, Hanuman, which is worshipped by the people.

"He then ascended from the dark, underground temple to the level of the ground, where a primitive altar, obviously centuries old, was raised. An assistant led forward a goat, the forehead of which was daubed with red paint. With a curved sacrificial knife the priest made a circular incision round the neck of the animal, a crack, and the cervical vertebra snapped; holding the goat's head in his hand, he raised it with a gesture of supplication towards the rough-hewn stone images of the gods standing before him. A second cut was made round the left foreleg, and the latter also parted from the body. The next moment the head was lying on the sacrificial stone with the leg held in the mouth, while the priest again descended to the depths to continue the rites."

Thousands of goats are sacrificed every year in India that the gods may be pleased by the sight and smell of blood.

Primitive human creatures imagine that the gods like what they like. Even a vegetarian race will offer blood to its gods, assuming that they are more savage than their worshippers.

It is not for us to criticize these primitive people, for you may read in your own Old Testament about the burnt offerings, the flesh of animals, sacrifices supposed to please the Almighty.

Abraham was even ordered to sacrifice his own son, but a ram was mercifully provided instead.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You single fellows should cease your efforts to have the young married man—a former member of your crowd—take part in the things you do.

He wants to retain your friendship, but he knows that he not only has not the money to squander, as he did before marriage, but he has the wishes of another to consider.

It is true that, while he may be happily married, there are times when he feels that he would like to be "back in the old crowd."

He may not be as strong as he should in resisting the temptation, when assailed by arguments put forth to draw him back and break down his self-control—his realization of what he should do as a married man.

There are set expenses to be met, and a certain position to be maintained, and that means management and personal sacrifice.
